SPEECH FROM THRONE

Massive Program Faces Parliament

Most Items Left By Last House

OTTAWA (CP) — An outline of a massive legislative program that contained no major surprises was presented today at the opening of the 27th Parliament.

The traditional speech from the throne, read to the glittering ceremonial opening by Governor-General Vanier, ranged through a wide assortment of items either left over from the last Parliament or outlined in advance by the government.

Among them were proposals for a Canada Development Corp., originally announced two years ago but still not acted on, the Company of Young Canadians, forecast in last year's throne speech, and legislation for a national medical insurance plan.

The development corporation would amass public savings to finance Canadian-owned industries and the Company of Young Canadians is to be patterned after the U.S. Peace Corps.

The government also renewed its pledge to introduce a program of university scholarships and make a "substantial increase" in federal aid to universities in the 1966-67 academic year.

One intriguing sentence in the 2,500-word throne speech served notice that the government intends to deal firmly with any provincial attempts to move into federal fields.

"While respecting fully the responsibilities of the provinces, the government is equally resolved to maintain the constitutional responsibilities of the federal authority," it said.

As expected, there was a forecast of a federal-provincial conference this year to work out new arrangements with the provinces for the division of tax fields. This would be followed by federal legislation respecting tax-splitting in 1967.

Vanier Making Last Appearance?

The 77-year-old governor-general, making what may be his final appearance in that role at a parliamentary opening, alternated his reading between English and French. This followed a practice begun in 1963.

Gen. Vanier's term of office, now on an extension, is to run out next fall.

A host of items for farmers and fishermen were listed in the speech, written by the cabinet as an introduction to the program intended for this year's parliamentary session.

These items include:

1. Creation of a fund for financing major rural development projects.

2. A program for the purchase, redevelopment and resale of uneconomic farms.

3. Improved crop insurance legislation to cover all farmers.

4. Cash advances for unthreshed grain in years when bad weather prevents full harvesting.

5. A government agency to market livestock feed grain in eastern Canada and British Columbia.

6. Increased capital for the Farm Credit Corp., a lending agency.

7. A development program for commercial fishing.

8. Income support for inshore fishermen in years of catch failure.

Some of them were discussed in the last Parliament and others emerged as government proposals during the 1965 election campaign.

There was no reference anywhere to old age pensions, a prime election issue of the opposition parties. The Conservative and New Democratic parties had pledged a pension increase to $100 monthly from the present $75 and there had been speculation the minority

VIET WAR

7,000 Troops Added by U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — Seven thousand U.S. troops poured into South Viet Nam today to strengthen Saigon's defences against guerrilla attack and to put more muscle in the marine beachhead at Chu Lai, on the central coast.

Although the Viet Cong forces avoided major action in advance of the lunar new year celebrations later this week, guerrilla bands harassed government positions, exploded mines, tossed grenades and ambushed militia platoons. An orphanage was hit in one attack, apparently by mistake.

Political infighting among South Viet Nam's military leaders again raised fears of trouble for the seven-month-old government of Premier Nguyen Cago Ky. He was reported to have told a battalion of army troops at Saigon Airport Monday that "five to 50" generals were seeking to overthrow his regime.

The new arrivals were 4,000 infantrymen from Hawaii and 3,000 marines from Okinawa. They brought total American troop strength in South Viet Nam to 191,000 men.

The Viet Cong before dawn fired mortars at a U.S. military compound in Quang Ngai city 325 miles northeast of Saigon. But the shells fell into a nearby orphanage and a South Vietnamese regimental headquarters. Five children and three civilian caretakers at the orphanage were wounded.

None of the 200 Americans was hurt, but an unofficial report said two South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 14 were wounded.

Other mortars caused light casualties at the government outpost of An Lo, near the northern frontier.

U.S. B-52s bombed suspected Viet Cong camps in Tay Ninh province four miles from the Cambodian border. Other U.S. planes flew 404 combat sorties in the south, hitting Viet Cong hideouts and river craft.

'Tough Line' With Provinces Hinted By PM

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A tougher line with the provinces is going to be taken by Prime Minister Pearson and members of his cabinet during this session of Parliament.

Close associates of the prime minister have alerted members of Parliament to watch for a transformation in the prime minister.

They say he is becoming impatient with representatives of the provinces taking potshots at his administration and this impatience will show up in the discussions in the House.

Indications of his new hardening attitude were heard during speeches the prime minister made in the general election. He voiced his sentiments again Monday on a television broadcast.

MAKE REQUESTS

He said the provinces travel to Ottawa for federal-provincial conferences making requests. The federal government is on the receiving end of the requests and "that puts us on the defensive," he said.

He added, "We want to do everything we can to meet the legitimate requests of the provinces but not at the expense of weakening the federal power within the Constitution."

With a touch of annoyance in his voice, Mr. Pearson told his TV interviewer, "when the provincial representatives overstep the line, and one or two of them have in recent weeks, we tell them to look after their own affairs and not interfere in federal affairs . . . Dynamism is fine, but dynamism turns into dynamite. We can blow up this confederation—I don't want that."

S. Africans Praying For Rain

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—A serious drought brought thousands of South African citizens to their knees today in prayers for rain.

As livestock died by the hundreds of thousands and rich grazing lands were turning into dustoowls, temperatures soared to 110 degrees in the blistering heat wave that has continued since the start of the year.

A government-sponsored national day of prayer brought a nation-wide response. People of all faiths crowded into churches, temples, mosques and office and factory canteens to offer prayers for rain to break the searing drought.

The government imposed severe water restrictions in major centres as reports came in that some towns had only eight weeks supply of water left.

ECM Compromise Studied by France

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — Belgium today proposed a compromise to help end the split between French President Charles de Gaulle and his five European Common Market partners. Gaullist delegates quickly telephoned Paris for advice.

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak suggested to the Common Market ministerial council they go part of the way to meet a de Gaulle demand that France have continued veto power over market decisions.

De Gaulle wants sole veto powers as the price for ending his six-month boycott of the market. He also would strip the organization's executive body of much of its power.

The other members — West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg — have shown little inclination in the present meeting ending today of defying the French leader.

Spaak proposed a three-point plan:

Requiring unanimous consent on all proposals now being considered by the economic community.

Requiring a unanimous vote to overturn past decisions made by ananimous decree.

Requiring that in the future on all issues of "vital interest," the ministerial council must meet and consider a matter four times before approving it on a less than unanimous vote.

FANCY MEETING YOU HERE . . .

Glad-Handers Have Ball

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—For a half-hour today, the Commons actually looked like a friendship society.

There was Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, the man who blasted Conservative Leader Diefenbaker in the last session, as "the biggest separatist in Canada," pumping the hand of a grinning Mr. Diefenbaker. They chatted as though they had suddenly met in a Tokyo railroad station.

Finance Minister Sharp, dubbed by Mr. Diefenbaker at another time as a "bureaucrat" in less-than-complimentary terms, was at the desk of the opposition leader with a magnificent smile. Mr. Diefenbaker jumped to his feet to eagerly greet the visitor from across the green-carpeted aisle.

E. Davie Fulton, the former Conservative justice minister had a grand time making his rounds.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, who normally carries on first-class feuds with his opponents, scarcely missed a hand as he wandered deep in the opposition benches.

"That was the worst game of cribbage I've ever played," he shouted to one Conservative.

Social Credit Leader Thompson moved freely over the floor with his greetings.

New Democratic leader Douglas stayed close to his front-row desk as one member after another came along to see him.

Former Finance Minister Gordon, now a private member, moved from seat to seat in the back rows to greet fellow members before he moved up to his front seat, alongside the elite Cabinet circle.

While everyone was gathered in hand-grasping knots, in strode George Hees, the flashy former Conservative Trade Minister. He made a grand entrance through the main doorway, nattily dressed in a dark blue suit and blue shirt. But he didn't have time to work through his first dozen handshakes before the Commons was called to order.

U.K. ENVOY MAKES GOOF, KICKED OUT

LUSAKA (AP) — The Zambian government said Monday it ordered Britain's deputy high commissioner out of Zambia because his continued presence was considered harmful to British-Zambian relations.

A Zambian source said the diplomat — John Anthony Molyneux—had written a letter to the Commonwealth office in London but it mistakenly was placed into an envelope addressed to the Zambian government. The informant said Zambian officials disliked what they called Molyneux's high-handed manner. Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

Dogs Lose Appetite After Watching TV

PORTLAND (AP) — Television is rough on dogs and parakeets.

The Oregon state board of health Monday warned owners about been too lenient in permitting their dogs to watch television more than an hour a day.

Poodles who watched television three or four hours daily suffered loss of appetite and became highly nervous and snappish.

Quoting a West German study no the television addiction of pets, the board said dogs are the most rabid TV fans.

Birds are a close second. Four or more hours a day of television will give parakeets a high fever, said the board.

Students Press Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of technical and vocational students across Quebec took part in their second day on a protest "strike" today amid reports that university and secondary school students will be asked to walk out of their classrooms in sympathy.

The technical and vocational students stayed away from classes Monday as a protest against the extension of their school year by 2½ weeks, a move which they say will reduce their summer earnings.

One report said 60 at Quebec's 74 trade schools were shut down, but it was impossible to estimate immediately how many of the province's 27,000 technical and vocational students answered the 'strike" call.

Ironsi Recognized

LONDON (AP) — Britain announced today it is maintaining normal diplomatic relations with the Nigerian provisional military government of Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi Ironsi.

TWO FREEZE TO DEATH IN NORTHERN INTERIOR

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — An unidentified woman was frozen to death after the car in which she was riding bogged down in snow 15 miles north of Dawson Creek.

The woman's husband left his wife in the car while he went in search of help after getting stuck in a snowdrift. When he returned, his wife had gone, and her body was found later near their home.

The temperature at Dawson Creek plunged to 25 degrees below zero Monday night with winds of 40 miles an hour.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP)—Robert Wokeley, 25, a resident of the Half-Way Indian reserve 30 miles north of here, was found frozen to death near his home.

Police said today that Wokeley apparently fell over a 50-foot embankment during the weekend and died of exposure.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Out-of-work Victoria salesman Robert Westover was desperate for a job.

So the 23-year-old father of two wrote the Rhodesian government and offered his services as a mercenary soldier. On Saturday he got his reply!

"I am happy to be able to tell you that we are confident that we shall be able to maintain law and order and meet any threat to our security from our own resources, namely, our police and regular and territorial army.

"However, your kind offer of assistance will be borne in mind if circumstances beyond our control cause us to review this attitude."

The letter, signed by a government secretary, said newspaper reports that a mercenary army had been set up were untrue.

Both the letterhead and envelope bore the letters OHMS (On Her Majesty's Service).

Even funnier, at the bottom of the envelope was written: "For a happy holiday . . . Tour Rhodesia and Nyasaland."

"BOBBY" WALKER

Since writing away for the job, Mr. Westover, of 114 Ontario, has landed a safer job as a wolesale bread salesman.

Memories of 44 years ago came back Monday to William Walker, 4060 Glanford, when he saw a picture in the Times of a Derby policeman.

The English bobby was wearing a flashing blue light on his traditional helmet. The light was introduced after one policeman was struck and killed directing traffic a few months ago.

Mr. Walker was a policeman in Derby for two years before coming to Canada after the First World War, and sends his picture to prove it.

Mr. Walker, who served with the Royal Canadian Artillery here for 25 years, now is in charge of the Corps of Commissionaires at historic Fort Rodd Hill and familiar to visitors for his conducted tours.

Modern youngsters see most of their sports on television. They're quite accustomed to seeing a scoring play repeated by a second delayed-action tape procedure.

When one young sports addict went to a "live" game at Memorial Arena for the first time, he told his dad:

"That was a neat goal, Dad—but why didn't they do a replay?"

A pressing problem has been ironed out at HMCS Naden. A coin-operated iron has been installed in a barracks block and for 50 cents it operates for one hour, provided there's a sailor to push it.

The operator must move fast however. The iron takes four minutes to heat and shuts off eight minutes later.

We wonder if there's a business opportunity for a presser at Naden. A steam press would make a uniform tiddley in less than five minutes and so easily there couldn't be much more expense involved.

A Saanich doctor offered Saanich council a prescription for beautifying the bare Vernon Avenue side of the new Municipal Hall. Dr. Roy Spotherland sent council $10 and suggested that 100 other residents should also contribute plants. Council said "no thanks" and returned his money, saying the task of planting grass and shrubs already is underway.

But it must have seemed a nice change from letters from ratepayers who complain about "frills" in civic budgets.

Victoria writer Gwen Cash went to memorial services for India's Prime Minister Shastri at Sikh Temple here last week. She came away convinced that Victoria Sikhs might live here but their hearts are in their homeland. Throughout the service they referred to the late Indian leader as "our beloved prime minister."

Fireman Dreamed Of Glory

GLASGOW, Scotland (CP) — Factory fireman Mike Rodger, driven by boredom and dreams of glory to set his own fires, was jailed for a year here after his last blaze got out of hand and caused £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) damage.

Rodger, 24, a member of the fire-fighting unit at the Rolls-Royce aero-engine plant here, pleaded guilty in sheriff's court to "wilful fire-raising"—arson in the shape of two small fires that Rodger quickly doused and a third that got out of control.

"He had thought he was in a job which had glamor," lawyer A. Munro Armit told the court. "Instead, he found himself dressed up to fight fires that never happened.

"So he had the idea of starting fires and putting them out by himself. This not only gave him something to do but made him look efficient and slightly heroic."

ALL FAMILY WATCHING AS SON AXES FATHER

WUPPERTAL, Germany (UPI)—A Greek family sentenced their father to death and then watched while a son carried out the execution with an axe, city prosecutors said Monday.

The prosecutors said the grandmother, wife, two young daughters and the son of 41-year-old Salonika-born Milikiadis Vlachos decided Sunday night he should die for allegedly seducing the son's wife.

Then, the prosecutors said, the whole family stood in the doorway of the bedroom where Vlachos lay sleeping and watched while the son killed him with an axe.

The son, 22-year-old Jahannis Vlachos, gave himself up to police after the killing, saying, "I had to revenge my wife," the prosecutors said.

One-Day Truce Called On House Rule Hassle

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Agreement has been reached among the political parties to avoid a rumpus in the Commons on the opening day today of the first session of the 27th Parliament.

Government House leader George McIlraith held a series of meetings with representatives of the other parties. He did not have one general meeting but met the various house leaders separately Monday to try to reach agreement to avoid a hassle in the house.

The best he could come up with was an undertaking from the Progressive Conservatives that they would not cause chaos on opening day. But Wednesday comes the question of how long a period is to be devoted to asking questions. Under the new rules that the government wants made applicable to this Parliament there would be only a 30-minute period for questions.

Mr. McIlraith will try for an all-party agreement later Tuesday or early Wednesday on the rules that will apply in this session. Meantime for the opening day there is an uneasy truce.

. . . THRONE SPEECH

Liberal government might adopt the idea.

Prime Minister Pearson's plan for a major shuffle of federal departments, announced in December with a list of cabinet changes, will be presented in legislative form.

New departments will be created to handle manpower policies, forestry and rural development, Indian affairs and national resources, business legislation and the combined field of energy, mines and resources.

An emphasis on new manpower programs, most of them already announced, was forecast.

There will be a "vigorous program" of job - training to raise the skills of the unemployed and those in low-skilled work. Training allowances will be increased.

Economic policies will be aimed at continuing the present upswing in national prosperity while battling against "excessive costs and prices which would endanger the stability of our economy."

The policy of delaying federal construction projects in areas where the construction industry is under heavy pressure from private building will be continued.

Tax incentives to encourage industrial research will be increased.

Legislation to modernize the railway industry has been modified since original introduction of the Railway Bill in late 1964 and will be introduced this year. Action in this area has been pending ever since the report of the MacPherson royal commission in 1961.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS IN FORE

In the field of foreign affairs, the government signalled its intention to increase its external aid programs and seek Canadian participation in the Asian development bank with an initial contribution of $25,000,000.

Only defence item was a proposal to amend the National Defence Act to legalize the further integration of the armed forces into a joint headquarters command.

There will be a new effort to work out an arrangement under which amendments to the British North America Act—the Canadian constitution — can be made in Canada, without going to the British Parliament.

Steps also will be taken to declare O Canada the national anthem and God Save the Queen the royal anthem, another thing the previous Parliament didn't get time to do.

The Canada assistance plan, bringing together all federal-provincial welfare programs and adding some new fields to it, will be introduced. This already has been worked out with the provinces.

Speed-Up Expected On School

Postponement of plans for a junior college in Greater Victoria will likely hasten establishment of an adult education centre here.

The postponement was announced Monday night by Lloyd Clarkson, chairman of the adult education committee of the school board.

He said the department of education has called a halt on construction of junior colleges until three existing ones in the province have been in operation for some time and their programs have ben evaluated.

The school board had hoped to establish a junior college that would include an adult education centre. At the same time the board did not want to duplicate any programs offered by the University of Victoria.

Mr. Clarkson said the education department insisted that a junior college must offer first and second-year university courses.

OVERLAP UVIC

He said this effectively killed the prospect of a college here because such an institution would offer day courses in high school subjects.

Superintendent John Gough said he has inquired about the cost of leasing a building on the university's Landsdowne campus for use for adult education.

The school board will move its offices to the Lansdowne campus when all university facilities are transferred to the Gordon Head campus in the fall of this year.

Aberhart Rites To Be Attended By Martin

Health Minister Eric Martin will represent his cabinet colleagues Wednesday when the body of Mrs. William Aberhart is buried in Vancouver beside that of the founder of Social Credit in Canada.

Mrs. Aberhart died Thursday in Calgary, where some 200 persons, including Alberta government officials and Social Credit League officials, attended the funeral service.

Her body was flown to Vancouver Monday night so it could be buried beside her husband's grave in Forest Lawn Cemetery where Mr. Aberhart was buried in 1943.

Mr. Martin, who helped organize Social Credit in British Columbia in 1945 and traces his connection with the Social Credit movement back to 1932 when it started in Alberta, will be an official representative of the party's elected members.

Heath Critic Resigns Tory Post

LONDON (Reuters) — Angus Maude resigned today as the Conservative opposition party's spokesman on colonial affairs after a row over two articles he wrote attacking Edward Heath's leadership.

His resignation was announced as demands grew within the party for Heath to sack him.

Maude, 53, brought into the open criticism of Heath's leadership and new Conservative policies hammered out under Heath's direction. His articles branded the party's role in opposition as ineffective and irrelevant.

They sparked off a series of counter-attacks from other top Conservatives and left the party open to an attack last weekend by Prime Minister Harold Wilson who called it a split opposition unable to provide a credible alternative government.

Heath returned from a Far East tour last week to find a storm developing over Maude's articles. He delivered a public rebuke during a television interview and urged Conservatives to attack the Labor government instead of their own party.

In a statement announcing his resignation, Maude indicated that he will continue his "revolt" as a backbencher after Parliament returns from its Christmas recess next week.

Maude was given his post as "shadow" colonial secretary by Heath last October.

Official Seized By Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong kidnapped an American civilian official Monday outside the village of Trung Lap, about 25 miles north of Saigon, and marched him into the jungle.

The missing man is Douglas Ramsey, 28, of Boulder City, Nev., a member of the U.S. mission for the area.

RECOMMENDATION SYSTEM EXTENDED

Up to 60 per cent of students in grades 8, 9 and 10 in Greater Victoria schools may be recommended for promotion to the next higher grade.

This was announced at a school board meeting Monday night by John Gough, schools superintendent.

Grades 11 and 12 now operate under the recommendation system and it is being extended to the lower grades. Mr. Gough said no more than 60 per cent of the students in a class may be recommended.

The recommendation will cover the entire work of a student over the school year. Secondary school students write exams on 21 out of the 190 days in a school year, and educators think this time can be put to better use.

Catholic Priest Invited to Abbey

LONDON (Reuters)—A Roman Catholic priest will preach in Westminster Abbey for the first time since 1570 when the Pope excommunicated Britain's Queen Elizabeth I.

Jesuit Father Thomas Corbishley will speak Friday during Unity Octave Week, an annual event devoted to Christian unity.

Until about a year ago there was a ban on Roman Catholics participating in services with other Christians in Britain.

The Abbey, one of the greatest churches in Christendom, is the national shrine where the sovereign is crowned and undertakes by law to uphold the Protestant faith.

The sovereign became temporal head of the Anglican Church after its break with Rome.

The end of the tradition, following improved relations between the churches, comes in the Abbey's 900th anniversary year.

Father Corbishley has appeared in the pulpits of other Anglican churches but he says "The Abbey . . . there's something special about it."

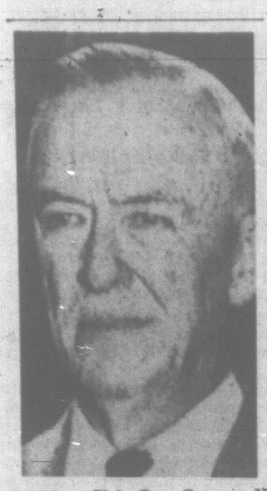
'RELUCTANT' STRONGMAN TAKES OVER

Ironsi Plans Crackdown To End Nigerian Chaos



DEAD at 79 is Gen. Courney H. Hodges, commander of the U.S. First Army that drove through France and Germany in Second World War. He died Sunday at San Antonio, Tex.

LAGOS (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Aguiyi Ironsi, Nigeria's new military ruler, says he will end disorders in this West African nation and will impose martial law if necessary.

Ironsi told a press conference Monday at his heavily-guarded headquarters that he will have a committee draw up a new constitution and will hold national elections when the constitution is completed.

"I am a soldier and it has never been my ambition to meddle in politics," said the 41-year-old military chief who took over power Sunday after announcing that an attempted coup had been smashed.

"It was my intention only to crush the revolt by military means, but then I discovered the rebel elements did not want to fight. I was informed the people of Nigeria wanted a military government and wanted the army to take over to avoid further bloodshed."

An official statement said the functions of the federal government would be exercised by a supreme military council, but that permanent civil service chiefs in charge of federal ministries would continue in office.

The statement said a military government would be set up in each of the country's four regions, under a military governor who would be assisted as adviser by the former civilian regional governor.

The coup attempt came after three months of rioting in Nigeria's Western Region in which more than 100 persons have been killed. The violence began last October after Chief Samuel I. Akintola was re-elected provincial premier.

Akintola's opponent charged the balloting was rigged and claimed that federal prime minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, was involved.

BOSSES KILLED

The rebels are reported to have killed Akintola and Sir Ahmadu Bello, premier of the Northern Region and the country's most powerful political boss. Opponents of Akintola have nearly paralysed the Western Region with an orgy of murder, arson and looting.

Gen. Ironsi said the coup was organized by lower-rank officers and he had no advance knowledge of it.

He said his troops were still searching for Balewa and Finance Minister Festus Okotie-eboh, who were kidnapped during the revolt. Rebel remnants are believed holding them hostage in eastern Nigeria.

British authorities said in London they received confirmation Monday night that resistance in the country's big northern province had collapsed after the rebels had shot and killed Bello, his senior wife and a five-man bodyguard.

In Kaduna, capital of the Northern Region, Maj. Chukwuma Kaduna Nzugwu, leader of the revolt in that area, told a press conference he had sent Gen. Ironsi a message of capitulation pledging his loyalty.

NIGERIANS HAPPY

The army's takeover of power—at the invitation of the country's political leaders—and its suspension of all political offices was hailed by many ordinary Nigerians who took to the streets Monday, joyfully singing and dancing.

Officials in London indicated Britain will hold up recognition of the new military regime until it learns the attitude of Nigeria's national police force of 50,000 men. The army totals only 8,000.

Nigerian President Azikiwe Nnamdi, 61, convalescing in London from an operation, said he will wait until called home either by the federal government or the new military regime.

Ironsi suspended the president along with other top civilian officials when he took power.

Ghana meanwhile accorded full recognition to Ironsi's regime and expressed confidence it will work out a solution.

Apartheid To Get Vote Test

CAPE TOWN (Reuters) — A federal election set for March 30 will strengthen support for South Africa's apartheid (racial separation) policy, observers predicted here today.

They forecast the election, announced Monday night by Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, would result in an overwhelming victory for his apartheid-backing National party.

The multi-racial-program Progressive party was expected to face a hard battle to retain its sole representative in the 156-seat House of Assembly (lower house).

Apart from Mrs. Suzman, the National party has 105 seats and the United party of Sir Villiers Graaff has 50.

As a result of recent changes in electoral districts, the new Parliament will have 160 seats.

Verwoerd has headed the National party since August, 1958, shortly after it was returned to power with increased parliamentary and popular support.

Again in 1961, in the first general election after South Africa became a republic, the Nationalists increased their representation from 102 seats to 105.

The Nationalists again showed a uniform picture of gains throughout the country in provincial elections in March, 1965.

LESAGE

'Pearson Pledged To Quit'

CHURCHBRIDGE, Sask. (CP)—The editor of a weekly newspaper published here said Monday Jack Kreiser, defeated Liberal candidate in the Nov. 8 federal election, was present at a recent Ottawa meeting at which Prime Minister Pearson promised to retire before the next general election.

Jack Robert, editor of the Prairie Plains Progress, said Mr. Kreiser, defeated candidate in Melville constituency, gave him a handwritten statement saying Mr. Pearson would step down before the next general election unless the Liberal party was defeated quickly in the Commons.

Mr. Robert said Mr. Kreiser made his statement first in an interview. He quoted Mr. Kreiser as saying Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene was among those present at the meeting in Ottawa.

Churchbridge is about 120 miles east of Regina.

'NOT THIRSTY FOR POWER'

Lesage Rules Out Move To Become Canada PM

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec Monday denied any intention of entering federal politics—or even of staying in the provincial arena beyond "a very limited number of years."

"I am not thirsty for power," he said. "I plan to go along for a very limited number of years in my present capacity and then go back to law practice."

Mr. Lesage said he did not occupy the post of premier because he wanted it. He was without family life, friends, time for relaxation and especially without time to devote himself to intellectual pursuits.

Questioned by students in Montreal, he said that when he retires as premier it will not be in favor of a career in federal politics.

During the day, he addressed students at the French-language University of Montreal, where he was received with some hostility, and at Sir George Williams University.

GREETED BY PICKETS

He was met at the University of Montreal by pickets favoring the "strike" Monday of many of Quebec's 27,000 technical and vocational students and later he met with a delegation of their leaders.

University of Montreal students posed sharp questions about the Liberal government's 1960 promise of free education, asking why this promise had not yet been put into effect.

Mr. Lesage replied that his go-slow policy was in operation because a projection of revenue needs which would include introduction of free education at all levels shows that direct tax revenue, taking into account normal growth, would be inadequate.

Mr. Lesage also denied the possibility of French unilingualism in the province, although he said French already is a priority language in Quebec.

He said he intends to make sure that persons have the right to education in the language of their choice. There was no question of denying English-speaking Quebecers the rights which French - speaking Canadians are asking for in other provinces.

Official Rules Out Unilingual Quebec

WINNIPEG (CP) — George Marler, government leader in the Quebec upper house, said today that a program introducing unilingualism in Quebec and an associate status for the province would be harmful to French Canadians.

Speaking at a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club, Mr. Marler, who is on an 11-day tour of West, said:

". . . Nothing can place individual French Canadians at a greater disadvantage than being unilingual on a continent where they are surrounded by 200,000,000 speaking English and carrying on their business and daily life in that language.

"I see no need for French Canadians to abandon their language and culture—for the possession of two languages is something to be prized but I ask: Can they afford to speak one language only? And the same may be said of the minority in Quebec."

Mr. Marler, who is on tour to present to Western Canada an English - speaking, Quebec resident's point of view on developments in French Canada, said he found the concept of associate state status for Quebec unacceptable.

WOULD BE DISASTROUS

". . . Such an arrangement could lead nowhere but to the separation of Quebec from the rest of Canada, which, I am convinced, would be disastrous for everyone."

He said, however, that those who advocate unilingualism and associate status are few in number and are unlikely to win their case because of "the innate commonsense of the mass of the people of Quebec . . ."

New Doctor Strike Feared in Belgium

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Belgium today faced the threat of a repetition of the doctors strike that shocked the country in 1964.

The dispute this time is over a decision by the doctors last week to increase their fees unilaterally by 25 per cent. The government declared Monday night this violates the agreement reached after the first strike.

Prime Minister Pierre Harmel, supported by Socialist and Social Christian (Roman Catholic) labor unions, told the doctors Monday night the 25-per-cent increase is illegal.

But to stave off a new national calamity, the government agreed to consider a 10-per-cent increase in fees. The doctors turned down the compromise.

A doctors' spokesman said the system of "telephonic pyramids," developed in preparation for the first strike, had gone into operation.

This means each strike leader rings up five doctors, each of the five rings up another five, and so on. In 1964 almost all of Belgium's 5,000 doctors revolted overnight.

Last time the next step was for hundreds of doctors to begin "Operation Suitcase" — pack and head for the nearest frontier to avoid being drafted into service by the government.

Reports from Liege province said some doctors already had been ordered to start the operation.

NOT U.S. ERRAND BOY

'We Must Be Independent'

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) Canada can help the United States in foreign affairs in many ways, but only if it continues not to conform with U.S foreign policy, a former Canadian diplomat said Monday night.

"We're under constant suspicion of being your agents," said John W. Holmes, president of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

"The Canadian (member of the International Control Commission for Viet Nam) is the only Westerner who travels regularly between Saigon and Hanoi," Holmes told a Canadian-American seminar at Michigan State University. "We shouldn't be considered an errand boy of Washington."

"Our feeling is that the most useful thing Canada can do is stick it out on this commission," he said. "If there are negotiations, then the ICC may be of some use."

Holmes said Canada hasn't pretended neutrality in the Viet Nam war, "but we have to maintain a judicial attitude."

As a "middle power," Canada can handle a number of roles which the United States cannot, he added.

It can help in brushfire conflicts, such as in Cyprus, where one of the great powers cannot intervene without danger of another stepping in, too, Holmes said.

He said it also can "run interference" for the United States, testing reaction to various foreign policy ideas without the United States having to commit itself.

"If the ideas are slapped down, our middle power pride is not hurt," he said.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Canadians Versus Criminals

IT IS NOT NEWS TO CANAdians that organized crime has made inroads in this country. But it is a cause of deep concern to learn in an RCMP report that operations of gangs linked with the Mafia racketeers of the United States are still increasing. It should be a cause of more than concern—of nothing less than a national determination to wipe out this criminal cancer—to be told that it is flourishing because of political corruption, fear and inefficient law enforcement.

Organized crime on this continent has almost reached the point of a second social order within our civilization. It takes a toll of many millions of dollars a year, not merely through losses due to drug traffic, prostitution, gambling, theft and violence, but through the many ramifications of underworld activity that have become the new vehicle of the twentieth-century bandits.

Large-scale crime now extends into legitimate businesses, which are used as a front for the top echelon of gangsterism and through monopoly and terrorism are manipulated for the benefit of the underworld.

It is an axiom of law enforcement that large-scale crime cannot long prosper without inefficient police work, or the corruption of political or enforcement officials. Where police work is hampered by inadequate training, poor equipment or poor co-operation between the various forces; where persons in positions of public trust sell their honor for gangsters' bribes, there crime flourishes.

But back of these factors lies the public's attitude. If the public is lethargic and content to let itself be cheated by its servants, or if it will not provide the funds to fight crime on an efficient basis, then it will suffer the tyranny of hoodlums and the enormous expense of their depradations. Where the public is alive to the danger, and determined to destroy every criminal and every public stooge who works for the underworld, then the country can be freed of the burden of these parasites.

Canada is now faced with this decision. Canadians will get the type and standard of public service and the degree of law-enforcement which we insistently demand. We have been shown once more the danger that confronts us. There can be only one answer if we are to preserve a society worth living in.

Sweet and Sour

THE CUTBACK IN THE FEDeral shipbuilding subsidy from 35 to 25 per cent and withdrawal of all subsidies for ships built for federal and provincial governments will no doubt cause some dislocation in British Columbia shipyards. But at this advanced stage in their development it should not be disastrous.

The Ottawa move announced by Transport Minister Pickersgill cannot be criticized in principle. The shipbuilding subsidy in effect prior to suspension of the program last February amounted to a tariff of 40 per cent on ships. Even at the declining rate of two per cent per year until a rate of 17 per cent is reached in 1972 it will then be stabilized at an effective tariff of 20 per cent.

In theory, at least, the justification for high subsidies to industry, or high protectionist tariffs, is to allow an infant industry a chance to become established. Unfortunately, industries in receipt of this type of protection too often fail to reach the point where the protection can be withdrawn and it remains as a burden on the taxpayer for years. In the case of the shipyards of British Columbia this should not be so. In the last few years particularly they have modernized their skills and machinery and have branched out successfully into other industrial and engineering fields. And they will remain on the same footing as their eastern Canadian competition in regard to government subsidies.

It is inevitable that the provincial government should feel dissatisfaction over withdrawal of subsidies on ships built for governments. Under the previous plan, Premier Bennett was able to build up the largest government ferry fleet in the world with one-third of the cost carried by all the people of Canada. It was a tremendous bargain and the premier astutely took advantage of it to the point where the ferry service's need for ships has been largely filled for a considerable number of years to come. Would it not, perhaps, be a little unrealistic to expect that all the people of Canada should contribute through federal taxes to the cost of building vessels to serve this province?

The Better Prepared Student

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE UNIversity of Saskatchewan offers the interesting speculation that the university's decision to refuse entry to its courses to high school graduates with averages lower than 65 per cent may be paying off.

Supporting the case, he cites the results of the recent Christmas examinations. Eight to 10 per cent of the students on the campus failed in three or more tests, he says. Prior to raising entrance qualifications, the previous year's rate ran from 18 to 20 per cent.

The University of Saskatchewan spokesman makes no dogmatic pronouncements on the results indicated in the recent examinations. The implication is left, however, that by cutting off the lower group of high school graduates, the university has achieved a significant benefit and is establishing a better record.

This might properly be expected. Assuming that final examinations define the abilities of the students who take them, the university in question is apparently weeding out doubtful material.

There is, however, a general conviction that factors other than higher admission standards are playing a part in producing a more promising undergraduate.

In British Columbia, for instance, more and more high school students are finding avenues of graduation not leading directly to university or academic pursuits. Greater opportunity is now being provided at the high school level to pursue studies toward other goals than a university degree. This streaming process helps to encourage the student to concentrate on courses which seem to suit his individual aptitudes and does not make so sharp a distinction between what used to be called the bright and the dull boy in class.

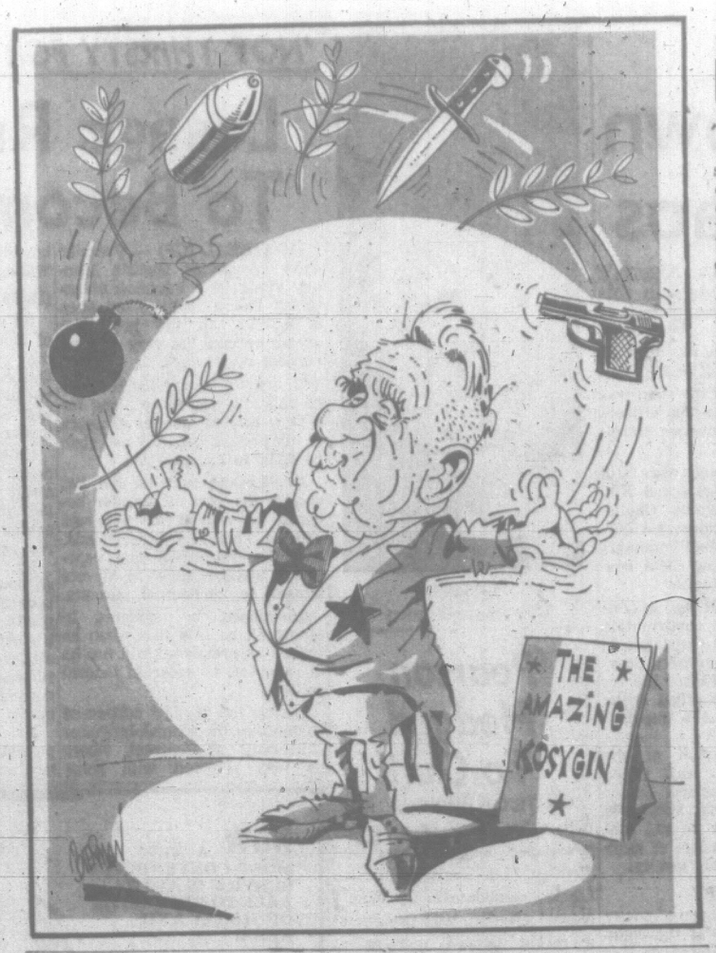
Moreover, there is a growing appreciation by parents of the differences existing in individual children and a desire to see them directed toward instruction adapted to their abilities. The pressure to push them into university, regardless of their capacities, is diminishing. Such, at least, appears to be the experience in this province.

As a consequence, the students going to university are better endowed by nature for the type of work they undertake there.

It is to the credit of the high schools that the preparation of such students seems to be better than it was a decade or so ago, as is the secondary school preparation of students who are headed for other fields of post-high school education or training.

These are elements in today's education which may also be shaping better students at the university, keeping square pegs out of round holes and generally reflecting a more enlightened attitude in the elementary and secondary schools.

Raising entrance standards should, of course, weed out the weaker students—and probably is paying dividends at Saskatchewan, as it should through the reduction of failures. It is gratifying, on the other hand, to assume that improved screening now is not only making a better potential university student, but is also providing opportunity for development among those not suited for the strictly academic career.



FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Mr. Greene and the CPR

IN HIS initial venture in railroading, Mr. Joe Greene, the minister of agriculture, seems to have switched himself on to the wrong track. There are two things to be said for Mr Greene. He is right to be concerned about anything which holds up the movement of goods, especially when the food in this case is destined for Indian famine relief. Moreover, his readiness to refer the complaints which he heard on his western tour to the responsible minister, Mr. J. W. Pickersgill, is altogether to his credit.

Western

At this point, however, confusion sets in. For, on the one hand, he insists that it would "take a braver and brighter man than I am to tell Mr. Pickersgill what to do and how to do it." On the other hand, he publicly analyses the problem and reads the riot act to one of the railways.

Box Car Issue

There is a slight difference in accounts of Mr. Greene's Saskatoon press conference. According to one version, he was up in arms about box cars; according to a more cautious account, he was upset by a presumably more general "shortage of rail transport." In any case, the situation reminded the minister of the stone age and he was in no doubt that the CPR was the guilty party.

Nor was this all. Mr. Greene has never had any sympathy with the position taken by the CPR on rail line abandonment or on box cars. The latter is a "purely economic matter," a question of how to make the most dollars—by hauling in Canada or renting to American lines to move American products.

Having received fantastic monopoly and ancillary benefits in early days on condition of a limitation on its profit position, the CPR's first duty is to the public and the company "can't cry profits first and the public rights later." Not, says Mr. Greene, unless it is prepared to give up its oil revenues and other benefits conferred by the original grants.

The minister appears to have missed a few points.

Diversion Doubtful

Mr. Pickersgill will no doubt wish to assure himself in the first place that there has been a significant diversion of box cars to the United States. From tentative inquiries here, this seems doubtful.

There has been an undoubted shortage of diesels. But it is curious that the CPR should be blamed for this. It was a reason (although not the only one) why the CPR sought to discontinue the Dominion on September 7. As a result of protests, the Board of Transport Commissioners intervened. At the very beginning of the hearings, however, the CPR unsuccessfully sought to secure approval of immediate discontinuance, subject to renewal by the board, in order to use the diesels in the grain movement. It was supported, incidentally, by Mr. Parker, president of the Manitoba Pool Elevators and vice-president of Canadian Wheat Producers, by Mr. Driscol of the UGG and by Mr. A. C. Leach, appearing as chairman of the executive committee of North West Line Elevators.

In the end the board found in favor of the CPR but four months were lost.

Mr. Greene's more general arguments are, of course, familiar. The point is that they were argued at great length and with notable ability before the MacPherson Royal Commission, the last commission to report on the railways. They were not accepted by the commissioners. Mr. Greene is in the position of a parliamentarian who seeks to re-open a debate after the division of the house.

No Repudiation

There is a further point. The government has never repudiated the commission. On the contrary, it pays annual subsidies to the railways allegedly (although very dubiously) related to the MacPherson recommendations. Moreover, it introduced, although it failed to get through Parliament, legislation based generally on the report.

It would seem very strange to blame Canadian Pacific for attempting—much more strenuously than the present government or its predecessor—to implement the recommendations of a royal commission.

In rejecting the argument about other assets (volume 2, pages 72-74) the commission was guided primarily by economic considerations, holding that "the use of other assets in establishing rail rates would distort the complete environment and for this reason alone would cause us to recommend that other assets not be considered." Mr. Greene did not apparently go into rates, proposing that assets should be used to subsidize rail operations in another way, but this distinction is not important for the argument.

To Get Line Built

The commission also rejected the historical case. Its finding was simply that "grants were made to get the railway built." The report adds: "To suggest that the grants were to be used perpetually as revenue in the same fashion as revenue from rates is to suggest that the private railway builders were to act as custodians of the land grants and return to the nation, by way of the rate structure, all but an acceptable rate of return as a commission for the administration of these natural resources."

This was not the case with other persons receiving land grants, including mineral rights. In any event the nation had other ways of recapturing a portion of the return from natural resources through income tax and royalties.

What the commission said about rail abandonment is too well known to require comment. It was extremely emphatic, going so far as to say that nothing in the procedures for rationalization should inhibit the railways even from abandoning profitable portions of their systems where essentially duplicate facilities exist.

The fact is that the taxpayers are still paying heavily for railway subsidies and no end is in sight. We are, in fact, about five years behind because of the inaction of government. Mr. Greene is properly concerned about the railway situation but it is not at all evident from his comments in Saskatoon that he has got the right message for Mr. Pickersgill.

Looking Back

From The Times of Jan. 18, 1906:

Victoria Golf Club has decided to purchase the Oak Bay Golf Links and the thirty acres adjoining. It is expected the acquisition will provide the Victoria club with a course second to none on the Pacific coast.

There is also reason to believe the CPR is on the lookout for links property which will be a valuable addition to the splendid hotel soon to be erected on the James Bay flats. It is not improbable that the property owned by the Hudson's Bay at Cadboro Bay will be inspected by the CPR with a view to purchase.

FROM WASHINGTON — By WALTER LIPPMANN

Danger in Old Stereotypes

THE almost inveterate tedency to fight again the battles of the last war has shown itself again in the guns-versus-butter comment on the President's message. In the two world wars each belligerent, including even the United States, had to reduce and ration civilian consumption in order to have the materials and the labor to produce the munitions of war. This is not, at least not yet, the United States problem in the Vietnamese war.

Lippmann

For the American economy is so enormously big, and relative to it the war is still so small, that the war can be conducted without any reduction in the existing standard of living. What is not currently possible is any significant improvement in the general standard of living. Otherwise there is every prospect of an inflationary boom.

To Remake Environment

But this is not the crux of the problem which confronts us. The problem today is not whether the standard of life goes up or down a bit. Our problem is to rebuild and remake the environment of our increasingly urbanized society. The solution of that problem cannot be suspended as we suspended reform and development in all the other wars of this century. And that is why the old guns-versus-butter stereotype masks the real problem of our day.

As I read the President's address, it seemed to me that he was oversimplifying and masking the real issue by referring to the internal development and reform as a kind of charity for the poor. Cannot this great nation afford to be charitable to the poor? This entails a radical misconception of what is involved in the so-called Great Society. What is involved is a good deal more than charity to the poor. There is involved the epochal task off remaking the physical structure of American society in order to make it habitable by a radically changing population.

Task for Brains

This will take a great deal of money. But it will also demand a vast application of brains, and a passionate concentration of attention and interest in the unsolved problems of the new American society. New York City has just had several ominous signs of how vulnerable existing society is—the water shortage, the newspaper strike, the power failure, the transit strike. Los Angeles has had the Watts riots, and in so many places the pollution of water and air are reminders that we are confronted with something greater and essentially different than we were in the other wars.

On paper and with a certain amount of financial finagling, it can be made to appear that the war in Viet Nam and the renewal at home can be carried on simultaneously. But in truth, as men are actually made, it is impossible for a people to keep going at the same time two such vastly different operations. War, with its horror and its fascination, is to internal reform and development as a public execution is to a Parents' and Teachers' meeting.

Arrested Development

That is why in every war of this century the internal movement of reform and development has been stopped and scattered by war. The First World War did that to Theodore Roosevelt's Progressivism and Wilson's New Freedom. The Second World War did it to the New Deal. The Korean war did it to Truman's Fair Deal, and the Americanization of the Vietnamese war in 1965 is now doing that to Johnson's Great Society.

The guns-versus-butter stereotype masks, I repeat, the reality as we confront it today. Most of us could easily give up some butter, and perhaps be the better for it. But what we cannot give up is the modernization of the edifice in which an ever increasing part of the nation dwells. For the edifice is bursting at the seams and is falling apart.

What we need, I submit, is an anti-stereotype. We should remember the cavalry generals who did not like the tanks, we should remember the builders of the Maginot Line, and the brass who would not believe in airplanes, and their successors who can believe in nothing else.

Anti-Stereotypes

For the conduct of war and diplomacy, it is most important to cultivate anti-stereotypes to protect us from resorting to decaying and dead patterns of conduct. The appeasement of Hitler which culminated at Munich was the work of Englishmen and Frenchmen who could not believe that the Chancellor of Germany was a monster like Hitler. The frightful consequences of appeasing Hitler left behind them in the minds of men the great Munich stereotype. In the grip of this stereotype a British prime minister felt compelled to think that Suez was the Rhineland and Nasser was Hitler.

Mr. Dean Rusk is the current user of the Munich stereotype, possessed with the notion that in the divided territory of Viet Nam there is being re-enacted once again the drama of Munich. That drama was not re-enacted at Suez. It is not being re-enacted at Saigon. For the world does change, and while the past is indeed prelude, the prelude is not the show itself.

LISTING CANDIDATES — By GUY WINT

Next Leader of India

INDIA'S new Prime Minister will be chosen by the Congress of both Houses of the Indian Parliament in New Delhi. There will be long consultations and the result of any poll may not be known immediately. Mr. Shastri was adopted unanimously, but this will not necessarily be the case again.

The choice will be made in an atmosphere created by the war with Pakistan. The mood of most of Congress will be to find a leader who is (1) Nationalist, and supports thoroughly the Hindu cause; (2) young and vigorous and unlikely to confront India with another crisis from falling prematurely ill.

The considerations which would have weighed five years ago are no longer so weighty. The consideration of whether a leader is slightly more Left or slightly more Right has ceased to have its former importance.

Thus far a figure to which attention may first turn to Chavan. As Minister of Defence he has been associated with India's war policy; he is a Maratha, a race to which Hindu India has turned throughout history for leadership against the Muslims; he gives the impression of being young and vigorous (though, in fact, he had a rather bad heart condition a few years ago), he is on fairly good terms with the generals; he had a good record in the Indian Freedom struggle.

Nationalism Crucial

Indian nationalism is of course directed as much against the Chinese as against the Muslims, and an acceptable candidate must offer hope of leadership against both.

Against Chavan's candidature there are likely to be especial aims of various individuals. Nanda, who is acting Prime Minister, will gain sympathy from twice having acted as Prime Minister (he was so after Nehru), and in the eyes of some Congressmen it may seem unkind to disappoint him a second time. Nanda, however, is not regarded as extremely intelligent by the more sophisticated Congressmen.

Moraji Desai was the most formidable rival to Shastri in 1964, and may still seem the surest champion of the right wing. But he has the weakness of being out of the Cabinet. He is likely to make a strong final bid for power but is heavily handicapped, not least because he is nearly an old man. The Nehru faction may put forward the name of his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, but the age of Nehru is definitely over. He was the age of internationalism, of concentration upon economics, of a mildly left-wing approach. That has been left behind.

The temper in Congress today is that of the Jan Sangh, the right-wing party of the Hindu. Admittedly no Jan Sangh leader could possibly become Prime Minister. The party has neither the members nor the organization. But its ideas have pervaded Congress.

The possibility of Radhakrishnan, the President, becoming Prime Minister—on the lines followed in Pakistan after the assassination of Liaquat Ali Kahn—may be ruled out. The President is too old and his health is too bad.

The generals are certain to have a strong influence. Their prestige is rising. But they are unlikely to propose a government through a military junta or a dictatorship of civil servants. This may come in a year or two, but they are not yet ready, and there is no personality among them to eclipse Congress.

Kingmaker Mentioned

A possibility remains—the Congress President, Kamaraj Natar, the man who was the kingmaker after the death of Nehru. He was kingmaker then, and did not aspire to be king, because he, as a Madrasi, could not muster strength enough in the north. He has been a considerable figure, but the impression has grown that, like other figures, he belongs to 1964, not to 1966.

It is interesting to note the effects of the crisis upon the standing of Jai Drakash Narain. He must have lost ground greatly by his critical line over the dispute with Pakistan. His stock is extremely low with Congressmen. My hunch is that outside Congress he still possesses a surprisingly high prestige. But he has no chance of the Prime Ministership.

There is a bare chance of an outsider among Congressmen succeeding. This might be a possibility if none of the established figures proves acceptable. A man like S. K. Patel might be considered. The odds against such a choice are very long indeed, and it is not in the nature of Indian politics to give the leadership to very long odds.

As politics develop in India, the role of the Prime Minister is increasingly to hold together, to mediate between the mass of regional interests and the huge Federation. This point must be extremely obvious in the choice of a candidate. But at the moment the national interests are so acute, and defence and foreign policy problems so predominant, that they are likely to make the present election a peculiar and unusual affair.

Letters to the Editor

Symphony Support

The recent announcement that Otto-Werner Mueller has decided to stay another season as conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra will be gratifying to the many supporters of the Symphony Society. Furthermore, the president and board of directors are to be congratulated in having Mr. Mueller with them another season, especially as this is the 25th anniversary of the Symphony Society.

It will also give the board of directors the opportunity to spread their wings and raise their sights in the further development of the Symphony Society through the public relations committee and thereby bring further pressure on the community in showing what an outstanding asset they possess for a population so small as 150,000.

Then again the writer is of the opinion that if a public meeting were called of the many supporters and their friends before the end of the concert season it should contribute a wider interest in the success of the Victoria Symphony Society.

Flowers For Hilda and Jack

The nicest columns published by Victoria Daily Times are those of Hilda and Jack Beastall in my opinion.

Both seem always impartial, don't bore readers by subjectivity, and every word seems as if for genuinely wanting readers profiting by advice they offer.

I telephoned their home once for information about Caragana, or Siberian Pea Tree. Mr. Beastall was courteously conversational about the information I asked for—Mrs. K. Ash, 2850 Sooke.

House Looks the Same But Much Has Changed

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—There's an eerie feeling about the new Parliament, a feeling that time has stood still, that nothing has changed.

Waring

The same leaders in their same positions face one another across the same green carpeted floor, with practically the same back-up support from MPs ranked behind them. On the surface, Nov. 8 might never have happened.

But of course time hasn't stood still. Instead, it has marched rapidly on for the two implacable political foes who dominate Parliament, Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative leader Diefenbaker. Both are in the ninth inning of their political careers; neither is likely to get—or take—another turn at bat.

Not unconnected with this fact is the presence of a few familiar new faces: Davie Fulton, George Hees, Robert Winters. They indicate a great undercurrent in this session, a rivalry for individual position and prestige as a jumping-off point for both Liberal and Conservative leadership races.

But because the election decided nothing, the main characteristic of the Commons is still the delicate balance of power. On paper the opposition has a four-vote edge, 134 to 130—the 265th MP, the House Speaker, having no vote except in a tie. But the opposition edge is so small that, in any no-quarter confrontation between government and opposition, the normal incidence of absence and illness could tip the vote either way.

While the Liberals are sitting on a powder keg, the opposition would have to generate a tremendous amount of heat to light the fuse. The opposition speaks not with one voice, but with the voices of four separate opposition parties plus a couple of independent MPs, plus divergent opinions within these parties, especially the Tory party.

The government's strategy must be to keep the temperature low enough so that at no time will there be enough heat for the whole opposition to light that fuse. To this end the government will be receptive and pliant, within the limits of its philosophy, principles and finances, to proposals dear to the hearts of opposition MPs. The obvious recipients for such unwonted consideration are the New Democrats and the bifurcated Social Crediters.

In carefully picking its way over the muskeg of opposition support, the government will be emboldened by the fact that the politicians as well as the people have had a bellyful of elections. And among the Tories there are influential members—prominent examples: Messrs. Fulton and Hees—whose personal ambitions do not countenance another opportunity for Mr. Diefenbaker to spellbind his way back into power.

The Tory schism is thus likely to widen rather than heal with the return of the outcasts. Had Mr. Pearson won a majority and Mr. Diefenbaker been soundly defeated, the aging Tory leader's future would hold nothing but quick and, hopefully, graceful retirement. But the indecisiveness of the Nov. 8 results has left Mr. Diefenbaker a straw at which to grasp—and his grasping should, judging by past performance, be accompanied by a great quantity of political pyrotechnics.

That touch o' the Irish that makes people love a good fight should be well satisfied in the new Commons.

Law and order in Colombia's vast back-country cattle plains is administerd by Rurales such as these shown galloping along a dusty road. Famed Colombian Priest Joins Guerrilla Fighters

By CLYDE SANGER
The Manchester Guardian

The Castroite guerrilla movement in the troubled South American state of Colombia has a notable new recruit in a youthful Catholic priest, Camillo Torres, who was until recently chaplain and professor of sociology at the National University.

He disappeared from Bogota, the capital, two months ago, and now leaflets circulating there last weekend picture him in a uniform and carrying a rifle and announcing that he will fight Colombia's ruling class at the head of the "Army of National Liberation."

The leaflet with the slogan, "Liberation or Death," calls on the 14 million people of the country to rise against its oligarchy.

According to one source, he has joined a guerrilla band in the Santander district near the Venezuelan border.

In other rural areas, violence is often attributed to a hangover of the 10-year feud between the Liberals and Conservatives. But the Santander district has been a particular target for Communists in their recent strategy.

It includes important oilfields and the new railway line to the Atlantic.

A year ago one group boldly occupied the town of Simacota for some hours. Communist trade unionists laid the foundations for a guerrilla movement by organizing "peasant leagues" to invade big estates.

Senor Torres comes from one of the country's prominent families, but he and another 37-year-old priest, Father Martin Amaya Martinez, formed their political views during studies in Europe. Last year the two were the most revolutionary voices in Colombia. The Catholic hierarchy is notoriously conservative there and both men were stripped of their priestly duties after attacking the social and religious establishment.

The Colombian army of about 40,000 men has had only moderate success against the guerrillas so far. Whether the guerrilla threat, which is not yet large, will grow depends on how a new government under the Liberal leader Dr. Lleras Restrepo, tackles the problems of reform.

The eight-year-old pact which ended the Conservative-Liberal feud should ensure his becoming president in May, succeeding the ineffectual Conservative President Valencia.

Sino-Soviet Quarrel Grows More Violent

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

HONG KONG—The rift between Red China and the Soviet Union appears to be shifting from ideology to a bitter governmental dispute.

In a front page report Sunday morning, Peking's authoritative Peoples Daily accused Moscow of zestfully spreading rumors that the Chinese Communists had obstructed Soviet military aid en route to North Viet Nam.

On three occasions within the past month, the newspaper disclosed, the Soviet Union had rejected Chinese government memoranda demanding that the Russians "clear up the rumors publicly."

These repeated Russian rebuffs, said the Peoples Daily, "cannot but be regarded as a new step . . . along the road of worsening state relations between China and the Soviet Union."

Peking has charged that Soviet leaders are conniving with the United States to undermine the Vietnamese Communist cause.

Peking has also charged that most Soviet military aid to North Viet Nam consists of "obsolete equipment discarded by the Soviet armed forces or damaged weapons cleaned out of warehouses." This aid, Peking said recently, was far from commensurate with what the Soviet Union has given to the Indian reactionaries."

Times Dispatch

Attempting to tarnish Peking, the Soviet weekly Za Rubezhom (Life Abroad) last December reprinted a New York Times dispatch reporting that China required the Soviet Union to pay Peking in dollars for shipping its aid through China to North Viet Nam.

It was this Soviet manoeuvre that ostensibly aroused Chinese anger, leading to the report in the Peoples Daily.

The Peoples Daily attack seemed to be part of a pattern to discredit the Soviet Union in Hanoi's eyes while burnishing Red China's image as North Viet Nam's true friend.

According to Peking, the Soviet Union made its first request to ship aid through China to North Viet Nam Feb. 25, 1965, soon after Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin had visited Hanoi.

Without exception, stated the Peoples Daily, Soviet military supplies and technicians bound for Viet Nam were given rapid transit across China. "The Chinese railways did this free of charge," asserted the newspaper "receiving not a single kopek, let alone a U.S. cent from the Soviet."

Appreciation

The Peking journal quoted Col. A. A. Shaitin, a Soviet economic relations official in China, as expressing his appreciation of Chinese efforts.

The first Chinese protest against rumors of Peking's interference was raised on Jan. 4, when China's Deputy Foreign Minister Wang Ping Nan handed a memorandum on the subject to the Soviet ambassador in Peking, S. G. Lapin.

According to the Chinese account, Lapin originally denied that a New York Times dispatch had been published in a Soviet magazine. Then he allegedly said it had been "printed by mistake" and that the Soviet government was not responsible for reports in the Soviet press.

The Peoples Daily termed the Soviet Ambassador's defence "astonishing."

Ambassador Lapin finally refused to accept the Chinese memorandum. Chinese notes to the Soviet embassy in Peking on Jan. 9 and to the Soviet foreign ministry in Moscow on Jan. 11 were also rejected.

Concluding that it was "crystal clear" that Moscow had spread these rumors against Peking, the Peoples Daily declared that the Soviet aim is "to vilify China, sow discord in the relations between China and Viet Nam and serve U.S. imperialism."

Simultaneously, Peking has also criticized Moscow for initialling a civil aviation agreement with Japan on Saturday.

The agreement, said Peking's official New China News Agency was "made at U.S. bidding" in order to "follow the line of U.S.-U.S.S.R. co-operation (and) increase hostilityy towards China."

Who'd Want the Tropics? Yeah! and so Would I

By ART STOTT

ON SATURDAY morning a neighbor, whom we'd missed during the festive season, dropped in to tell Pat about the Christmas holiday she'd spent in Florida. On Saturday afternoon, the smoothly tanned member of the bridge club draped around Pat's neck a fresh lei she had brought back from Honolulu.

Stott

Up to that point I'd been fairly cheerful about our Victoria weather at the beginning of the weekend. It had been so much better than the week before—when we ploughed through snow to look at the Shawnigan place—that I had dragged out the lawnmower and skidded in through the wet grass to gouge a little turf from the greasy

Kathleen's talk about Florida and Helen's souvenir from Waikiki took away a little of of my enthusiasm for the Victoria climate. As I emptied the grass-catcher down the lot, staring out over water that still looked, and was, cold, my fancy soared off to sundrenched beaches in the mid-Pacific and on the Gulf of Mexico. I fall into these semi-trances occasionally. A shiver shook me out of it and I became acutely aware that the individual can't sun himself very effectively at this season in Canada's so-called evergreen playground.

★ ★ ★

So I returned to the lawnmower, slid around the greensward, catching flicks of worm moulds from the revolving blades and muttering to myself that I ought to be in Mexico City, Australia or on the Mediterranean. Such can be the winter of a man's discontent when his friends return from glorious sunshine.

If it was a bit nippy on the lawn above the water, it was several degrees colder in the shade of the wall which fronts on the street, where I clipped back some exuberant St. John's wort. Working in public view, this way, I earn good opinions in the minds of neighbors who think I like this sort of thing, or at least that I am the happy gardener. All the time I'm mumbling a litany I never learned in Sunday School.

But there are compensations. The young lady who came along with an approving smile lifted my spirits with her comment: "Wait until I write my friends in Calgary and tell them you mowed the lawn out here today."

When another guest dropped over to ask if I'd noticed the snowdrops blooming in my border and I pointed out the blossoming violets to him, I began to regain my confidence in what we call our equable climate.

★ ★ ★

By the next day my outlook had improved to the point when I began to think like a Chamber of Commerce booster. I went fishing with a friend in an open aluminum boat. The sun shone. The strait sparkled. A zephyr breathed down from the north east.

Anybody but a nut would have noticed that the wind cut through a coat, a thick woollen sweater, a sports shirt, an undershirt, and a fair layer of blubber to bite into the bone. But who notices that when larger-than-legal-sized grilse are taking a simple brass-and silver spoon avidly enough to give a man his limit?

There's a difference between this and lying on the beach at Bali-Bali, or reclining on a deck chair by the blue Mediterranean, or seeking a shady January pint in Sydney.

Relatively speaking, though, there's much to be said for our weather at this time of year — and not all of it in terms of profanity.

Of course a man fishing in an open boat in mid-January here grows gradually numb. The cold seeps up from his feet. So what? When there's no feeling from his knees down, he can always turn homeward, crawl ashore and stumble into his warm house. And what's better for a freezing fisherman than a good, hot cup of tea? You guessed it. We had that, too.

"If it was good enough for Nelson, it's quite good enough for me."

Japan's Zaibatsu Wield Enormous Economic Power

By SIMON BLACKALL

KYOTO — Japan has just come through a bad recession, caused by over-expanded production facilities at a time of declining markets at home. It was sparked by the Japanese government which, in order to slow down the accelerating boom of the early sixties, adopted a tighter money policy.

By last August, the number of bankruptcies among medium-size companies had climbed to upwards of 400 in a single month, and the government had stepped into support the Tokyo stock market by buying selective shares and guaranteeing the nation's second largest securities house.

The housewives, clerks and shopgirls, who had once been some of the most enthusiastic investors in Japanese business and indutry, and had helped force up share prices to 10 times what they were in the middle fifties, had retired from the lists. In their place were the banks and insurance companies, who demanded and received a much closer reckoning of accounts.

Today some sort of stock market stability has been achieved, and most shares have regained their pre-recession value. But as many of the smaller businesses foundered, or were swallowed up by the larger ones, it became more and more apparent that the companies least affected by the recession were the "zaibatsu." The term zaibatsu is used to describe the large and powerful cartels of interdependent companies which span Japanese industry and commerce from shipping and banking to pencils and razors.

The three largest zaibatsu, Mitsui, Mitsubishi and Sumitomi, together account for over one third of the entire industry and commerce of Japan. To give an idea of what this could, though in practice seldom does, lead to, there is the example of a hypothetical Mr. X, who works for the Mitsubishi Bank.

Each morning Mr. X shaves with his Mitsubishi electric razor, while watching television on his Mitsubishi set. He drives to the station in the family car, another Mitsubishi product, stopping on the way to fill up with Mitsubishi-brand petrol, before taking a train powered with a Mitsubishi electric motor.

All Mitsubishi

On arrival at the terminal, Mr. X takes a bus made by Mitsubishi, for the short journey to his bank. Once there he picks up his Mitsubishi-brand pencil and goes to work on the letters of credit of the Mitsubishi trading company, which go to pay for the iron ore imported in ships of the Mitsubishi shipping line to supply the Mitsubishi steel mills, which in turn provide steel for the Mitsubishi shipyards.

It sounds like the never-ending circle of G. B. Shaw's "The Applecart," where Breakages Ltd. have the ultimate monopoly. But, amazingly, all this, and more, is possible, for these large groups manufacture and trade in everything from timber and textiles to food and fertilizers.

Today, with the power of the old family groups reduced or removed, the zaibatsu are less inclined to meddle in politics. Their main field of influence appears to be a powerful government lobby in the interests of big business.

A cynical observer recently suggested that the zaibatsu should be encouraged to expand and include all Japanese industry and commerce before eventual government take-over; thus facilitating what he described as "the first economically-efficient socialist state." He is not entirely without a case.

De Gaulle Faces Hard Task

By WAVERLEY ROOT
The Washington Post

PARIS — The new French ministry looks like the most difficult team to drive that President Charles de Gaulle has accepted ever since his return to power in 1958.

It is replete with built-in rivalries and overlapping functions which lay it wide open to potential intra-government quarrels over jurisdiction.

In fact, it resembles a Fifth-Republic cabinet less than a Third-or-Fourth-Republic cabinet of the sort which resulted from the manoeuverings of the political parties which de Gaulle has so often excoriated.

A characteristic of those pre-de Gaulle cabinets was that the choice of ministers, and the richness of the plum which each was able to extort, depended on ability to bring votes to the governmental majority—and this is precisely what differentiates this government from previous Fifth Republic governments.

Votes Not Needed

So far, de Gaulle has not had to compose his ministries for their vote-pulling capacity. He himself guaranteed enough votes. It was a foregone conclusion that he would win all the elections — except senatorial elections, in which the public as a whole does not vote, but only the notables, who are still holdovers from the pre-de Gaulle establishment, and who still resent their replacement by de Gaulle's Union for the New Rrpublic. But since the Fifth Republic constitution has drawn the senate's teeth, this does not matter.

The present government is the first since 1958 to be constituted with a view to winning an election — the parliamentary election scheduled for spring, 1967. This has created a situation, familiar under the Third and Fourth Republics, which permits a man who can contribute votes to lay down terms for entering the government. Edgar Faure's acceptance of the ministry of agriculture on condition that he be granted a free hand in running it, and the government's acceptance of this condition because it believes Faure can deliver left votes which it does not now have, are reminiscent of the bargains struck during the composition of ministries under previous regimes. Up to now, potential ministers have not been in a position to bargain with de Gaulle. If he offered a portfolio to anyone, the choice was simple: take it or leave it.

If this has changed now, it may be partly because de Gaulle's advanced age makes everyone conscious of the possibility that it could be someone else who will have to lead this government into its next electoral battle. If it is still de Gaulle, it would hardly be necessary to scrape the bottom of the political pot for every last vote, or to offer special inducements to vote-getters to come into the cabinet, bringing their votes with them.

Counting Heads

But if someone other than de Gaulle presides over the next elections, then it may be necessary to count heads carefully and to court every possible vote. This is the government's point of view in trying to recruit new ministers who can deliver additional votes.

The new ministers' point of view may be that this provides an opportunity to get in line for a share of the de Gaulle heritage when the general disappears. Preoccupation with the succession of de Gaulle is now dictating the tactics of the ambitions, not only those who are promoting their own fortunes by accepting cabinet posts on the best possible terms, but also those who are promoting them by refusing portfolios.

Holds Balance

Thus Valery Giscard d'Estaing, ousted from the finance ministry to the profit of Michel Debre by the infighting that accompanied the former prime minister's return to the government, reject a lesser portfolio and is now on the outside — but with the 35 votes of his Republican Independent deputies to the National Assembly in his pocket, enough in a strongly contested vote to assure defeat or victory for the government.

The government which has emerged out of these jockeyings for position and this obsession with the 1967 elections is extraordinarily complicated, and might even be described as unworkable for a politician less skilled than de Gaulle. Its most obvious weakness is its double-headed character, with Pompidou remaining as prime minister, but with his predecessor, Mechel Debre, de Gaulle's only other prime minister, back in the government, with his own important reserved area inside it, and his own inner cabinet.

World Literacy Gains Are Slow

PARIS—The battle against illiteracy is slowly gaining momentum, according to figures published here, but nearly 45 per cent of the world's population is still unable to read or write.

In a majority of countries, less than half the population between the ages of five and 19 goes to school, the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization statistical year book published here shows.

This percentage dropped to 57 from 59 between 1957 and 1960. In the breakdown of world illiteracy, Northern and Western Europe had the lowest rate at one to two per cent. North America was pegged at three to four per cent and Southern Europe at 20 per cent.

North Africa had the highest rate—85 to 90 per cent.

IN SOUTH AMERICA, AFRICA

B.C. Mining Benefits From Political Unrest

The B.C. mining industry is reaping benefit from political upheavals in South American and African nations, a news report said today.

The report is titled The Mining Industry of B.C. and the Yukon, prepared for B.C. Hydro industrial development department by economist John C. Dawson.

It states that mineral production of the past three years has been at record level each year, now at 64,000 tons per day ore concentrating capacity.

Within three years total milling capacity will be in excess of 100,000 tons per da and by 1970 the existing total should more than double to 130,000 tons, the report predicts.

COME OF AGE

Mining in B.C. and the Yukon has come of age, having outgrown a lengthy period of adjustment to uncertain market values and the economy in marginal industry, the report said.

"Also there is little doubt that the British Columbia-Yukon mining industy has been enhanced by investment uncertainties in other mineral rich nations.

"Political unrest, nationalistic pressures, variable laws and other problems have diverted capital investment from some South American and African nations to the relative security of Canada."

Today, market requirements are strong and are expected to continue so, said the report.

Large tonnage, low grade mines with ore in the tens of millions of tons in reserve are replacing the traditional small high grade tunnel mines of the past, giving greater long-term stability.

Greatest new tonnage will be in the two metals of the space-electronics age—copper and molybdenum, the report said.

The others of importance singled out by Mr. Dawson are silver, lead, zinc, iron and mercury.

$30 MILLION SPENT

It is estimated over $30 million has been spent in the last two years on exploration, compared with only $10 million for the 10-year period ending in 1961.

Claim staking and diamond drilling are at a high level, the ... er at its highest.

... prospects for expansion ... industry and distribution ... ities in B.C. are most favorable and sales opportunities are offered by the growth of new pulp and paper mills, hydro-electric roads and railways and general construction.

"British Columbia is on the threshold of spectacular industrial expansion," Mr. Dawson said.

"Consider this vast area — larger than California, Washington and Oregon combined — loaded with minerals, covered with almost two thirds of all Canada's soft wood reserves and with fewer people than metropolitan Toronto.

"British Columbia has a unique potential unmatched in most parts of the world."

He said this is recognized in London, New York and Tokyo and hoped that Canadian industrialists in Montreal and Toronto may soon do the same.

Specialized Mine Assay Service Set

Two Canadian testing laboratories are joining forces to provide specialized mineral assay services for the B.C. mining boom.

The co-operating arrangement is made between General Testing Laboratories, Vancouver, and TSL Laboratories Ltd., a subsidiary of the Toronto firm, Technical Service Leboratories. It will mean a greater analytical chemistry role for General Testing, and more assaying for TSL.

General Testing will hand over its mining assay work to TSL, which is geared to do quick, accurate instrumental testing that replaces many wet chemical tests.

TSL will hand on to General Testing its analytical work in edible oils, fertilizers, grain and other products.

"We entered the mineral testing field two to three years ago when numerous finds flooded the limited testing facilities here," General Testing managing director D. S. Brake said.

"Now modern instrumental tests will replace many wet chemical operations in assaying, thus enabling us to provide the mining industry with the service they need to keep pace more effiicently with today's demands."

TSL, besides being equipped to work with the new techniques recently expanded in geochemistry.

This additional service will be provided in B.C. under direction of Dr. A. H. Debnam.

Bank Chief Urges Cuts In Taxation

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should provide incentives through changes in inheritance and income taxes so people can accumulate capital and undertake new enterprises, Neil. J. McKinnon, chairman of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said Monday.

He told the Canadian Club of Toronto taxation is undermining the development of self-reliance in Canada and encouraging able people and those with capital to emigrate to more favorable tax climates.

"If we wish to develop a nation whose citizens will own as individuals an increasing share of the industrial enterprises within the country, most certainly we shall not do so if income taxes and inheritance taxes are higher than those of other countries."

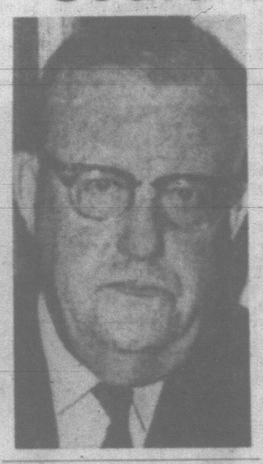
Although these taxes in Canada were "forbidding disincentives" to enterprise, they provided relatively little revenue for governments.

Sharks Close Beaches

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters) — Several bathing beaches here have been closed because of danger from packs of sharks. Sunday a shark caught and ate a dog, and David Landor, secretary of the Shark Research Society, warned sharks that eat dogs will eat anything—or anybody.

ATLANTIC ACCEPTANCE

Inquiry Opens, Could Last Year



TORONTO (UPI)—A royal commission inquiry began Monday with what was expected to be a year-long study of the causes behind the spectacular collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp.

The inquiry, led by Superior Court Judge Samuel Hughes, opened two or three days of hearings for the introduction and identification of documents.

Mr. Justice Hughes was expected to adjourn the hearings at mid-week and resume them toward the end of the month for examination of witnesses.

Atlantic, with assets valued at $150 million could not meet $5 million wroth of shrot term obligations last summer and went into receivership.

Atlantic's creditors lost an estimated $50 to $75 million after the bankruptcy. It was learned that the huge complex of companies had obtained some $105 million of its notes from some of the most respected names in Canadian and U.S. financial circles.

Ramifications of the Atlantic bankruptcy still are being felt. Several firms have closed their doors because of heavy investment in the Canadian company.

CONFIDENCE SHAKEN

Many U.S. investors lost confidence in Canada as a result of the Atlantic collapse and Canadian businessmen say this confidence is still shaken.

A list of those hurt in the Atlantic crash reads like a Who's Who in the financial communities of both countries. Included are the United States Steel pension fund, the First National City Bank of New York, the Ford Foundation, Princeton University, Kuhn Loeb and Co., The Equitable Securities Co., British Mortgage and Trust and many, many others.

Thirty accountants have been sifting through mountains of documents submitted to the royal commission inquiry. Financial experts here predict the commission will look into the activities of some 150 companies. It will delve into operations of 60 of these at some length.

The accountants' main concern is to find out exactly what happened to Atlantic's large capitalization. In many cases, it seems to have gone out in loans which were never repaid.

Montreal Trust, receiver of the financial empire, showed that the company had made, through subsidiaries several loans to companies and individuals with bad credit ratings.

'Labor's Bluff Should Have Been Called'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Government and business have called the bluff of labor leaders who threatened a general strike in British Columbia last year, the new president of the Vancouver Board of Trade said Monday.

"I cannot help wondering how long it will be before the promoters of the general strike will be back on our doorstep with a new cause to champion and laws to break," Sydney Welch said in his inaugural address.

"Let's hope that next time they are not so conveniently taken out of their dilemma."

Mr. Welch, 51, president of a plumbing company, said some labor leaders "demonstrated their complete disregard for law and irresponsibility to their membership" with the general strike threat.

The incident did prove, however, that "there are many responsible labor leaders and gave them a chance to stand up and be counted."

If the government and business had called the bluff of those calling for a general strike "it would have discredited the leaders who supported it and left the unions and their members vulnerable to damages through the courts," said Mr. Welch.

Assessment Fight By Mac-Powell

VANCOUVER (CP)—MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. launched an action Monday in B.C. Supreme Court here involving a multi-million-dollar government assessment procedure.

The company asks the court to declare illegal the assessor's 25 per cent severance tax assessment on a portion of land the company bought from the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Co. on Vancouver Island.

A spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel said assessment of the timber on the 220,000 acres would be higher under the government scheme, to assess the land in parts rather than as a whole.

The company contends there should be one tax notice at one time for the entire tract.

He was predeceased by his wife, Gladys, in 1962.

Funeral arrangements have not been confirmed.

ELECTED international vice-president by the executive board of the United Mine Workers Union of America in Washington, is George J. Titler, 70. He is the present head of UMW District 20 at Beckley, West Virginia. (AP Wirephoto.)

Up, Up And Away We Go

LONDON (Reuters) — A British engineer believes he has the answer to the problem of sprawling cities—housing 500,000 people in a single tower block, two miles high.

Engineer Wilem Frischmann, of a London consulting engineering firm, says an 850-storey building for 500,000 people would cost less than housing the same number of people by conventional methods.

It would save a great deal of land which could then be used for food production and, Frischmann believes, might prove popular in Britain by making it possible to live above the weather.

Frischmann outlined his plan in the monthly Science Journal here.

Gathering Staff First Big Job For New Planner

Victoria's new town planner J. G. Greenhalgh commenced his duties at city hall Monday.

He comes to Victoria from Calgary where he held the job of assistant town planner.

Mr. Greenhalgh had originally intended to arrive in the city several days ago but snowslides in the Rogers Pass and dangerous driving conditions generally through the mountains delayed his arrival.

He will spend the next few weeks orienting himself with city projects and gathering together a new staff.

The old city planning staff resigned en masse folowing administrative disputes within city hall.

Council to Tour New Projects For Saanich

Sannich council will make its annual tour of proposed new projects Saturday.

Councillors will see first-hand plans suggested by themselves, by municipal staff and by private groups.

Among the dozens of small items to be looked at are various sidewalk, drainage and road plans.

One proposal is to make the Gorge Road four lanes between Tillicum Bridge and the city boundary.

Councillors will be accompanied by several senior members of the inspection and engineering departments including municipal engineer Neville Life.

Exchange Seats Sold For Big Sums

NEW YORK (AP) — The greatest number of New York Stock Exchange seats traded in 18 years was sold Monday for a record dollar volume.

Five seats—actually memberships in the closely held exchange—were sold. Two were sold for $245,000 each, two at $250,000 each and one at $240,000.

The $250,000 price equalled the 1965 high. Names of buyers and sellers of the seats will not be known until the transactions are ratified by the exchange.

In April, 1948, five seats were sold at prices ranging from $59,000 to $62,000 each.

A stock exchange seat entitles its owner to trade on the floor of the exchange, which saves the individual brokerage charges. He must, however, pay dues to the exchange and expenses.

Saguenay Shipping Gets New President

MONTREAL (CP)—Aluminum Ltd. has announced the appointment of John L. Eyre as president of Saguenay Shipping Ltd.

In a statement, Aluminum said Mr. Eyre will succeed F. Leslie Parsons at the Montreal head office March 1 after a management career of 30 years in the construction, bauxite-mining and ocean transport branches of the aluminum industry.

Growth Plan Proposed For Bay Area

A community plan for the Cadboro Bay-university district of Saanich was proposed Monday night.

Behind the move are applications and re-applications by persons seeking apartment buildings in the area.

The community plan proposal was put forward by Coun. Leslie Passmore after a realtor applied for rezoning only a few months after having the same application rejected by Saanich.

Jack L. P. Mears applied to rezone 3861 Cadboro Bay Road for low density apartments—that is, a three-storey building.

Coun. Passmore said the time is past for the district to have a community plan and put an end to re-applications when there is a change in council membership following municipal elections.

The community plan proposal was forwarded to council's lands and planning committee for further consideration.

ORDERLY GROWTH

Municipal planner Tom Loney said later the object of a community plan is to provide for orderly growth and development.

The plan would be restrictive in some aspects and permissive in others. But such a plan is much more difficult to change than an area without one.

HEARING JAN. 31

In another development, a public hearing will be held Jan. 31 in the council chamber into an application to rezone land off Haro Road near the university for high-rise apartments, which could mean as high as 12 storeys.

A similar application two years ago was narrowly defeated by council.

The Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association sought to have the venue changed to a church hall where accommodation would be greater than the council chamber.

But council agreed to a separate public hearing for this application only because of the large number of persons expected to attend.

It was planned to hear this application with others at a hearing next Monday night.

Navy Will Light Up Ship But Ceremony in Doubt

Royal Canadian Navy has a ship but not the manpower to spare for Victoria spring flower festival.

Tourist industry group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Monday that HMCS Saskatchewan would be illuminated and stationed in the Inner Harbor for visitors during four days of the festival.

The assurance was given by A. G. Coning, who reported the navy could give no commitment at this time on the request to stage a sunset ceremony on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

He said the navy has a "manpower problem."

It is planned to have open house on the destroyer April 7-10. The committee hoped to have a sunset ceremony April 2 as part of the flower festival opening.

NINE DAYS

Events are planned to cover nine days and will include marine events in the harbor, crowning of a festival queen, a 100-mile bike race, driving roadeo, art show, fashion shows, kids' parade, variety show, a formal ball, boatmen's ball, Easter sunrise service on Mount Tolmie, a beat music youth dance and competitions for decorations.

Mr. Coning said he is arranging the youth dance because younger people will not attend the other dances which they "view with contempt."

He said the dance he is arranging would be "with all the long-haired bands I can lay my hands on," tentatively for April 7.

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will go up the Fraser Valley presenting mayors with symbolic lamp post flower baskets to promote the festival.

Meanwhile, the Chamber's annual goodwill tour into Washington and Oregon is being planned for March 13-20, in which some 30 members will promote Victoria from a red double-deck bus, stopping at shopping centres in the major cities to show film slides and to hand out pamphlets.

Convention Centre Plan Wins Support

A Chamber of Commerce study of convention centre requirements has the blessing of city council, Norman Loomer told a chamber committee Monday.

Mr. Loomer, chairman of a convention centre study group, said council plans a convention centre as part of the arena-curling rink complex.

He said the city hopes to use funds from the estate of T. S. McPherson but the money will not become available until the end of 1967.

"The time to plan for these things is now, and perhaps by the time the money is available we will have made a start on the building through advance financing," he said.

He made it clear the city would be in charge with the chamber merely offering advice on facilities.

MANAGER

Empress Hotel manager Leslie Parkinson said the time has come for a full-time convention manager as part of the paid Chamber of Commerce staff.

Tourist industry group chairman Bill Clark agreed but said a convention information centre is conceived as part of the ultimate arrangements for establishment of a firmer convention industry here.

The papers have been bulging lately with pieces about the best this and the outstanding that of 1965. Now it's time for a positive guide into the future.

There are some who may feel that a glimpse into 1966 should be delayed until next Christmas on the grounds that a retrospective look would improve the accuracy of so imperishable a document.

But as the fat girl said when she threw off her girdle, this is more fun. Besides there is nothing duller than a hockey summary that reads no goals, no assists, no fights.

Crothers Will Tackle Kenya Flash in Mile

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., rated by many the world's best half-miler currently in competition, will step up to the mile and challenge Kenya's Kejno Kipchoge in the Millrose Games here Jan. 27.

Meet director Howie Schmertz said Monday that Crothers' coach, Fred Foot of Toronto, had entered the lean athlete in the mile and had written: "We hope you can get Keino."

Keino has broken the world two-mile record, beaten Ron Clarke at 5,000 metres and has run the third fastest mile of all time in 3:54.2.

Crothers was Olympic runner-up to New Zealand's Peter Snell at 800 metres.

DOUG FLETCHER

DOUG FLETCHER NAMED . . . . . PRESIDENT OF SHAMROCKS

This May be Greatest Challenge

The troubled ship Shamrock picked up a new skipper today, immediately buoying up the crew's hopes for a successful voyage through the 1966 Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Douglas Fletcher, president of the Greater Victoria Lacrosse Association for 23 out of the last 24 years, former B.C. Association prime minister, lifetime member of the Canadian body, manned the pilot house of the Victoria Shamrocks, the ICLL's bust of '65.

"I didn't want the job, I didn't seek it," Fletcher said today. "But I was promised full co-operation and, well, you know how I feel about the game."

Fletcher's feelings, dedication and perspiration have accounted for countless championships in the vast minor boxla complex he has directed.

The Shamrocks, however, could be his greatest challenge.

Mooted as a team that could go all the way last year, they went all the way—through the schedule. But they never made the playoffs and never seriously appeared in danger of fulfilling their promise.

This year they could lose five players and they still must buck disproportionate (to mainland teams) travelling costs.

The lost members could be Ted Liebich, Bill Russell, Larry Clarkson, Alf Shuker and Larry Biggs. Nanaimo residents, they failed or were unable to attend practices last year. The resident Victorians on the team feel such an arrangement was unfair to coach Jim McNeill, to themselves and to the outsiders. They have recommended to the directors that no player be signed or used who does not live or work in Victoria.

Offsetting this, in Fletcher's view, is the coming of age of juniors Ranjit Dillon and John Lauvaas, Ron Zilkie and Brent Atkins and Doug Thompson. The latter, a goalkeeper, has been outstanding in a career stretching from diaper league through junior play.

Additionally, reinstatement applications by Ray Beech, John Allen and Al McLean, participants in a Quebec outlaw league last season, are considered a formality for approval.

Fletcher has taken a "let's wait and see" attitude towards the high cost of travelling, insists that mainland teams "want Victoria in the league."

Assisting him in all phases of the operation will be a directorate consisting of Buss Morgan, his predecessor of three years; Keith Dorman, Al Rhodes, Mason Sheldrick, Hal Jordan, Roy Wolsey, Jack Morgan, Tom Jennings and Len Ingraham.

Hec McNeill will be at his old post as manager, and his son, Jimmy, appears to have no serious opposition, as incumbent coach.

It could be an interesting season.

FRANK MARIO . . . waiting is worrisome

Frank Has the Jitters Waiting for Explosion

By DOUG PEDEN

Although Frank Mario has the Victoria Maple Leafs sitting on top of the Western Hockey League world he feels just like a guy who is sitting on top of a barrel of dynamite.

And today coach Frank is worried that somebody may have started the fuse smoking.

The fuse he is thinking about is attached to the sometimes explosive package called the Vancouver Canucks, who will make another attempt to blow the Leafs apart Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Thus far this season the men of coach Bert Olmstead have only been able to touch off minor fireworks against Victoria. In fact, from a Maple Leaf viewpoint, the relationship with the Canucks has been a joy and a delight. It is perhaps the main reason why the Mariomen are running out in front of the WHL pack.

In six games between the two clubs this winter, the Canucks have yet to collect a point, losing three times in Vancouver Forum and three times in Memorial Arena.

GOODWILL GESTURE

And the Canucks, who almost knocked Victoria out of the playoffs last season by winning 10 of 16 games, added another gesture of goodwill Sunday. They exploded in the third period for an upset 2-1 win over Portland to keep the runner-up Buckaroos four points behind the Leafs.

All this is mighty pleasant for the stocky Victoria coach. But in it he also finds cause for concern. Frank knows the law of hockey averages say the Canucks are going to blast his boys before the season ends and he's getting jittery waiting for the eruption.

"We have done well against Vancouver so far," Mario said between mouthfuls at lunch Tuesday. "But I feel like I'm sitting on a powder keg.

REACHING PEAK

"The Canucks have shown their power against other clubs but they haven't had one of their big games against us. I know they are going to explode against us sooner or later and I just hope we are ready when they do.

"To make the waiting worse," added Mario, "is the fact that I think the Canucks are just reaching their peak. Since young Bryan Hextall has returned to the lineup (from an early-season injury) they have been a very good club."

Easing Mario's fretting somewhat was the attitude of the Leafs in Monday morning's workout.

RUGGED WORKOUT

Throughout the season the Victorians have played some of their finest games after tackling regular workout chores with unexpected energy and hostility.

Perhaps sharing Mario's concern over the threat posed by the Canucks, or perhaps because half of them had crawled out of bed on the wrong side, the Leafs made Monday's session one of the best.

They were eager to skate and acted as if everybody was an enemy. The results was blistering practice, punctuated with the thuds of bodychecks, and a coach that felt a bit better at having to meet the Canucks with three regulars still on the sidelines.

REGAINING STRENGTH

Winger Dick Lamoureux, nursing torn knee ligaments, and defenceman Sandy Hucul, recovering from a minor operation, are certain to be on the sidelines. Centre Milan Marcetta, regaining his skating strength after rupturing a vein in a leg, is a very doubtful starter. If Millie is skating Wednesday he will almost certainly be used sparingly.

Fussing over injuries and trying to figure the best way to combine his available players should be enough to keep any coach's mind occupied.

But Mario can't help wondering if that overdue Canuck explosion is going to take place Wednesday night.

Hull and Howe, Naturally, Top All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, this season's goal-scoring leader, and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, the career pacesetter, were named Monday to The Associated Press' National Hockey League all-star team for the first half of the 1965-66 season.

Hull, 27-year-old left winger, paces the NHL with 36 goals, including the four he scored on Sunday against New York Rangers. Howe, 37-year-old right winger, has 16 goals this year for a career high of 611. Howe is in his 20th NHL season.

Others named to the first team were Norm Ullman of Detroit, defenceman Jacques Laperriere of Montreal Canadiens and netminder Glenn Hall and defenceman Pierre Pilote of the Black Hawks.

EACH PLACED TWO

The Red Wings and New York Rangers each placed two men on the second team. Goaltender Roger Crozier and defenceman Doug Barkley represented Detroit, while the Rangers chosen were defenceman Harry Howell and left wing Don Marshall.

Stan Mikita of the Hawks, a centre, and Bobby Rousseau of the Canadiens, a right winger, were the others selected for the second team.

Named to the third team were centre Bob Pulford, left winger Frank Mahovlich and defenceman Allan Stanley of Toronto Maple Leafs; right winger Bob Nevin of the Rangers; goaltender Gump Worsley of Montreal, and defenceman Matt Pavlich of Chicago.

The first half of the 70-game NHL season ended Saturday.

SIGHTS ON THIRD

Montreal Canadiens centre Jean Beliveau has set his sights on the third spot in the league's all-time scoring race and, barring serious injury, appears to be a shoo-in before the end of the current season.

Beliveau scored his 371st goal Sunday night and helped the Canadiens to a 3-1 victory over Boston Bruins.

That tied him for fourth place in career scoring with former Montreal ace Bernie Geoffrion. He needs just eight more goals to catch the third man in the career scoring race, Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings.

After that, Beliveau would need to have scored well over 500 goals to approach the all-time No. 2 scorer, Maurice Richard of Montreal.

Beliveau, 34, has averaged more than 28 goals a year in his 12 full NHL campaigns. He has scored 48 goals the last two years, reaching the 20-goal mark for the ninth time last season.

He now has 13 for the current campaign with half the season left to play.

Hull, of course, is the leader with 59 points, 11 more than Detroit's Ullman. Another Chicagoan, Stan Mikita, is third with 44, two more than Montreal's Bob Rousseau.

Surgery Out For Namath

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Namath's right knee is not quite right but the New York Jets' $400,000 rookie quarterback was assured Monday he would not have to undergo further surgery.

Namath was examined by Dr. James Nicholas, the surgeon who operated on the knee last year, after complaining his knee was giving him trouble.

"The doctor said I had an inflammation and strain on the medial ligament and gave me some pills to take," Namath said. "He told me that other than the inflammation, the knee is stronger than it ever was."

Michael said he filed the suits in Suffolk County superior court at Boston against Intercontinental Promotions of Philadelphia Sportvision Inc., Boston promoter Sam Silverman and the Boston Garden.

Michael, the local promoter for the Clay-Liston fight, said he is owed $25,000 on the promotion itself, plus interest and other expenses, bringing the total to $30,000.

BABE RUTH OFFICIALS WANT ANOTHER LOOK

Possible site of Babe Ruth baseball's World Series for Canada's centennial year, Victoria is getting more than the official once-over.

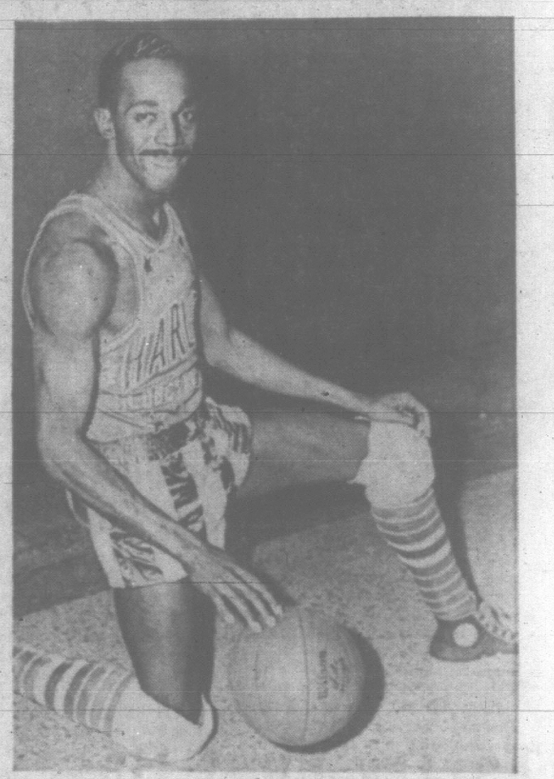
Executives from the Babe Ruth League headquarters in Trenton, N.J., are returning to the city Thursday to further evaluate Victoria as a series host.

Babe Ruth League officials were in Victoria in September for a preliminary on-the-site inspection.

City service clubs, spurred by the Optimist Club's Wilf Sadler, have been promoting Victoria as host city for the '67 finals.

Fairbanks, Alaska, is also under consideration for next year's series.

Douglas, Arizona, will host the 1966 Babe Ruth World Series.



SPECTACULAR DRIBBLING skill of Murphy Summons (above) is expected to be one of highlights when famed Harlem Globetrotters make annual basketball appearance at Memorial Arena Wednesday, Jan. 26. Murphy and his touring Trotter playmates will toss their ballhandling skill, shooting accuracy and comic capers at New York Nationals. Action will also include half-time vaudeville show.

LEADS SCORING RACE

Dick Gamble Scorns 'Year of Youngster'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Gamble, striving for his first American Hockey League scoring title at age 37, isn't impressed by the AHL's Year of the Youngster.

Gamble, in his 10th AHL season, has opened a six-point lead in the scoring race according to league statistics released today. Gamble has 25 goals and 27 assists for 52 points, with teammate Gerry Ehman second at 21-25—46. Both play for Rochester Americans.

Ehman at 33, gives Gamble company in the senior citizens division of the AHL. Behind them are three of the league's classier youngsters, Gordon Labossiere of Quebec Aces, Murray Hall of Pittsburgh Hornets and Jim Pappin of Rochester.

Labossiere, 25, has 45 points after missing four games last week because of an injured knee. Hall, 25, has 44 points and Pappin, 26, has 43, including 20 goals in only 29 games.

Rookies George Gardner of Pittsburgh and Gary Smith of Rochester are staging a hectic battle for top goalie honors. Gardner, who leads the league with six shutouts, has a 2.57 goals against average to Smith's 2.58.

Canadian Tracks Seek Tax Relief

TORONTO (CP) — The National Association of Canadian Race Tracks is preparing a brief to the federal government seeking tax relief for all horse owners.

John Mooney, managing director of the Jockey Club, told the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association: "I think we have a fairly decent prospect of getting this relief within the year."

Mooney made his remarks after Dr. Glen Brown of Brampton, Ont., a vice-president of the horsemen's association, said it is time the government "realized horse racing is big business and can no longer be classed as a hobby."

GEORGE KERNEK EXPECTED . . . . . TO TAKE OVER FIRST BASE

Card Rookie in 'Heck of a Spot'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — George Kernek himself put it best. "Man," he said, "I'm in a heck of a spot."

Kernek, just turned 26, is in one of the toughest spots in the major leagues as St. Louis Cardinals prepare for spring training.

He is being counted upon to take over first base, vacated when the Cardinals traded veteran Bill White to Philadelphia Phillies.

Kernek has an Oklahoma drawl a friendly manner and fresh coat of confidence.

But a few questions bring out the fact that he is about as green a rookie as the Cardinals have placed big money on in some time:

"How many major league games have you started, George?"

"Eight, if you count one that was rained out."

"When you led the league in R.B.I. at Jacksonville last year, where were you playing?"

"In the outfield."

"The outfield? How did you get to first base?"—

"I used to play first base, and we had too many first basemen. I cover the bag pretty well."

The truth is that the rangy youngster covers first base territory like a spider. It was his hitting that Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst was worried about, and George says he made great strides in the Redbirds' winter instructional camp in Florida.

Kernek was on a basketball scholarship at Oklahoma University when the Cardinals signed him in his junior year. He played for Tulsa, then bounced down to Winnipeg Goldeyes of the Northern League, then to Billings, Mont., where he learned to hit and came up with a .330 average.

Then he went back to Tulsa, to Jacksonville, to Tulsa, back to Jacksonville, where he hit .295 last season, and finally up to the Cardinals at the end of the year.

Two American Cities Bid for 1972 Games

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—The International Olympic Committee announced today it has received the application of two American cities to stage the 1972 Olympic games.

The IOC said it received a cable from Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh applying for the summer games, while American IOC member Douglas F. Roby personally submitted the application of Salt Lake City for the winter games.

On the other hand, the committee received a cable from the national olympic body of the Netherlands withdrawing the provisional application of Amsterdam for the 1972 summer games. The cable said the withdrawal was caused by the Dutch government's refusal to provide the necessary funds.

No word has been received so far from Vienna, which also applied for the summer games provisionally but has so far failed to obtain the financial backing from the Austrian government, or from Montreal another summer games contender.

So far, only Madrid and Munich have definitely applied for the summer games, and Calgary, Sapporo, Japan, and Lahti, Finland, for the winter games.

The deadline for applications, previously set for the end of 1965 but then extended, officially runs out Thursday.

30-miles-an-hour over six-inch grass . . .

13 INCHES LONG

'Snowless Skis' Born

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP)—Dr. David Storey, 37, and Clarke Wallace, 30, have been skiing without snow this winter, testing special skis on a private slope. If the skis prove practical, a Canadian company is considering manufacture of the "snowless skis."

Made in West Germany, each ski is 13 inches long and the surface is a nylon tread one inch wide with studs to grip the bare ground. The skier slips his foot into straps which hold the ski to the boot.

"They're just about the size of roller skates," said Dr. Storey. "The smoother the surface — grass or frozen ground—the better."

He has raced through grass up to six inches high and has reached speeds of 30 miles an hour on the skis. "The rolling action of the tread will handle the ruts but won't make the deep cuts. All rocks have to be cleared from the run."

Wallace feels that the skis can be used to get into shape before there is enough snow for conventional skiing.

World Class Skiers Must Use 'Hara-Kiri'

By ERIC WAHA

BAD GASTEIN, Austria (AP)—To be successful in an international slalom nowadays, skiers must be ready to commit hara-kiri.

That is the colorful description Austrian experts use for a new slalom style practised by French, Canadian and American ski aces.

The Austrians, Germans, Swiss and Italians have so far failed to adopt it.

"Hara-kiri slalom" artists include Jean-Claude Killy and the famed Goitschel sisters, Marielle and Christine of France.

The Goitschel sisters and Canada's Nancy Green, of Rossland, B.C., are the favorites for the Silver Jug races opening here Wednesday.

TAKE RISKS

The new style means to take every risk in the wild ride down a slalom course. If you stand up, you have a good chance to win.

But the new style requires more than dare-devil courage.

It is a marked change from the wedeln (wagging the tail) technique of the Austrians, which has assured them of a domineering position in alpine skiing for many years. This position has been challenged by the French, Americans, Canadians and Swiss.

A wedler uses a smooth heel-push to make a turn. A "hara-kiri" skier tries to make the turn by shifting his weight from one ski to the other without reducing speed.

The heel - push curbs speed and gives the skier a little breathing spell for the turn.

USES 'UPWEIGHTING'

Technically, the new style requires what the experts call upweighting."

A top Austrian expert, Franz Hoppichler, said:

"If the new generation of Austrian skiers want to win again, they must copy the hara - kiri slalom."

"They must learn to go all out. The Austrian youngsters have lost this ability. They want to 'play it safe.' That is why they have failed to break into the world elite."

Austrian head coach Sepp Sulzberger had made films of the top French slalom skier, 22-year-old Killy, to find out what makes him run. But whatever Sulzberger learned from the film has not yet been applied by the skiers.

The sequence of pictures showed Killy and one of the best Austrians, Gerhard Nenning, using a clearly different style. Killy was the winner of that race.

McLeod Blasts Pestering NHL

CALGARY (CP) — Jack McLeod, coach of Canada's national hockey team, has criticized NHL interference with the national team and says the situation is becoming "utterly ridiculous."

McLeod said in an interview that 16 of the national team's players are attending the University of Manitoba, but "I seriously don't think some of these (NHL) scouts want these boys to get an education."

He said Fran Huck of the Nationals earlier turned down "a respectable offer" to join an NHL team but NHL scouts still come to Winnipeg to try to get Huck to change his mind.

McLeod said the scouts did not deal either with him or with Rev. David Bauer, special adviser to the team, but went straight to Huck.

McLeod said the National team "bends over backwards" to cooperate with the NHL, but the latter does not return the cooperation.

He said the only way Canada can build a better team for world hockey championships is to have better competition.

He said if Canadians ever hope to beat the Russians they will have to play American Hockey League teams, even on a part-time basis. He suggested an interlocking schedule with the AHL.

The world hockey championships are being held in Yugoslavia in March.

BAD MANNERS PROVE COSTLY TO QUARTET

DETROIT (CP) — Jack Adams, president of the Central Professional Hockey League levied fines Monday totalling $250 on playing-coach Harry Sinden of Oklahoma City Blazers and three members of the team.

Sinden was assessed $100 and players Jean Paul Parise, Bill Goldworthy and Murray Davison were each fined $50 for the use of abusive language and conduct detrimental to hockey in a game Saturday at Tulsa. Oklahoma City defeated Tulsa Oilers 1-0 in the game.

Wings Clip Juniors

HAMILTON (CP) — Ab McDonald and Paul Henderson scored two goals each Monday night to lead Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League to a 6-0 shutout over the junior Hamilton Red Wings before 3,311 spectators.

Why Are You Ignored When You Talk?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in social and business advancement and works like magic to give you poise, self confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances there are ways to make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your request to: Conversation, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 4991, Chicago, Ill., 60614. A postcard will do.

'Time Joe With Winner' So Cassius Employs Him

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, unbeaten in his 22 pro fights, has hired Joe Louis to work with him "because it's time Joe was with a winner."

The former heavyweight king will have plenty of chances to be with a winner, said Clay in announcing that he hopes to have four fights this year. He said No. 1 may be announced tonight.

"I want the first one within 10 weeks to three months," said Clay, who celebrated his 24th birthday today.

Clay named Doug Jones of New York, Ernie Terrell of Chicago, George Chuvalo of Toronto and Brian London of England as the four possible opponents for this year, adding that Jones "is the most likely at this time."

The champion announced the hiring of Louis "for training and advising" and his fight plans in accepting the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque as Fighter of the Year. Louis sat next to him at the Boxing Writers Association's annual dinner Sunday night.

'THINKS HE'S CHAMP'

Clay said Jones, who dropped a controversial 10-round decision to Cassius in 1963, had moved ahead of Terrell on his list because "Terrell thinks he's the champion and wants all the money.

The champ said the site for his next fight would be picked from among New York, Chicago and Miami Beach.

"Man, how I want that fight," said Jones, winner of his last four fights by knockouts. "I beat him two years ago and he knows it. I'm confident I can whip him good if I get the chance. Then maybe he'll get a chance to see me get the Fighter of the Year trophy."

In announcing the addition of Louis to his camp, Clay said: "When I was a kid I never believed I'd ever meet Joe Louis. I hoped to be just half as good as he was. Now he's gonna be with me and show me that old-time stuff and help me get in shape. I'm gonna get him with a winner for a change."

Louis worked with a string of losers. His last one was Sonny Liston for the return fight with Clay. Liston went out in the first round.

CHAMP FAILS TO SHOW FOR BATTLE IN COURT

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay failed to appear in traffic court Monday to face a disorderly conduct charge. The case was postponed until Feb. 21.

Clay was arrested Dec. 14 while riding with two other men in an auto that police stopped because it had no licence plates or city sticker.

Police said Clay challenged them to hit him "so he could sue the city."

Mantle is Ready To Try First Base

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—Mickey Mantle could wind up his baseball career playing first base for New York Yankees, depending upon what Mayo Clinic doctors learn is wrong with his ailing right shoulder.

Mantle arrived Monday for three days of examination and possible treatment of his shoulder and legs, which hampered his outfield play in 1965.

The shoulder is Mantle's biggest worry. He has played on painful legs much of his 15-year American League career.

"It doesn't pain me but I can hardly lift it. I can't put anything on a throw."

The Mayo examination apparently will determine whether surgery can alleviate the shoulder trouble, or if it is a symptom of age. Mantle was 34 last Oct. 20.

Because of the shoulder, the Yankees may try to convert the great outfielder into a first baseman.

"I've never tried first base," he said, "but if I can't throw and they want me to try it, I'll give it a try."

Such a move would send Joe Pepitone to the outfield, a position he has played before.

WITHHOLDS APPROVAL

AFL's Foss Probes Tampering Claim

HOUSTON (AP) — Commissioner Joe Foss Monday withheld approval of the disputed trade involving Ernie Ladd and Earl Faison of San Diego Chargers while he investigates tampering charges — and at the same time has pointedly squashed rumors of his removal as head of the American Football League.

Foss, in holding up the transaction that sent the two mammoth defensive linemen to Houston Oilers in a five-player trade, climaxed a day in which he reaffirmed his position verbally and then backed it by employing his powers as commissioner.

Asked Monday about the rumors that the owners plan to buy up his contract, Foss said:

"I am still on duty and will be tomorrow and the next day and the next day."

Some eight hours later, at the conclusion of two lengthy meetings, Foss announced his decision to hold up the deal that sent Ladd and Faison to Houston for linebacker Johnny Baker, defensive end Gary Cutsinger and defensive back Pete Jaquess.

The five - player trade, announced Saturday by the Oilers, was immediately greeted by a verbal blast from Sid Gillman, the San Diego coach and general manager. Gillman criticized Houston owner Bud Adams for issuing inflammatory monetary statements and thus "weakening the Chargers' bargaining position."

Monte Carlo Champ Leads '66 Running

MONTE CARLO (Reuters) —Timo Makinen of Finland, 1965 winner of the Monte Carlo rally, was the first to finish the gruelling 862-mile second section of the 1966 contest today, after a 24-hour Alpine drive which knocked out all but about 90 of the original 192 entrants.

Makinen arrived at the finish line precisely on time and said he had a trouble-free run through the Alps to Chambery and back.

But 70 or more of the 159 who attempted the second stage of the rally dropped out because of mechanical failures, bad road conditions or the tough schedule on the 24-hour run which featured six hidden time checks.

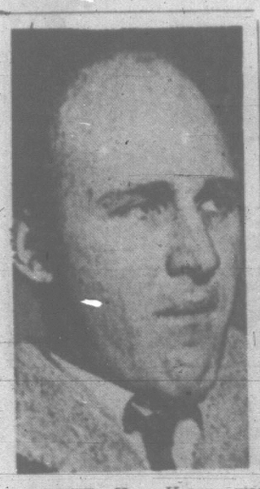
NOW IT'S BOOK TITLES FOR THINKING YOUNG

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP).—With the scenery full of Hermits, Beatles, Rolling Stones and the like, it isn't easy for a new musical group to find a distinctive name.

A North Central High School six-piece band, with a girl vocalist, did it, though.

They call it: Six and the Single Girl.

Man Runs Amok After LSD Dose



NOVELIST Ken Kesey was sentenced in Redwood City, Calif. Monday to six months in jail for possession of narcotics. Kesey and 13 guests were arrested in April in a raid on his hilltop home.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Ross McLean, medical director of a private hospital, warned today that use of the mind-expanding drug LSD could lead to untold harm if taken without proper supervision.

Dr. McLean, whose hospital uses LSD in the treatment of alcoholics, said the drug is still experimental and could be dangerous for a person taking it alone.

He was commenting on the case of a 36-year-old man who, apparently under the influence of the drug, was taken to hospital after running amok Monday. His wife told police that after wrecking their apartment the man fled to the street and ran up and down shouting that he was God.

His wife said her husband is not a drug user but had been given some LSD by a friend.

Dr. McLean said there is no doubt that the drug is dangerous if taken without supervision and he had known of people committing suicide after experimenting with it. It was difficult to prove, however, just what part the drug played in the suicides.

JFK MEMORIAL SIDELINED BY IRELAND

DUBLIN (AP)—The Irish government has shelved indefinitely its plans for a $7,500,000 concert hall as Ireland's memorial to U.S. President Kennedy, a government spokesman said Monday.

Political sources said the postponement decision was taken by Prime Minister Sean Lemass in the face of some opposition from members of his cabinet.

Ireland is in the middle of a credit squeeze. The government has postponed or abandoned several smaller capital projects and Lemass apparently thinks the expense of the memorial currently cannot be justified.

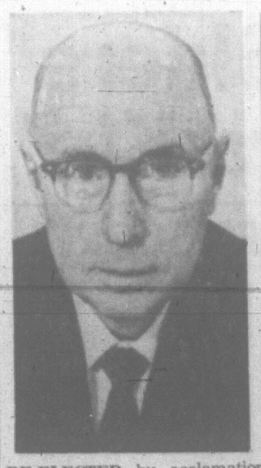
Campus Paper 'Released' By Printer

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—The Acadian University student newspaper Athenaeium has been released by the printer and copies distribtued to campus subscribers.

A spokesman for the weekly publication said Saturday distribution of the issue had been held up only about an hour until the printer, Kentville Publishing Company, was satisfied of legal position concerning one photo in the issue.

The issue contains photos, an editorial and a banner story about annual calendars reported impounded by Dr. E. S. Hanson, the university provost.

Dr. Hansen said the calendars were "in poor taste" and resembled tear-outs from girlie magazines.



RE-ELECTED by acclamation as chancellor of Simon Fraser University is Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of B.C. Hyrdo. His new term lasts for three years.

Halifax RCN Ships Arrive in Caribbean

By DAL WARRINGTON

ABOARD HMCS BONAVENTURE (CP)—A six-ship Canadian Navy task group from Halifax reached a point 100 miles northeast of Puerto Rico Sunday to begin three days of gunnery and anti-submarine practice in warm tropical waters. Air temperature was 80 degrees, the sea 77.

The ships headed by the aircraft carrier Bonaventure left home Wednesday for a 74-day cruise that will take them to Argentina and Uruguay. Also in the group are four destroyers and the supply ship Provider.

Departure temperature in snow-covered Halifax was 11 degrees, the water 30.

Commodore John C O'Brien, commander of the group a senior Canadian officer afloat, flew ashore to San Juan, Puerto Rican capital, Sunday afternoon. Today he will pay a call on the United States navy commander in the Caribbean, Rear-Admiral Richard S. Craighill.

For the next three days Bonaventure, commanded by Capt. Harry Porter, will work its helicopters and two-engine tracker planes in anti-submarine exercises with the British sub Acheron, also based at Halifax.

The sub came south earlier.

Destroyers Kootenay and Restigouche headed for a surface to - air firing range north of Puerto Rico. Destroyers Skeena and Saguenay will work on bombardment training off Culebra, a small island east of Puerto Rico.

During the 1,600-mile trip the ships and planes worked out in Bermuda waters and again as they neared Puerto Rico.

GAGLARDI 'DRAFTED'

Pothole Minister Tells His Story

By SUSAN PELLAND
Times Uvic Correspondent

Some 100 University of Victoria students were entertained for more than an hour Monday while Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi covered ground from Quebec provincialism to alcohol on the roads.

Gaglardi drew guffaws and cheers from the students gathered in the Elliott Building on the Gordon Head campus.

"I think I make the poorest politician in the world," he announced.

"Idespise the politician and I never had anything to do with politics until two months before they drafted me into politics. Now I'm minister of highways looking after your potholes," he said.

Launching off on provincial-federal relations, he said: "I don't think at the moment the federal government is doing too good a job. They're falling apart at the seams over the Quebec scene.

"Those Frenchmen are just as good as everyone else — not any worse and certainly not any better," he said.

Gaglardi told students he had been left "holding the bridge in mid-stream," referring to the Oak Street bridge in Vancouver.

He said because of lack of political know-how, he was not receiving either federal or provincial money to pay for the bridge.

NAIVE FELLOW

"You may think I'm a naive little fellow and like bragging, but I really don't," he added.

Gaglardi raised laughter with comments on the press and personal anecdotes.

"I think those guys in the press just make them (statements) up and write them up," he said. Gaglardi claimed that the press had misquoted him many times and had attributed statements to him that he hadn't made.

Asked "Is it true that Premier Bennett turned down your idea for the Burrard Inlet bridge and tunnel?" Gaglardi replied, "That's all it is — just an idea."

He said: "The premier has never turned down any recommendations of mine. The plan was given to me and I gave it to the press."

NATIONAL FEELING

Gaglardi told students that B.C. is a Canada-first and-B.C.-second government when asked what makes Quebec's attitude to federal politics different from B.C.'s.

"We are men of national feeling and always have been," he said. Then he added: "Anyone who things he can come out here and steal our natural resources has me to reckon with."

He said, "They're descriminating against B.C. . . . and you have never seen such a generous government's as B.C.'s."

If Quebec people were treated as equal, he said, they would respond that way.

Questioned about the Duncan-Lake Cowichan highway Gaglardi said that he had "travelled every inch of it" and nothing was wrong with it "that a little curve-straightening wouldn't fix."

"Bless my soul," he said, "I look after more highways in this province than any other man in the free world. They don't call me Flying Phil for nothing."

BLAMES ALCOHOL

Gaglardi said B.C. was spending hundreds of millions on highways that account for only 2 per cent of traffic fatalities. He told students that alcohol is the largest single killer on the roads.

"I am in favor of putting in a breathalizer test as compulsory," he said.

"And the federal government should pass legislation saying that a penalty will be enforced. It would eliminate 50 per cent of accidents," he told students.

"I'm dangerous enough sober," he said. "Do you think I'd take a drink and turn myself loose on the highways?"

Referring to a non-profit, government-controlled insurance programn Gaglardi said: "The government should keep its hands off free enterprise.

"I'm against any government-controlled enterprise," he said. "This is a democracy. I hate socialism. I hate anybody breathing down my neck."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Senate Monday quickly approved the nomination of Robert C. Weaver to be the first Negro member of the cabinet. Its action was unanimous and by voice vote.

. . . Red Square funeral

Space Genius 'Honored In Death'

MOSCOW (AP)—The genius whose designs put Soviet cosmonauts in space first but whose identity was hidden until death by Kremlin secrecy was honored today by Soviet leaders with a big funeral in Red Square.

The ceremony contained a strong hint that the late Sergei Powlovich Korolev may have ben the anonymous "chief designer" who headed the Soviet space program and gave the instructions from the ground control centre during space flights.

The announcement Saturday of Korolev's death revealed that he had designed the space ships that carried Yuri Gagarin, the first man to orbit the earth, and Alexei Leonov, the first man to walk in space.

Korolev died Friday at the age of 59. He had been operated on for removal of a cancer but death was officially attributed to heart failure.

ROBARTS CHARGES

Communication Poor In Medicare Project

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier John Robarts of Ontario said Monday techniques of federal-provincial communication have not kept pace with the growth of Canada.

An example was federal proposals for medicare, which he said went to the provinces with insufficient prior consultation.

Speaking to the Canadian Club of Montreal, he said the Canadian constitution gives the provinces broad responsibility for social services, but limited sources of tax revenue to carry them out.

"The federal government is proposing that the provinces each establish a medicare program to which it will contribute 50 per cent of the actual national per capita cost.

"On the pasis of present data this will mean a contribution of $14 per person and will represent a contribution of some $98,000,000 to the province of Ontario from the federal government.

"However, in order to take advantage of this opportunity, we shall be automatically committed to an expenditure that will exceed that amount by $182,000,000 per annum if we are to meet the requirements stipulated by the federal government."

WANT COMPULSION

These requirements are that the plan be compulsory for all, be government-operated, offer physicians' and specialists' services and be portable between provinces.

He compared the federal government's declared $328,000,000 surplus on a national accounts basis in 1964 with the combined deficit of $348,000,000 of the provinces and municipalities for the same period.

This situation, he said, makes it "relatively easy for the federal government to make such a contribution but would "incur certain hardships" on the provinces.

It was time for a new federal-provincial tax arrangement, where "we collect and we spend."

Asked whether Ontario has yet made a decision on the federal medicare proposals, Mr. Robarts said: "Our decision is not yet made but the costs of administrating such a scheme are bound to be higher for Ontario than other provinces.

"If the plan is to be carried through in its present form, Ontario's share of assistance must be re-assessed."

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1966—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

One day last week, I made the mistake of saying several nice things about my car as it trotted me obediently on various errands.

Next morning, with a non-stop squall of its horn and a cloud of smoke from under its instrument panel, the ungrateful little brute proceeded to burn up a portion of its wiring.

As a result, I have been forced to rediscover one of life's pleasures which had slipped away from me by imperceptible degrees over the years.

This is walking, a form of locomotion that most of us employ only when, as is the case with me, they find themselves robbed of their wheels.

The first day afoot was a trifle rough, partly because it was raining and my shoes leaked. I didn't synchronize very well, either—just kind of flapped along with head down and arms swinging out of time.

Next morning, though, matters went much better. The rain had stopped and I'd got over being cross with the car for its betrayal. What with all the fresh air, birds uttering intimations of spring, and the sight of traffic slaves lane-hopping in typical Victoria fashion, I decided that foot-slogging had much to commend it.

All this will no doubt change when my car is restored. Meanwhile, I can tramp a country mile again without puffing, am eating as if food were about to be taxed at liquor rates, and sleep so hard that even the world's most fiendish alarm clock can't wake me.

There are times when television lives up to its potential, and viewers were blessed with one of these last Sunday evening.

The hour-long show, a CBS news special titled "The Search for Ulysses," offered those lucky enough to catch it, such a cruise as they will not soon forget.

Island by island, with superb photography, and narration which was a nice blending of fact enriched by imaginative reconstruction, viewers were taken by sailing vessel along the route presumably followed by the Greek hero Ulysses in his leisurely return from the war with Troy.

I used to think that Homer's wily seafarer could have made it back to Ithaca and wife Penelope's welcoming arms in a great deal less time than the 10 years his trip is supposed to have taken. However, after this armchair tour of the waters he reputedly braved, I'm surprised he got there at all!

If this film is repeated sometime, I hope English teachers will alert their classes: at the very least, it should make Tennyson's lovely but lengthy "The Lotus Eaters" go down more easily.

Among the items which I must return to its rightful owner one of these days is a Victoria newspaper of 1901, loaned by a chum with an eye for a bargain.

In that now-distant era, you could outfit a boy with a velvet-collared chinchilla topcoat for $2.25, and a navy serge suit for $2.90.

Victoria Gas Co. Ltd. was installing its lamps at no cost other than a nickel-a-month charge for mantle renewal.

"Lights that light," it advertised.

One apparent reason for this open-handed policy on the part of the gaslight people is contained in a much larger ad inserted by B.C. Electric.

"Light that is right," it proclaims. "When you have the electric light, you have the very best."

Basket on arm, you could shop for sugar at 18 pounds for a dollar, and tuck in a bottle of port, if so inclined, for an extra quarter.

Deafness was advertised as curable, also brain fag, bodily weakness and general debility, if one chose the right nostrum.

There's a lot to be said for the world that was. But the hours were long, the pay was, after all, geared to the prices, and the wonder-remedies somehow fell short of the miracles they promised.

I wouldn't want to go back, even though spuds sold at 90c a sack, and the one-way fare to Nanaimo by the Victoria and Sidney Railway and the steamer Iroquois was a buck and a half.

RESCUE ACTIVITY at Oak Bay Marina this morning was determined, but limited. Setting out to look for three youths missing in a small boat since Saturday midnight are Keith Hynds, left, and charter boat operator George Moore. Earlier, Herbert Hynds chartered a plane to look for his son and companions; and J. W. Squire, whose son also is among the missing, left in his own boat. Air-sea rescue is on the job, but there was some suggestion today that an auxiliary rescue fleet of small boats should be organized locally, but drawn from experienced boatmen only.

No Trace of Trio Missing in Boat

Air-Sea Search For Young Hunters

Air-Sea Rescue officials said at 1 p.m. the RCMP motor launch Victoria and two 16-foot boats have entered the search. No new developments were reported.

Air-sea rescue planes and ships are engaged in a desperate search today for three Victoria youths.

Missing since they went on a duck-hunting expedition Saturday night are Dennis Powell, 18, of 1240 Newport; Ronald Hynds, 18, 2428 Dalhousie, and Wade Squire, 17, of 2741 Dewdney.

The boys left Oak Bay Marina Saturday midnight in a 12-foot, turquoise clinker-built open boat. It was powered by a five-horsepower outboard engine.

NO FOOD

They took no food except for six oranges. They told their parents they intended to sleep in a shack on Chatham Island until dawn when they proposed to shoot brant. The island is within sight of the marina.

They were to have returned Sunday but there has been no trace of them since.

RCAF and coast guard searchers were called into action Monday. Air-Sea Rescue co-ordination centre at Sea Island said a helicopter was loaned to the search by the Department of Transport Monday.

Coast Guard ships Ready and Racer were used in the search this morning and a Dakota aircraft from RCAF station at Comox was also deployed.

ENGINE TROUBLE

The DOT helicopter developed engine trouble and although crews worked on it all night it was not yet in the air at noon.

The father of one of the youths, Jack W. Squire, was searching for the trio in his own boat.

The uncle of another, Keith Hynds, 131 Grange, went out this morning from Oak Bay Marina in a chartered boat operated by George Moore. His brother, Ronald's father, Herbert Hynds, chartered a plane to fly over the Gulf Islands area.

Also at noon, search officials were considering whether to appeal to small boat owners in the area to join in the search. An official said small boats operated by local people who know the waters would be better able to search beach areas.

CALLED AWAY

An RCAF helicopter had been standing by at Comox also, but just before noon it was called to the Prince George area to take part in another search. An RCAF sergeant, Robert Taylor, based in that area, has been missing in dense bush since Sunday, it was reported.

A report from the U.S. Coast Guard said an aircraft has been sent out to search waters between San Juan Channel and the U.S. mainland.

There has been a general broadcast to all fishboats and other ships in the south Vancouver Island-Gulf Islands area to watch for the missing boat.

The general search area at noon extended from Chatham and Discovery Islands north east to the San Juans and southward, including portions of the Strait of Juan de Fuca southeast of Vancouver Island and west to William Head.

Owner of the boat used by the youths, Ralph Wherry, 939 Esquimalt, said they were equipped with life jackets and emergency gear.

WATER CALM

Marina officials said the water has been generally calm since the boys departed. However there was some fog when they left and the boys' parents believe if the motor was disabled the trio may have drifted to some remote island cove.

"There was a flood tide at the time they left. If their motor conked out it would have carried them in a northerly direction," a marina official said.

Mrs. Hynds said she tried to talk the boys out of their expedition, "but they wouldn't hear of it."

The three youths are all good friends and are fond of hunting and boating.

"I can't understand how they would disappear without a trace like that," said Mrs. Powell.

Ronald Hynds and Wade Squires are Oak Bay High students. Dennis Powell is a taxidermist's apprentice.

Keith Hynds, the uncle of Ronald, said, "Their plight must be getting desperate by now."

BURGLARY CHARGE DROPPED

A charge of breaking and entering against murderer David Leonard Robinson was withdrawn in central court today.

Robinson is serving a life term in Oakalla Prison for the May 11 murder of 14-year-old Glendale, Calif., schoolgirl schoolgirl Susan Freschi.

Her body was found the next day by police near her View Royal home at 2637 Chiloo Rd.

The charge alleged Robinson broke into a dwelling at 344A Old Island Highway May 3, 1965.

Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett said he wished to withdraw the charge following instructions from the attorney-general's department.

RESCUE SQUADRON PROPOSED

By PETER LOUDON

A volunteer small boat rescue squadron of qualified Victorians was proposed here today.

Department store manager Courtney Haddock, a past commodore of the Victoria Power Squadron, said he will propose the move to the power boat organization.

Mr. Haddock's decision followed reports today of a widespread search by Air-Sea Rescue for three Victoria youths who have been missing in a small open boat since midnight Saturday.

NO CO-ORDINATOR

Search officials at noon were considering asking small boat owners to volunteer to assist in the sea search by Coast Guard ships Ready and Racer.

A problem facing the Air-Sea Rescue service is that although small boats would be valuable in searching closer to shore than can the Coast Guard vessels, there is no qualified co-ordinator at present.

Any volunteer searchers must have a pattern laid down for them and communications must be maintained, Mr. Haddock said.

READY TO HELP

"We have the organization and if anything can be done in this line we would be willing to help," he added.

"We have a number of boats equipped with radio telephone."

He said fishboats, moored in quantity at Fishermen's Wharf at Victoria, would be invaluable in a search operation.

Mr. Haddock said some regulation is required to prevent youngsters from going out after dark in waters where weather conditions are so subject to rapid change.

He thought there would be no difficulty in finding a searchmaster who was thoroughly familiar with local waters and could maintain organization.

IDLE BOATS

The need for some such rescue service seemed apparent at Oak Bay waterfront. Scores of boats were lying idle at the marina floats.

Only two boats were in sight between here and Chatham Island where the missing boys had been headed.

The only small boats known

Officials Prepare United Front For Civic Unions

For the first time in civic history union employees of Vancouver Island municipalities will face a united front when contract negotiations start this month.

In the past each municipality has negotiated its own contract with its own employees.

This year, following a municipal summit meeting at Parksville on Nov. 26 last year, municipal leaders agreed that they should face union demands with closed ranks.

Preliminary studies of union demands started this week in Victoria but no formal discussions on contracts will start until all surrounding municipalities have received union demands.

Victoria city manager Dennis Young said this morning he expects formal discussions to start soon.

BROAD BASE

"We are waiting for other municipalities to receive their demands so that we can negotiate on a broader base than in the past," he said. "There has been a tendency to play one municipality against the other and we hope to overcome this."

Indications are that union demands this year will be heavy on fringe benefits and job protection clauses. It is also expected that though wage demands will be included they will play a relatively minor role in negotiations.

Municipalities deal with several unions during negotiations.

The major union is the Canadian Union of Public Employees covering inside and outside workers in most areas. Separate contracts are required for police, fire department workers, electricians, carpenters and registered nurses.

SEPARATE UNIT

At the time of the one-day Parksville conference, Mr. Young said the time had arrived when Vancouver Island should be treated as a separate economic unit.

Victoria police have already made their preliminary demands known. The major demand is for a 9 per cent wage increase plus various fringe benefits.

TOPICS of the DAY

City fire department was called when puffs of smoke were seen coming from an oil barge moored at Victoria's industrial reserve at noon today

The barge was moored alongside the B-A Oil plant at 51 Songhees Rd.

A company spokesman said the smoke was caused by a battery shorting out on board the barge and firemen were called as a precautionary measure.

A 14-foot boat valued at $900 has been reported stolen from Oak Bay Marina.

The boat was taken while still on its trailer, police said. The trailer was later recovered on Prospect Pl.

The boat is described as white with red deck trim and has a 40-hp, 1962 Johnson outboard motor.

★ ★ ★

The application for rezoning 3.5 acres is from John Chew Excavating Ltd.

The recreational use would be an archery range which would be in front of the heavy industrial site, acting as a landscape setback.

The proposed archery range would be within a short distance of Douglas Golfland, which also has an archery range.

B.C. Hydro employee James Chapman, 825 Goldstream, was in "satisfactory" condition in hospital today after being struck in the face by a guy wire on a job Friday.

Chapman was part of a ground crew which was tightening the guy wire along the Pat Bay Highway near Sidney when the jack broke and a piece of it hit him in the face.

A 68-year-old pedestrian was treated for thigh and leg injuries Monday afternoon after she was in collision with an auto at Vancouver and Fort.

Ann MacGregor, 1032 Packington Street, was crossing north to south on Fort when she was struck, police said.

Driver of the auto was identified as Margot Ann Jeune, 18, of 3515 Cardiff. She was proceeding east on Fort at the time, police said.

A woman was taken to hospital shortly after noon today when her car overturned at Foul Bay and Haultain Streets.

Police did not release the woman's name or details of the mishap at press time.

The woman suffered shock and bruises, police said.

UFAW OFFICIAL:

Aggressive Fish Export Major Need

A bigger domestic population and more aggressive exports of fish would enable Canada to move into mother ship fleets similar to the Soviet Union's, a Vancouver union official said today.

More kinds of fish must be caught to expand the salmon-halibut-herring field.

The Russians, with a population of 200 million, were able to keep fishing fleets roving the seas for six or seven months with mother ships taking the catches and freezer ships taking it home.

"Most countries of the world have populations that are short on animal protein, so the potential is there," he said.

"I am sure we could overcome currency problems."

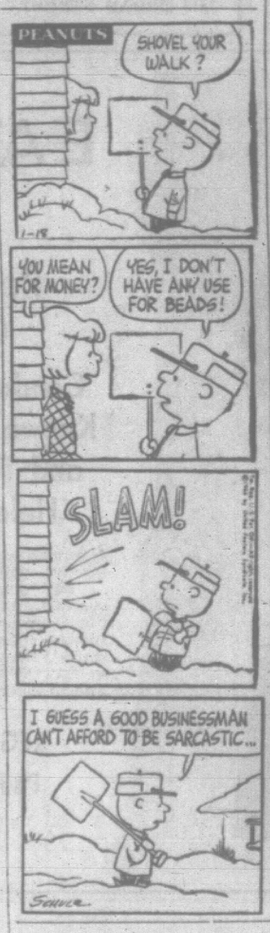
DOGFISH APLENTY

Mr. Nichol said there is an abundance of dogfish, which lives off other fish, which could be caught in greater numbers.

In Europe, he said, dogfish have been used in fish and chips for years.

Tuna now are sold directly to the United States. The industry should be expanded and the fish processed first in B.C., benefitting shore workers here.

Mr. Nichol is in Victoria to address a public meeting tonight at 8 in the Union Centre. He will show slides and movies of a recent trip to Poland, where he attended a meeting of the World Federation of Trade Unions.



Letter-Perfect? Not Victorians They Even Mail Their Wallets

Would you believe anyone could be so preoccupied he'd put a letter in his hip pocket and mail his wallet?

Or so stupid he'd throw a broken bottle into the letter-box?

Or so malicious he'd toss in a burning match?

Or so cruel he'd mail a small animal?

As comic-philosopher Jimmy Durante says, "we've got a million of 'em" . . . right here in Victoria.

Post Office administrator-supervisor Leon Hall tells the tale. In his position he deals with all incidents involving the 458 letterboxes on Victoria's 13 mail routes.

Some of the incidents related to him by the route collectors are funny and some, not so funny.

CHICKEN IN THE BOX

There was the collector who opened a Colwood parcel-box last summer and was confronted by two hysterically clucking chickens. One escaped but he caught the other and dutifully turned it in with the rest of his "mail collection." It was subsequently returned to the area and released.

And another had the startling experience of having a snake rear its head from a jumble of letters he was collecting.

"The point in fact," says Mr. Hall, "is that these creatures couldn't possibly get into the boxes by themselves."

GASHED HAND

More unhappy was the fate of the collecter who gashed his hand on a jagged beer bottle as he scooped the mail from a box.

The list of non-mail items gathered in mail boxes grows each day and includes the usual collection of wallets (some with fat bankrolls), car and house keys, chocolate wrappers, old newspapers, dead birds, empty food cans, a bottle half-full of whisky, and rocks, loads of rocks dropped into the boxes by mailers trying to find out if they missed the collection (sound of the rock hitting the bottom of the box tells them).

And there's a mailbox near Vic High wherein on any school day enough food is dropped to feed a man for a whole month with sandwiches, apples and the like . . .

In 1964, more than $53,000 in loose cash found its way across the country to a central "Unidentified Mail Office".

"Johnny is sent to the store with a dollar bill, a note to pick up a loaf of bread and a letter to mail. He stops at the mailbox first and mails the letter, and the note, and the money."

RETURNED TO OWNER

Those items which can be identified are returned to their owner. The others are forwarded to a national auction.

To redeem a mailed article is out of the question.

"Once inside the box, the item belongs to the person to which it is addressed," Mr. Hall says.

Although there are a lot of so-called practical jokes played in the area, there is little vandalism.

The Criminal Code makes it a federal offence to tamper with the mail. Damage to a mail box is also an indictable offence.

In addition to the many strange items that get stuffed into them, local mail boxes handle more than 80 per cent of the 7.2 million pieces of mail that move out of Victoria every month.

THE OLD AND THE NEW in mail boxes — metal vs. plastic — are displayed here by post office maintenance man Ken Dicks. Plastic models will start appearing soon in Greater Victoria area.

$250,000 PROJECT

35 Suites Planned For Senior Citizens

A $250,000 low-cost housing project for senior citizens is planned on a site at the Saanich-city boundary.

The project would provide 35 one-bedroom apartments for the elderly. Rents would be $40 a month for single persons, slightly more for married couples.

An application to rezone two lots on the northwest corner of Tolmie and Linwood has been made to Saanich by Wade, Stockill and Armour (architects) on behalf of the Fairhaven Foundation.

The foundation is a non-profit society sponsored by the Plymouth Brethren, a religious group.

A director of the Fairhaven Foundation, William Hamilton, said the project is the first by the group in this area. Accommodation will not necessarily be restricted to members of the Plymouth Brethren.

He said accommodation would be restricted to those with a monthly income of less than $145 and those who are able to look after themselves.

The project was undertaken "because we became aware of the need for low-cost housing for the elderly," he said.

Today's Opening of Parliament Preceded by Colorful Reception

OTTAWA (CP)—"Has anybody here seen Allan MacEachen?" cried the harried Government House aide, pushing his way through the laughing, heaving, chattering crowd.

"Her Excellency would like to speak to him."

The scene was the ballroom of Rideau Hall. The occasion was the governor-general's traditional reception for members of Parliament and the diplomatic corps on the eve of an opening of Parliament.

More than 300 guests, the largest crowd to attend the event in the memory of seasoned Government House hands, filed through the long drawing room to be presented to Gen. Vanier and his wife, and then lined up six and eight deep for food and drink.

"Usually only 70 per cent of those invited show up. Tonight everybody came," said one waiter.

Inside the ballroom the temperature climbed. Allan MacEachen was discovered and brought to Mme. Vanier's corner.

CHATS WITH DIEFENBAKER

Mr. MacEachen, newly-appointed health minister, chatted with Her Excellency, Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and his wife and Lieutenant-Governor W. J. Macdonald of Prince Edward Island and his wife.

Gen. Vanier met Defence Minister Hellyer, manpower minister-to-be Jean Marchand, and a score of other parliamentarians and diplomats.

Returning to the Commons after an absence of several years, Trade Minister Robert Winters looked very much at home at Government House as he and his wife greeted old friends.

Prime Minister Pearson and his wife talked for a long time with former Governor-General Vincent Massey, who is in Ottawa for the opening of Parliament today.

The cabinet ministers intermingled with religious leaders and top-echelon diplomats ate Gaspe salmon, and filet mignon with mushrooms, topped off with petite fours and champagne.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, wearing a navy blue gown, was the only woman present at the Governor-General's state dinner earlier. She sat at the huge horseshoe-shaped table next to Forestry Minister Sauve and across from Revenue Minister Benson.

The dinner and reception ended shortly after midnight with a massive traffic jam at the front door of Government House.

Slowly each car was driven around to the front door of the stately vice-regal residence. Guests were still departing after 1 a.m.

IN STEP WITH STYLE — By NONA DAMASKE

Show Held for Embryo Designers

NEW YORK — There are many embryo designers in the world and a good sewing machine, a simple course of instruction, and lots of enthusiasm can light the spark.

Damaske

Many of America's top designers run pattern pictures in newspapers across the country (Victoria Daily Times carries one regularly). For a few cents you may easily obtain a paper pattern which is a line-for-line copy of one of this season's top designers.

The Singer Company, our host at a recent luncheon let us know that spring is just around the corner by placing low bowls of delicate pastel daisies and snapdragons on each table.

Narrator for the show was Judith Crist, film critic of the New York Herald Tribune and drama reviewer for the "Today" show.

UNUSUAL BACKDROP

Designs by Oleg Cassini, Hannah Troy, Mr. Blackwell, Ben Reig and many others were shown on the runway with a backdrop staging of attractive sewing machines. These machines would add a great deal of chic to any smart home decor . . . desk-type sewing machines in French provincial styling . . . streamline featherweight portables in the modern manner . . . high fidelity stereo phonographs and portable television machines for the jet set . . . all an important part of this world-wide organization. Newest gimmick for the home sewer is an attachment which will sew fur . . . how about ripping up that worn fur coat and taking the good portions to trim a suit or coat?

One way to be an individual is to design your own . . . Singer will help you . . . who knows you might have that flair that brings fashion-hungry women running to your door!

LOOK OF YOUTH

One of the zingiest shows so far was presented by Junior Sophisticates. The present surge to a look of youngness is "right up the alley" of this wide-awake firm. The Charleston may be out, but the look of the 1920s and 30s is in. Pleats of all sizes are brought back to life on the short above-the-knee skirts. The trumpet flair skirt shows new grace and bounce. One persimmon two-piece dress with a long overblouse and skirt of black crepe . . . simple and sophisticated.

The 1966s dapper flapper will "do" the town in the long, slinky look shown in a dress in black with rhinestone straps coming to a V in front. Short short skirts often have feathers that hug the hemline. Brown turkey feathers bounce at the hemline of an ivory crepe coat that opens to reveal a matching slip of a dress.

If you think OP ART is confined to canvas, your just aren't with it these days. Fashion continues to take Op Art to its heart. Junior Sophisticates creates "Op Art" masterpieces in their little day dresses of navy and red jerseys.

Five years ago THE place to go in New York was the Peppermint Lounge . . . internationally known as the original citadel of the twist. The Peppermint Lounge darkened its doors in December but there is always another "IN" place. At this moment it is "Arthurs" owned by Sybil Burton and the dances of course are The Frug . . . Swim . . . Watusi and The Jerk. Even if I knew how to dance any of these uninhibited dances there was not an inch on the floor. It was fun to see and it brought back memories of the crush and din of the Peppermint Lounge. Roddy McDowell was at the next table and I was told he has an interest in Arthurs. Everything is worn, from copper-rivet-studded blue denims, to the most sophisticated of long clinging evening gowns. Noisy . . . smoky . . . crowded but fun.

Second Debut For Mother

Since Mother has lost those lines and wrinkles she says it's like a 2nd Debut. And that's exactly what brought about this miracle that lifted her face out of lines and wrinkles . . . 2nd Debut with CEF 600. It's the moisturizing skin lotion that feeds dry wrinkled skin so much healthful moisture, the lines and wrinkles are pushed up and out. Once again skin is smooth and wrinkle free. If a dry old looking skin is your problem, why don't you ask your drug or department store for 2nd Debut . . . the only skin lotion with CEF 600 and CEF 1200 in double strength. It has the power to help lift your face out of lines and wrinkles fast.

DEAR ABBY . . .

What's Not Dignified?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I raised three fine children. Two sons—are now happily married, and both had beautiful weddings to remember. Our youngest, a girl 23, has fallen in love with an assistant professor who doesn't have enough money even to buy her an engagement ring. They have known each other only five months and now they want to get married, but with "no muss, no fuss" (her words). They want just his parents, us and the preacher at the wedding. Should we allow our daughter, a fourth generation Canadian, to get married without dignity—like a hillbilly?

UNHAPPY PARENTS

DEAR UNHAPPY: Every bride is entitled to the kind of wedding she wants. Just be glad she wants YOU there. It sounds "dignified" enough to me.

DEAR ABBY: We live in one of the best neighborhoods in town. There is not one house on our block that is worth less than $75,000. Some new neighbors moved in next door to us and I understand they bought the house for the asking price and paid CASH.

They seem very nice, but they are strange. The first thing we noticed was that they didn't have a television antenna, so my little boy asked their little boy about it, and he said they didn't have a television set! They have only one automobile (and a two-car garage!) and the father drives the car to work every day and the children and mother all use the bus. They rarely go anywhere, except to church. The wife doesn't have any fancy clothes or jewelry or furs. The children do not have any toys dealing with war or violence. Could they belong to some offbeat religious cult? What do you make of them?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Maybe they've just got cash, conservative standards, high moral principles and pacifistic ideals.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is deeply troubled by his knowledge of an affair that is going on between his brother's wife and his sister's husband. (This is not just "hearsay"—he has all the facts.) Neither his brother nor his sister is aware of it, but it is slowly breaking my husband both physically and mentally. There are young children on both sides. My husband doesn't know what, if anything, he should do about it. He has asked for my help, but I don't know what to tell him. Do you think the innocent brother and sister should be told? It is really their problem. Please suggest something.

NO NAME

DEAR NO: Your husband should talk to the guilty parties privately and ask them to end the affair in the name of decency and out of respect for their respective families. Under no circumstances should the innocent brother and sister be told. If your husband's efforts fail, he will at least know that he tried.

CARRIES BIBLE

Dainty Appliques Accent Bride's White Satin Gown

Exquisite embroidered appliques were a highlight to the fitted bodice of the white satin gown worn by Leigh Evelyn Blakey, Saturday evening, when she became the bride of Daryl Edward Thom.

The fitted bodice also featured a round neckline, elbow-length sleeves and a full court train which swept back from two bows at the shoulders. Her bouffant veil misted to her shoulders from a headpiece of a single self-fabric rose and she carried a white Bible, topped with an arrangement of pink roses. Only jewelry was a pearl pendant, gift of the groom.

Setting the pink and white theme for the wedding were the arrangements of pink chrysanthemums and carnations which decorated St. Columba Church for the evening service. Rev. John Vickers officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Blakey of Victoria and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Earl Thom, 1092 Madrona Drive. Paul Blakey gave his sister in marriage.

Street-length dresses of fuchsia-pink velveteen, made by matron of honor Mrs. L. V. Thomas, were worn by the bride's attendants. Bridesmaids were the Misses Vicki Prette and Carol Thom.

Accenting their outfits were self-fabric bow headpieces, edged with net, and colonial bouquets of pink carnations, centred with roses en tone. The bridesmaids' only jewelry was silver lockets, gifts of the bride and groom.

Ronald Thom was best man for his brother. Ushering guests to their pews were L. V. Thomas and V. E. Gallop, Campbell River.

Miniature figures of a bride and groom, which had decorated the wedding cake of the bride's parents, topped the three-tier cake which centred the head table at the reception following in Holyrood House. R. A. B. Prette proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple will make their home at Campbell River following a honeymoon trip to the mainland. The new Mrs. Thom chose a three-piece walking suit of muted jade green, interwoven with black thread, for travelling. Complementing the ensemble were black accessories and an orchid corsage.

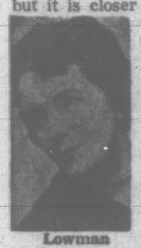
Lie on your left side and place your right hand in front of you on the floor for balance. Rest your head on your left hand, left elbow on floor. Swing your left leg forward as you swing your right leg backward. Then the right leg swings forward as the left moves backward. Continue. This is a good motion for attractive hip, thigh and abdominal measurements.

Beauty Improvement Plan Demands Complexion Care

Don't meet this coming spring with the birds hopping and the buttons popping! Spring may not be just around the corner but it is closer than you think. Weeks fly by so rapidly that before we know it we will be looking at the lovely new spring clothes and trying to get into those we had last year.



Lowman

Meet spring halfway this year, without figure problems. This is the seventh article of my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan which has been appearing in this newspaper. For two more days I will continue to bring you information which will make it not only possible, but pleasant, to carry on by yourself for the entire eight weeks.

The majority of the women who follow my plan want to lose weight, and they do. However, the overall idea is to see how much more attractive you can become in eight short weeks. Of course the loss of overweight is an important part of this program but special care of the complexion is also essential.

Most of us are so busy that we are apt to give our skin hit and miss attention. This doesn't help much more than off-and-on dieting or exercise do. It is the regular effort which adds up to a lovely total. So, during the eight weeks why not go all out and give your complexion special care, too.

As the years pass, the natural oils in the skin decrease. In order to keep the skin soft, and therefore less apt to wrinkle, we must compensate for this loss by the regular use of a lubricating cream. Unless a woman has a very oily complexion she is sure to profit by this from the age of thirty on, and even sooner, if she has a very dry skin or lives in a very dry climate.

If your skin is dry, use a cleansing cream most of the time and soap and water only occasionally. Give lubricating creams time to soak in every day or night. Pat an eye cream about the eyes before going to sleep at night. Avoid astringents.

The opposite is true if you have an oily complexion. Use soap and water for cleansing, and if your skin is very oily wash your face several times a day with soap and water. Do NOT use creams but DO use astringents.

In either case, don't clog the pores by leaving makeup on overnight. Cleanliness is the foundation of all beauty. The diets you are following and the exercises you are doing will be reflected most happily in the beauty of your complexion. We sometimes forget that our skin is a living part of us and that it must be fed by our bloodstream and stimulated by our physical activity.

Cleaning Problems? Try This Solution

By Penny Saver

Chemical-coated cookware, since its introduction to the market a few years ago, with its non-stick, non-scour properties, has been a wonderful boon to many a housewife's kitchen. I remember the day that I brought home my first frypan, that the storekeeper claimed would even fry an egg using no oil at all. I didn't believe it. Amazing as it was, I did fry an egg, using no oil, and it didn't stick.

Some housewives have found that their frypans and other chemical-coated cooking utensils have lost some of their properties. This, I discovered, is due to a build-up of carbonized fats on the surface.

These stains can be removed. The first thought here is a bout in the dishpan, scrubbing and scraping the pan. This technique will, of course, ruin the chemical finish, and the properties of the pan will go down the drain.

There is a new cleaner now on the market, specially made to remove stains, from chemically treated pans and plastics. It contains alkaline-chemicals and phosphates.

To clean a pan, put two or three teaspoons of this powder in near-boiling water. Soak your pans from five to 30 minutes. Remove them from the solution, and wash thoroughly in hot, soapy water, and dry. If necessary, repeat the process.

This remarkable powder is priced at 98 cents for nine ounces.

Do you want to know where Penny found this wonderful cleaning solution? Give her a call at 382-3131.

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Eunice Farmer:

In a little club I belong to the women have been talking about wearing long dresses for parties. We just aren't sophisticated enough or just don't have enough courage, but we would really like to make something long. How can we get the confidence to wear them when we get them finished?

Mrs. R. A.

Dear Mrs. R. A.:

There is nothing more beautiful or feminine than long dresses and wearing them at a given party. After you break the ice, it is always easier to continue.

You are very fortunate to be able to sew and make these gowns yourselves. If you had to spend a great sum of money on a long dress, you probably wouldn't be able to justify the expense. However, when you can sew, it only takes an extra half yard of most width fabrics to make a long skirt. Most evening gowns are simple in line and fabric and usually can be cut off later to street-length.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

BITS 'N' PIECES: There was tremendous renewed interest in songs by Frank Sinatra following two major television specials in November. The first was a CBS-TV documentary about his career which was overly kind to the aging singer. The second was an outstanding one-man musical hour on NBC-TV.

Stephen

A spokesman for Sinatra's record firm, Reprise, said the sales for the singer's albums for that company grossed more than $9,000,000 for the one-month period, Nov. 24 - Dec. 25 . . . Nov. 24 was the day of his one-man singing effort. The spokesman said that in the month-long period, about 2,000,000 albums of Sinatra's 15 in the company's catalogue were sold over the counter.

Three of the releases, September of My Years, Sinatra: A Man and His Music and My Kind of Broadway accounted for some 70 per cent of the total sales.

The NBC-TV Sinatra show ranked 20th in the ratings among the television season's specials so far . . . The No. 1 special in the ratings was CBS-TV's "Ice Capades" show with Arthur Godfrey as host.

Runners-up in the No. 2 and 3 positions were CBS-TV's A Charlie Brown Christmas and NBC-TV's Julie Andrews musical.

22-year-old Catherine McKinnon, a featured vocalist on CBC-TV's Don Messer's Jubilee, is now completing a great step forward in her entertainment career.

By the time she returns to Halifax at the end of this month, she will have appeared on four of the world's major English-speaking television networks—CBC, BBC, ITV and CBS—in the short span of four weeks.

Broadway playwright and producer, Fred F. Finklehoffe, has formed a company to be called Closing Night, Inc. The new company will secure the rights of Broadway and off-Broadway shows as they approach their closing dates and photograph them during actual performances through the use of a new electronic system.

Tapes will be sold for use on home video-tape recorders and also syndicated for television on a regional network basis which will be set up by the company. Finklehoffe is anticipating the growing market in home video-tape projection and believes that within the next two years in excess of 500,000 American homes will have the equipment to show his films which will be packaged in cartridge form.

CHILDPROOF HOME

In amazingly good condition is this older character home, considering the owner had 7 children here. Immediate occupancy is available as the home is vacant and vendor is desperate to sell. Price has been dropped from a reasonable $13,200 to the ridiculous for a quick and solid sale. Exterior is white shingle, roof is duroid, heating is new and automatic, plumbing is copper, wiring is 100 amp and hot water is new, gas fired and glass lined. Grounds need very little attention. Vestibule type entrance through attractive granite pillars, leads to small red carpeted den with fireplace. Living and family room has expensive rolled vinyl floors for easy care and dining room is very large with built-in china closets. Kitchen is large and needs chipping and painting but includes excellent gas stove. Bedrooms are upstairs and all have mammoth closets.

Death Penalty Set Aside By Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—The issue of capital punishment will come to a free vote early in the new parliament opening today after the Pearson government Monday maintained its unstated opposition to hanging.

The latest convicted murderer to be spared and the 20th consecutive commutation of a death sentence since the Liberal governmnt took office three years ago is Reginald John Colpitts, 19, of Monton.

Colpitts had been sentenced to hang early Wednesday for the stabbing of a Dorchester penitentiary guard, Edwin Masterton, 49.

Most parties are split on the issue of capital punishment but Prime Minister Pearson has promised to give the debate a high priority free of party lines.

PRESSURE GROWS

Political pressure against capital punishment has been growing in Canada for 10 years. Both Mr. Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker are known to abhor the death penalty.

But Ottawa's "systematic commutations" have been hotly criticized by police chiefs, penitentiary guards and Premier Jean Lesage and Justice Minister Claude Wagner of Quebec.

The last hanging in Canada took place Dec. 11, 1962 in Toronto when Ronald Turpin and Arthur Lucas were executed. Since then the former Conservative government commuted three sentences and the Liberals all 20 they reviewed.

In Colpitts' case, he was twice convicted of knifing guard Masterton Sept. 23, 1964, in the Dorchester Penitentiary yard while serving a 12-year sentence for armed robbery.

The first conviction was quashed by the Supreme Court of Canada on a question of law and a new trial ordered. He was convicted again last Oct. 29 and later lost an appeal to the New Brunswick appeal court.

Colpitts now will serve a life sentence in Dorchester and will not be paroled unless the Cabinet approves a parole board recommendation after a 10-year review.

With the vote looming in Parliament, 12 other convicted murderers are awaiting dates with the hangman. They include two Quebec Separatist terrorists, underworld gunmen and bank robbers.

All cases are pending before appeal courts and stays of execution will be granted until all legal recourses have been exhausted.

SCIENTISTS ON HUNT FOR ELUSIVE THIRD SEX

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Some day, science may produce a human being of the third sex—neither male nor female—and then a fourth sex who will be a man-woman, a Canadian scientist predicted Monday.

Dr. K. A. McCully of Ottawa, pesticides' chemist for the Canadian health department, said development of third and fourth sexes has become conceivable because of strides being made in manipulation of the genes and chromosomes of humans.

Some parents eventually may take advantage of science and pre-order their children by sex, he predicted in an interview.

Dr. McCully was in Phoenix for the winter meeting of the American Chemical Society.

CENTRAL SAANICH

New Vote Proposed On Heated Swim Pool

Central Saanich ratepayers indicated Monday they favor a swimming pool as a centennial project—but only if the pool is heated.

They voted 41-2 in favor of a heated, 30x60-foot pool.

The vote, which had no official status, may result in a second questionnaire being distributed to ratepayers. First questionnaire simply asked ratepayers to indicate whether they favor an open-air, unheated pool as a Centennial project.

However, Coun. Tom Michell said after the meeting he may propose at a council meeting tonight that all returns to the first questionnaire be destroyed without being opened and a second ballot distributed on the heated pool proposal.

The meeting at Saanichton was the second of two meetings called by council to assess public opinion.

A meeting at Brentwood last Thursday resulted in a 21-18 approval of an unheated pool, but some councillors said they thought the project would have been approved by a wider margin if the vote had been taken on a heated pool.

ADD $4,000

The local Centennial committee has estimated total cost of an unheated pool, at $36,000. Heating the pool may cost an additional $4,000 although committee chairman Albert Vickers believes a heating unit could be included in the $36,000 figure.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee said a one-mill tax increase would take care of immediate capital costs of the project as well as operating costs.

The pool would be constructed at Centennial Park on Wallace Drive as part of a centralized recreational area.

Defending Self With Crutch, Says Accused

A crutch has become the crux of a trial which is continuing today in central magistrate's court.

Did Kenneth Roy use one or both of his crutches to clobber city constable James Ramsay or was he protecting himself?

Roy is charged with assaulting a peace officer Nov. 27.

Roy testified Monday he had a broken leg at the time and it was in a walking cast. It was painful if any weight was put on the limb, he said.

He said his brother Ralph was struggling with Constable Ramsay just below the porch on which he was standing at his brother's home, 1543 Morley.

Police came to the Ralph home that night to investigate a complaint of a disturbance.

FALLING BACKWARD

Kenneth Roy said he saw the pair falling backward toward him and he stuck out his crutch to protect his leg.

Constable Ramsay testified he "felt a blow on the crown of my head. It was quite a heavy blow."

Constable Kenneth Horsman said he saw the defendant holding the crutches in both hands.

"The accused was about to bring the crutches down a second time but I lunged forward and deflected the blow," he said.

The trial is continuing.

Group Elects New Officers

The Victoria Numismatic Society has elected Dr. Stuart Kenning president for 1966.

Other recently elected officers are Donald H. Mollison, vice-president; Sidney Langhelt, secretary; Dr. C. D. Orchard, treasurer. Directors are J. R. Pipes, past president; Mrs. Grace Cox; Mrs. Roma George; and Ronald Greene.

Next meeting of the society will be held Jan. 31 at 8 p.m. at the Victoria Art Gallery, 1040 Moss St.

Teachers Learn In Crayon Class

About 50 teachers from schools in Sooke and Saanich are expected to attend an art workshop Jan. 20, 21 and 22 at John Stubbs Elementary School.

The workshop, conducted by a crayon company will show teachers some techniques of creative art education and some of its materials and tools.

Teachers will use crayons, water colors, poster paints chalk and modelling clay to learn techniques that they can later apply in their classroom teaching.

'Visual Illiteracy' Protested

DUNCAN—Vancouver landscape architect Clive Justice told city council Monday most communities in B.C. are guilty of "visual illiteracy" in park development.

"In the case of many Rotary and Kiwanis parks in the province it would have been better if the members had gone out and got drunk on the money," said Mr. Justice.

He made the comments when council was considering development of Wharncliffe Park as the city's centennial project.

LAG 15 YEARS

Mr. Justice told aldermen that most B.C. communities park development lagged 15 years behind development of other facilities.

He said in one suburban area of Greater Vancouver the authorities finally got around to constructing playgrounds only to find that by the time the work was completed there were no preschool children to use them.

The biggest lack in every community is not having a master plan so the development could be tackled in stages.

Mayor Jack Dobson said this morning the city will probably retain Mr. Justice's firm to draw up a master park development plan for Duncan.

Mr. Justice outlined for council Monday an over-all plan which includes development at Wharncliffe, the adjoining Rotary Park and the 11 acres east of Centennial Heights subdivision.

Mr. Justice also suggested the Centennial Heights land could also be developed either as a bird sanctuary or rhododendron garden.

"Too many communities are insensitive to the natural beauty surrounding them," he said.

Mr. Justice was educated at Cowichan High School here and spent most of his youth in this area.

AMBULANCE

$6,000 Subsidy Sought

NANAIMO—Island Ambulance Ltd. Monday requested a $6,000 annual subsidy increase from the city.

Gordon Wagner said in a letter to council the increased subsidy is required because he has been forced to use "outdated and unreliable vehicles."

He indicated he could buy a new four-stretcher ambulance if council approved the increased subsidy.

His request was referred to the finance committee.

NANAIMO — Fred Spencer, federal returning officer for Nanaimo-Cowichan-the Islands constituency, said Monday the present system of choosing enumerators is unsatisfactory.

"I feel it should be done through the National Employment Service where a test of qualifications could be made," he told a meeting of the Local Council of Women.

Enumerators are chosen in urban areas by the parties which polled the greatest number of votes in the previous election.

Mr. Spencer suggested the answer to the problem of allowing hospital patients to vote could be a system of absentee ballots patterned after those distributed to servicemen.

Transportation Needed to Aid Handicapped

Transportation is needed for handicapped persons attending the Arbutus Crafts workshop where an activities program for them is maintained.

About 40 handicapped meet to do weaving, rug-hooking, basketry, ceramics and woodwork at the workshop at 1119 Vancouver St.

Rides are needed to take them to and from the centre, often once a week.

Information about giving lifts to the handicapped is available from George Hudson at 385-0445.

VANDALS SMASH LIGHTS

DUNCAN—Vandals are smashing the outside lights at Alexander and Quamichan Schools almost as fast as they can be replaced.

Trustee Neil Dorning Monday night questioned the use of replacing them.

And trustee Joseph Frumento said the school board should check the cost of night patrols against the damage loss before making a decision to patrol.

However, the board agreed to institute a system of patrols in the hope of catching one of the vandals.

75% DAMAGED

Works supervisor Ed Burnett reported 75 per cent of the exterior lights at Alexander Elementary School had been damaged beyond repair.

The two schools are beside each other on the townsite.

Mr. Burnett also reported continuous window breaking at Duncan Elementary School.

Schools superintendent Art Jones said it did not appear to be the work of students.

Fire Destroys Mill Bay Home

MILL BAY—An isolated waterfront cottage was burned to the ground Monday afternoon.

Tenant Dennis Brewer was at work in Duncan as a salesman with a local grain store.

His wife Irma and their two children, Kathy, four, and Kenny, two, were in Duncan shopping.

'BEYOND SAVING'

A number of people apparently saw the blaze but dismissed it as slash burning.

Mill Bay Fire Chief Bob Trousdell said: "When the alarm was finally raised the house was beyond saving."

The Brewer family has been left with nothing but the clothes they were wearing.

The family is staying with Jack Prasloski, Duncan, manager of the store where Mr. Brewer works.

The Brewers rented the Willshire Road cottage from Dr. C. H. Beevor-Potts who is holidaying in Europe.

Bus Drivers Ask 15-25% Pay Hike

DUNCAN—School bus drivers and maintenance workers of Cowichan School District are demanding wage increases ranging from 15 to 25 per cent.

Trustee Neil Dorning said Monday the demands made by the IWA were designed to bring board employees into line with industry.

Trustee Dorning, admitting the board lagged behind industry in wages, said: "This is the big principle at stake."

60 AFFECTED

About 60 board employees are affected.

Trustee Wilf Peck moved discussion be in committee.

But chairman Will Dobson ruled: "It's public business and the public should be aware of the board's problems."

The board retained the B.C. School Trustees' Association labor relations division as its bargainers in the dispute.

Department Balks On Wing Cost

DUNCAN — Provincial education department has informed the school board it will only share the cost of a vocational wing if the contract price is cut by $30,000 to $340,000.

The school board last week awarded a $370,000 contract to Cowichan Construction Ltd., for the addition to the senior secondary school.

The original board estimate was $300,000.

Suggestions to cut costs of the building will be studied by the building committee.

65,529 CAME FROM U.S. VIA SIDNEY

Figures released Monday show that 65,529 passengers arrived at Sidney during the year from Washington ports.

C. E. Blaney, local agent for Washington State Ferries, said the difference between 1965 and 1964 figures was negligible, but he noted that 1964 was a good year for the ferry system.

U.S.-bound passengers from Sidney numbered 56,533 last year.

Total of 19,000 vehicles arrived at Sidney from Anacortes last year and 16,440 travelled to the U.S. via Sidney.

to be engaged in the search this morning were one owned by the father of one of the missing boys and another chartered by an uncle.

Although Racer and Ready, the two west coast Coast Guard ships were out on the search, three aircraft were in use—one from RCAF Comox station and one sent out by the U.S. coast guard.

The third plane had been chartered by one of the boys' fathers.

'COPTER OUT

A Department of Transport helicopter which was in use Monday was out of action this morning due to mechanical difficulties and a RCAF helicopter which had been standing by was diverted to another search at Prince George.

If the missing youths were carried north by Saturday night's flood tide, they could be on any of dozens of remote Gulf Islands — where no careful beach search is now under way by boats small enough or numerous enough for the task.

China Reds Invited To Party

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters) —Military commanders on the Nationalist Chinese island of Quemoy have invited Communist Chinese—even Communist soldiers—to spend the Lunar New Year on the island.

The Quemoy command also announced a three-day suspension in shelling of the mainland to mark the period from Friday to Sunday.

The island is shelled by Communist propaganda leaflets, and fires similar shells in reply, on odd - numbered days only under an unsigned understanding in recent years.

The invitation to mainlanders, the first ever issued, is being sent out daily by radio, leaflets and loudspeakers. It guarantees safety and a warm reception.

The Nationalists have about 70,000 troops on the Quemoy group, the closest Nationalist-territory to Communist China.

'Waaner Like Batman'

Quebec province's controversial Justice Minister Claude Wagner was laughed off as a comic strip character by Attorney-general Robert Bonner Monday.

"He may very well be the Canadian answer to Batman," said Mr. Bonner.

The cutting comparison was Mr. Bonner's response to a boast by Mr. Wagner that his provincial police force had done more to fight crime in one year than the RCMP had done since 1951.

"Mr. Wagner can make a career of fighting crime if he goes nowhere but his own province," said Mr. Bonner.

The B.C. attorney-general said Mr. Wagner's attitude now was very different from his stance at last week's federal-provincial crime conference and he had no reason to criticize the crime-fighting efforts of other provinces. The RCMP police many B.C. districts.

"I'm sure he knows nothing of conditions in B.C.," Mr. Bonner said.

Election Day Drought 'Unrealistic, Outdated'

British Columbians should be allowed a drink on local election days, a Chamber of Commerce resolution submits.

The resolution will go before a meeting Wednesday of Associated Vancouver Island Chambers of Commerce in Nanaimo.

It will be delivered to a Chamber convention in March for submission to the provincial government.

The Municipal Act section requiring liquor outlets to close on election day should be repealed as unrealistic and outdated, the resolution says.

NO EFFECT

Communities have matured to the point where "drink doesn't affect voting."

It is pointed out that only a small percentage of the electorate turned out at the December elections, and that in areas where no persons were being elected liquor outlets remained open although they offered persons from "closed" areas access to drink.

Consumer Survey To Be Explained At Sidney Tonight

A consumer survey recently completed by the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce will be analyzed at a public meeting at the Hotel Sidney tonight at 8.

John Quail, an economist with the B.C. Credit Union, will explain the survey and its findings to merchants.

The survey shows the average shopping habits of the community and offers local businessmen a number of recommendations for improving service to shoppers.

NEW AWARD SYSTEM LAUNCHED

Wolf Cubs to Aim for the Stars

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 180,000 Wolf Cubs have a new goal to shoot for—five glimmering stars.

The stars, to be worn on the top left sleeve of the cub jersey, will be awarded for achievements in the areas of self-development, creativity, community exploration, scoutcraft and conservation.

They may be obtained in any order and will have equal importance. They will be colored black, blue, green, red and tawny.

Announcing the change Friday from the former two-star system, headquarters of the Boy Scouts of Canada said the new scheme is designed to introduce more challenge to the over-all cub program.

"It was introduced to retain the interests of the older cub yet attract new recruits at all levels."

MADE MORE FLEXIBLE

With the new star plan, emphasis shifts from a fixed schedule of activities and proficiency tests to a more flexible, individually oriented system. A boy may select areas of special interest to win his five stars.

Under the new plan activities may be modified for those of greater interest to boys in specific geographic regions or for boys with handicaps.

A completely revised book, The Way to the Stars, outlining all requirements for the five stars will be available in March. Most cubs are between eight and 10 years old, but boys aged seven and 11 are also admitted.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

By DR. FRANK MILLER

Dear Dr. Miller: My pet canary, Joe Brown, who is three years old, has been sitting on the floor of the cage very quietly most of the day. Could you please explain why he is doing this?

Is he just thinking? — R.L.

DEAR R.L.: Better be most concerned with Joe's physical functioning at this point. His pensive appearance is undoubtedly an indication of actual illness. Joe's cranium isn't equipped to handle a heavy workload so his lassitude is more likely due to colic than concentration.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: I was afraid when I had Kimi, my cat, bred that she would be a bad mother because she is so spoiled. I was right. She had three kittens and completely ignored them. She wouldn't even clean them. But I was ready and cleaned them up and kept them warm and fed them an advised formula from a doll bottle. But they all died. Some one told my sister the doll bottle did it. It was sterilized and all so I don't see how. Do you?—N.N.

DEAR N.N.: If the nipple on a bottle has too large an opening, the formula may flow into the mouth much faster than the kitten can swallow it. If this occurs, milk will be inhaled into the lungs and the kitten may actually drown. (The nipple opening should be small enough so the kitten has to work for it. Then, when it stops for air, milk flow will stop and only air will be inhaled).

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: Sometimes my cat, Claus, coughs a lot. I thought maybe he might have hairballs. But he is short-haired so that couldn't be it. Could it?—R.G.

DEAR R.G.: Hairballs are more common in long-haired cats. Still, they can occur in short-haired cats, too. While hairballs are a common cause of gagging in the feline, other causes range from internal parasites to tumors to tuberculosis. If simple hairball remedies (containing petrolatum) do not eliminate the cough, your veterinarian should check on Claus.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: Can pure snow hurt a dog's stomach? Ours just goes crazy when he gets into it and eats and eats it and I wonder if this is good?—D.Y.

DEAR D.Y.: Pure snow is a little hard to come by in most areas. But it is harmless in any quantity a dog can consume. He would have frostbitten tongue or tonsils long before his stomach would be affected anyway.

★ ★ ★

DEAR DR. MILLER: There is a dog down the street who barks like mad when I go by. I'd like to make friends with him but am a little leery. Can I count on the old saying that "barking dogs don't bite"? —F.Y.

DEAR F.Y.: Yes, you can, kind of. A dog can't bite while he's barking — but he can shift from one activity to another so fast as to make the saying highly unreliable.

Canada, Russia Air Link Eyed

OTTAWA (CP)—The government hopes some arrangement can be made between Canada and Russia for an air service linking the two countries, Transport Minister Pickersgill said Monday.

But he added that he would not be willing to hazard a guess as to when such an agreement might come into effect.

Scouts to Organize Council For North

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Boy Scout officials from across the province will gather here on the weekend to launch the proposed northern regional Scout council.

President of the provincial scout council, George Mussallem, and provincial commissioner Charles Nash will attend the inaugural meeting along with Lawrence Dampier, vice-president and general manager of the Vancouver Sun and chairman of the 1966 provincial Boy Scout jamboree.

The new regional organization has been made necessary by the growth of the scout movement in the north. Membership has increased 10 per cent in the last year and there are more than 100 scout groups in the region.

YOUR HEALTH

Blackouts Require Study by Diabetics

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Someone has written to ask about the woozy spells that occur occasionally in young people who have the brittle, or difficult-to-control type of diabetes. As many people know, diabetes which shows up in middle-aged persons is a milder disease. The patient then seldom needs insulin; often he can control the situation with diet, or with diet plus one of the new drugs which is taken by mouth.

Alvarez

Young diabetics have two types of spells to watch out for and recognize: one, a woozy spell which is due to taking too much insulin (or too little food or too little exercise to balance the amount of insulin taken that morning). The woozy spell is due to a greatly lowered level of blood sugar, and is called an insulin reaction. What the person much needs is to take sugar in some form.

What is unfortunate is that an insulin reaction is often not recognized by the person as it comes on. Because of this, the people who live and work alongside of the patient should know that he is a diabetic, and they should be taught to recognize his particular type of insulin reaction. Some patients start the reaction by becoming first surly and ornery and unpleasant, and then a bit woozy.

★ ★ ★

The patient should always carry with him some candy, and his friends should know enough—when they see that he is acting strangely—to make him eat some of the sugar. This will quickly bring him out of what can be a dangerous spell. Also the diabetic person should try to learn to recognize the earliest symptoms of his particular type of insulin reaction, such as perhaps a feeling of queerness; perhaps seeing double, or getting fuzzy vision; breaking out in a cold sweat, or getting confused and drowsy, getting a headache, numbness, tingling, palpitation, a rapid heartbeat, or a sense of weakness.

★ ★ ★

Always a diabetic who is taking insulin should have a special bracelet on his wrist which says he is a diabetic, and tells what to do for him in case he gets woozy. This bracelet can keep the police from throwing him into a jail cell for supposed drunkenness where, without treatment, his brain could be severely injured.

The other type of woozy spell with drowsiness is due to a poor care of diabetes, and insufficient insulin. The patient's breath has a fruity flavor; he may get a flushed, dry skin, feelings of fatigue, drowsiness and labored breathing, with—toward the end—vomiting and unconsciousness.

A patient who has been taking poor care of his diabetes, and gets woozy, should be rushed to a hospital, where in a minute it can be shown that his urine is full of sugar and a substance called acetone. Then a generous injection of insulin can save his life.

Pedestrians Killed

PENTICTON (CP)—A Penticton man and his brother visiting from Edmonton died in a traffic accident here Sunday. Alfred Martin, 65, of Edmonton, was killed outright when he and his brother Harold, 68, were struck by a car while crossing a city intersection. Harold died later in hospital.

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Pat Gavin, age 8, of Correctionville, Iowa, for his question:

What kind of bird is the screech owl?

He is much larger than the pixie-sized elf owl, but only one-third the size of the great horned owl. Our medium-sized screech owl shares our country coast to coast. He is a wide-eyed wanderer of the night named for his piercing voice.

Some owls utter Too-Whit or Too-Whoo like a soft purring croon in the night. The screech owl shatters the darkness with a piercing whistle that sounds like a loud, squeaky door. When startled, he may utter a sound like a screech of pain. He is a brave character and a very devoted parent. If you approach his nest, both Mr. and Mrs. Screech Owl will boldly attack you and fill the air with their screeches.

As a rule, the screeches are scarey enough to drive off hungry enemies that come near the precious youngsters. But the angry parents take no chances. They spread their soft, feathery wings and plunge at the invader from all directions, now and then getting in a telling blow with their hooked beaks and taloned claws. Nothing in the world, it seems, can scare the screech owl when his home is threatened. There are 36 species of screech owl living throughout the world. Some 15 different screech owls make their homes in North America and Mexico. Our most common screecher stands eight to 10 inches tall and his feathery plumage is a speckled blend of soft colors. He may be brindled with reddish-browns or stripped with greys and white. One owlet in a nest may be brown and another grey.

Feeds on Rats and Mice

People have tried to guess the age or sex of a screech owl from his coloring, but experts say that this cannot be done. They suspect that the darker toned owls often live in rainy regions and paler types make their homes in the dry deserts. But this is not always so.

The screech owl has a pussy-cat expression, with round eyes and pointed ear tufts. Like all owls he is a hunter of live meat. He hunts by night, swooping silently down on rats, mice and other pesky rodents. His home is a nest or crevice, usually in a lofty tree. He shares it with his wife and the devoted couple lavish boundless loving care on their growing children.

The eggs are white and round and Mrs. Owl does not lay them all at the same time. She is larger than her husband and after the first egg appears she nestles down to warm it with her soft feathers. She may brood on her eggs for a month or more and the downy chicks hatch one after another. The eldest may be days or perhaps a week older than the youngest member of the brood.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Diane Freeman, age 11, of Fair Play, S.C., for her question:

What is spermaceti?

The mighty sperm whale is just too valuable for his own good. Man has hunted him for ages through the oceans of the world. The fatty blubber from a 60-ton monster yields barrels and barrels of oil. His carcass yields tons of rich, red meat. But his most valuable gift is spermaceti.

The 65-foot sperm whale is the largest of the toothed whales and his huge head makes up about one-third of the length of his body. The head contains a pool of special oil. This oil is spermaceti or sperm whale oil. A white, waxy material separates from the oil and this is used to make candles and fine ointments. Chemists tell us that spermaceti is a complex substance containing esters and fatty acids.

SPEECH FROM THRONE

Massive Program Faces Parliament

Most Items Left By Last House

OTTAWA (CP) — An outline of a massive legislative program that contained no major surprises was presented today at the opening of the 27th Parliament.

The traditional speech from the throne, read to the glittering ceremonial opening by Governor-General Vanier, ranged through a wide assortment of items either left over from the last Parliament or outlined in advance by the government.

Among them were proposals for a Canada Development Corp., originally announced two years ago but still not acted on, the Company of Young Canadians, forecast in last year's throne speech, and legislation for a national medical insurance plan.

The development corporation would amass public savings to finance Canadian-owned industries and the Company of Young Canadians is to be patterned after the U.S. Peace Corps.

The govenment also renewed its pledge to introduce a program of university scholarships and make a "substantial increase" in federal aid to universities in the 1966-67 academic year.

One intriguing sentence in the 2,500-word throne speech served notice that the government intends to deal firmly with any provincial attempts to move into federal fields.

"While respecting fully the responsibilities of the provinces, the government is equally resolved to maintain the constitutional responsibilities of the federal authority," it said.

As expected, there was a forecast of a federal-provincial conference this year to work out new arrangements with the provinces for the division of tax fields. This would be followed by federal legislation respecting tax-splitting in 1967.

Vanier Making Last Appearance?

The 77-year-old governor-general, making what may be his final appearance in that role at a parliamentary opening, alternated his reading between English and French. This followed a practice begun in 1963.

Gen. Vanier's term of office, now on an extension, is to run out next fall.

A host of items for farmers and fishermen were listed in the speech, written by the cabinet as an introduction to the program intended for this year's parliamentary session.

These items include:

1. Creation of a fund for financing major rural development projects.

2. A program for the purchase, redevelopment and resale of uneconomic farms.

3. Improved crop insurance legislation to cover all farmers.

4. Cash advances for unthreshed grain in years when bad weather prevents full harvesting.

5. A government agency to market livestock feed grain in eastern Canada and British Columbia.

6. Increased capital for the Farm Credit Corp., a lending agency.

7. A development program for commercial fishing.

8. Income support for inshore fishermen in years of catch failure.

Some of them were discussed in the last Parliament and others emerged as government proposals during the 1965 election campaign.

where to old age pensions, a prime election issue of the opposition parties. The Conservative and New Democratic parties had pledged a pension increase to $100 monthly from the present $75 and there had been speculation the minority

VIET WAR

7,000 Troops Added by U.S.

SAIGON (AP)—Seven thousand South Viet Nam troops poured into South Viet Nam today to strengthen Saigon's defences against guerrilla attack and to put more muscle in the marine beachhead at Chu Lai, on the central coast.

Although the Viet Cong forces avoided major action in advance of the lunar new year celebrations later this week, guerrilla bands harassed government positions, exploded mines, tossed grenades and ambushed militia platoons. An orphanage was hit, in one attack, apparently by mistake.

Political infighting among South Viet Nam's military leaders again raised fears of trouble for the seven-month-old government of Premier Nguyen Cago Ky. He was reported to have told a battalion of army troops at Saigon Airport Monday that "five to 50" generals were seeking to overthrow his regime.

The new arrivals were 4,000 infantrymen from Hawaii and 3,000 marines from Okinawa. They brought total American troop strength in South Viet Nam to 191,000 men.

The Viet Cong before dawn fired mortars at a U.S. military compound in Quang Ngai city 325 miles northeast of Saigon. But the shells fell into a nearby orphanage and a South Vietnamese regimental headquarters. Five children and three civilian caretakers at the orphanage were wounded.

None of the 200 Americans was hurt, but an unofficial report said two South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 14 were wounded.

Other mortars caused light casualties at the government outpost of An Lo, near the northern frontier.

U.S. B-52s bombed suspected Viet Cong camps in Tay Ninh province four miles from the Cambodian border. Other U.S. planes flew 404 combat sorties in the south, hitting Viet Cong hideouts and river craft.

'Tough Line' With Provinces Hinted By PM

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A tougher line with the provinces is going to be taken by Prime Minister Pearson and members of his cabinet during this session of Parliament.

Close associates of the prime minister have alerted members of Parliament to watch for a transformation in the prime minister.

They say he is becoming impatient with representatives of the provinces taking potshots at his administration and this impatience will show up in the discussions in the House.

Indications of his new hardening attitude were heard during speeches the prime minister made in the general election. He voiced his sentiments again Monday on a television broadcast.

MAKE REQUESTS

He said the provinces travel to Ottawa for federal-provincial conferences making requests. The federal government is on the receiving end of the requests and "that puts us on the defensive," he said.

He added, "We want to do everything we can to meet the legitimate requests of the provinces but not at the expense of weakening the federal power within the Constitution."

With a touch of annoyance in his voice, Mr. Pearson told his TV interviewer, "when the provincial representatives overstep the line, and one or two of them have in recent weeks, we tell them to look after their own affairs and not interfere in federal affairs . . . Dynamism is fine, but dynamism turns into dynamite. We can blow up this confederation—I don't want that."

S. Africans Praying For Rain

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—A serious drought brought thousands of South African citizens to their knees today in prayers for rain.

As livestock died by the hundreds of thousands and rich grazing lands were turning into dustbowls, temperatures soared to 110 degrees in the blistering heat wave that has continued since the start of the year.

A government-sponsored national day of prayer brought a nation-wide response. People of all faiths crowded into churches, temples, mosques and office and factory canteens to offer prayers for rain to break the searing drought.

The government imposed severe water restrictions in major centres as reports came in that some towns had only eight weeks supply of water left.

ECM Compromise Studied by France

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — Belgium today proposed a compromise to help end the split between French President Charles de Gaulle and his five European Common Market partners. Gaullist delegates quickly telephoned Paris for advice.

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak suggested to the Common Market ministerial council they go part of the way to meet a de Gaulle demand that France have continued veto power over market decisions.

De Gaulle wants sole veto powers as the price for ending his six-month boycott of the market. He also would strip the organization's executive body of much of its power.

The other members — West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg — have shown little inclination in the present meeting ending today of defying the French leader.

Spaak proposed a three-point plan:

Requiring unanimous consent on all proposals now being considered by the economic community.

Requiring a unanimous vote to overturn past decisions made by ananimous decree.

Requiring that in the future on all issues of "vital interest." the ministerial council must meet and consider a matter four times before approving it on a less than unanimous vote.

TWO FREEZE TO DEATH IN NORTHERN INTERIOR

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — An unidentified woman was frozen to death after the car in which she was riding bogged down in snow 15 miles north of Dawson Creek.

The woman's husband left his wife in the car while he went in search of help after getting stuck in a snowdrift. When he returned, his wife had gone, and her body was found later near their home.

The temperature at Dawson Creek plunged to 25 degrees below zero Monday night with winds of 40 miles an hour.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP)—Robert Wokeley, 25, a resident of the Half-Way Indian reserve 30 miles north of here, was found frozen to death near his home.

Police said today that Wokeley apparently fell over a 50-foot embankment during the weekend and died of exposure.

FANCY MEETING YOU HERE . . .

Glad-Handers Have Ball

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—For a half-hour today, the Commons actually looked like a friendship society.

There was Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, the man who blasted Conservative Leader Diefenbaker in the last session, as "the biggest separatist in Canada," pumping the hand of a grinning Mr. Diefenbaker. They chatted as though they had suddenly met in a Tokyo railroad station.

Finance Minister Sharp, dubbed by Mr. Diefenbaker at another time as a "bureaucrat" in less-than-complimentary terms, was at the desk of the opposition leader with a magnificent smile. Mr. Diefenbaker jumped to his feet to eagerly greet the visitor from across the green-carpeted aisle.

E. Davie Fulton, the former Conservative justice minister who returned to the Commons after a grand time making his rounds.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, who normally carries on first-class feuds with his opponents, scarcely missed a hand as he wandered deep in the opposition benches.

"That was the worst game of cribbage I've ever played," he shouted to one Conservative.

Social Credit Leader Thompson moved freely over the floor with his greetings.

New Democratic leader Douglas stayed close to his front-row desk as one member after another came along to see him.

Former Finance Minister Gordon, now a private member, moved from seat to seat in the back rows to greet fellow members before he moved up to his front seat, alongside the elite Cabinet circle.

While everyone was gathered in hand-grasping knots, in strode George Hees, the flashy former Conservative Trade Minister. He made a grand entrance through the main doorway, nattily dressed in a dark blue suit and blue shirt. But he didn't have time to work through his first dozen handshakes before the Commons was called to order.

U.K. ENVOY MAKES GOOF, KICKED OUT

LUSAKA (AP) — The Zambian government said Monday it ordered Britain's deputy high commissioner out of Zambia because his continued presence was considered harmful to British-Zambian relations.

A Zambian source said the diplomat — John Anthony Molyneux—had written a letter to the Commonwealth office in London but it mistakenly was placed into an envelope addressed to the Zambian government. The informant said Zambian officials disliked what they called Molyneux's high-handed manner. Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

Dogs Lose Appetite After Watching TV

PORTLAND (AP) — Television is rough on dogs and parakeets.

The Oregon state board of health Monday warned owners about been too lenient in permitting their dogs to watch television more than an hour a day.

Poodles who watched television three or four hours daily suffered loss of appetite and became highly nervous and snappish.

Quoting a West German study no the television addiction of pets, the board said dogs are the most rabid TV fans.

Birds are a close second. Four or more hours a day of television will give parakeets a high fever, said the board.

Students Press Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Thousands of technical and vocational students across Quebec took part in their second day on a protest "strike" today amid reports that university and secondary school students will be asked to walk out of their classrooms in sympathy.

The technical and vocational students stayed away from classes Monday as a protest against the extension of their school year by 2½ weeks, a move which they say will reduce their summer earnings.

One report said 60 at Quebec's 74 trade schools were shut down, but it was impossible to estimate immediately how many of the province's 27,000 technical and vocational students answered the 'strike" call.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Out-of-work Victoria salesman Robert Westover was desperate for a job.

So the 23-year-old father of two wrote the Rhodesian government and offered his services as a mercenary soldier. On Saturday he got his reply:

"I am happy to be able to tell you that we are confident that we shall be able to maintain law and order and meet any threat to our security from our own resources, namely, our police and regular and territorial army.

"However, your kind offer of assistance will be borne in mind if circumstances beyond our control cause us to review this attitude."

The letter, signed by a government secretary, said newspaper reports that a mercenary army had been set up were untrue.

Both the letterhead and envelope bore the letters OHMS (On Her Majesty's Service).

Even funnier, at the bottom of the envelope was written: "For a happy holiday . . . Tour Rhodesia and Nyasaland."

"BOBBY" WALKER

Since writing away for the job, Mr. Westover, of 114 Ontario, has landed a safer job as a wolesale bread salesman.

Memories of 44 years ago came back Monday to William Walker, 4060 Glanford, when he saw a picture in the Times of a Derby policeman.

The English bobby was wearing a flashing blue light on his traditional helmet. The light was introduced after one policeman was struck and killed directing traffic a few months ago.

Mr. Walker was a policeman in Derby for two years before coming to Canada after the First World War, and sends his picture to prove it.

Mr. Walker, who served with the Royal Canadian Artillery here for 25 years, now is in charge of the Corps of Commissionaires at historic Fort Rodd Hill and familiar to visitors for his conducted tours.

Modern youngsters see most of their sports on television. They're quite accustomed to seeing a scoring play repeated by a second delayed-action tape procedure.

When one young sports addict went to a "live" game at Memorial Arena for the first time, he told his dad:

"That was a neat goal, Dad—but why didn't they do a replay?"

A pressing problem has been ironed out at HMCS Naden. A coin-operated iron has been installed in a barracks block and for 50 cents it operates for one hour, provided there's a sailor to push it.

The operator must move fast however. The iron takes four minutes to heat and shuts off eight minutes later.

We wonder if there's a business opportunity for a presser at Naden. A steam press would make a uniform tiddley in less than five minutes and so easily there couldn't be much more expense involved.

A Saanich doctor offered Saanich council a presoription for beautifying the bare Vernon Avenue side of the new Municipal Hall. Dr. Roy Suotherland sent council $10 and suggested that 100 other residents should also contribute plants. Council said "no thanks" and returned his money, saying the task of planting grass and shrubs already is underway.

But it must have seemed a nice change from letters from ratepayers who complain about "frills" in civic budgets.

Bishop De Roo To Address Unity Service

Roman Catholic Bishop Remi De Roo will address the first of a series of inter-church services in St. Andrew's Cathedral, 740 View Street, tonight at 7:30.

The services are part of a week of prayer for Christian unity sponsored by the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria and the Council of Churches.

Other inter-church services to be held in St. Andrew's Cathedral at 7:30 p.m. are:

Wednesday, Rev. J. E. Bergbusch of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, with the choirs of St. Barnabas Anglican and St. Mary's Anglican, Oak Bay.

Thursday, Rev. A. E. King of Metropolitan United with the Metropolitan Sanctuary Choir.

Friday, Rev. Philip Hanley of St. Andrew's Cathedral with the choir of St. John's Anglican Church.

ARCHBISHOP

On Sunday at 3 p.m. Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton and Bishop De Roo will lead a mass inter-church service in St. Andrew's Cathedral, supported by Victoria ministers of many denominations.

Principal addresses will be given by Dean Brian Whitlow of Christ Church Anglican Church and Rev. William Klempa, DD, of St. Paul's Gorge Presbyterian Church.

Passages of scripture will be read by Bishop Denys Ranklor of the Church of Our Lord, Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church and Rev. Marvin Fowler of First United.

Prayers for unity will be offered by Rev. Philip Hanley, Roman Catholic; Rev. Samuel Parsons, DD, United, and Capt. Don McMillan, Salvation Army.

Leading the recitation of the litanies will be Rev. Dr. Bergbusch, Lutheran, and Rev. H. Gordon Walker, Anglican.

PARISH CHOIRS

Several parish choirs will combine to sing an anthem under the leadership of St. Andrew's Cathedral choir director, J. F. Lenaghan.

"All citizens of Greater Victoria are invited to attend and pray for understanding and charity among Christians," says Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese.

The week-day services in the cathedral, organized by Father William Bulloch, will continue on Monday, Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m. with an address by Canon Hilary Butler of the Anglican diocese, and on Tuesday, Jan. 25, with an address by Very Rev. A. E. Leonard of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church Oak Bay.

Fireman Dreamed Of Glory

GLASGOW, Scotland (CP) — Factory fireman Mike Rodger, driven by boredom and dreams of glory to set his own fires, was jailed for a year here after his last blaze got out of hand and caused £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) damage.

Rodger, 24, a member of the fire-fighting unit at the Rolls-Royce aero-engine plant here, pleaded guilty in sheriff's court to "wilful fire-raising"—arson in the shape of two small fires that Rodger quickly doused and a third that got out of control.

"He had thought he was in a job which had glamor," lawyer A. Munro Armit told the court. "Instead, he found himself dressed up to fight fires that never happened.

"So he had the idea of starting fires and putting them out by himself. This not only gave him something to do but made him look efficient and slightly heroic."

ALL FAMILY WATCHING AS SON AXES FATHER

WUPPERTAL, Germany (UPI)—A Greek family sentenced their father to death and then watched while a son carried out the execution with an axe, city prosecutors said Monday.

The prosecutors said the grandmother, wife, two young daughters and the son of 41-year-old Salonika-born Milikiadis Vlachos decided Sunday night he should die for allegedly seducing the son's wife.

Then, the prosecutors said, the whole family stood in the doorway of the bedroom where Vlachos lay sleeping and watched while the son killed him with an axe.

The son, 22-year-old Jahannis Vlachos, gave himself up to police after the killing, saying, "I had to revenge my wife," the prosecutors said.

One-Day Truce Called On House Rule Hassle

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Agreement has been reached among the political parties to avoid a rumpus in the Commons on the opening day today of the first session of the 27th Parliament.

Government House leader George McIlraith held a series of meetings with representatives of the other parties. He did not have one general meeting but met the various house leaders separately Monday to try to reach agreement to avoid a hassle in the house.

The best he could come up with was an undertaking from the Progressive Conservatives that they would not cause chaos on opening day. But Wednesday comes the question of how long a period is to be devoted to asking questions. Under the new rules that the government wants made applicable to this Parliament there would be only a 30-minute period for questions.

Mr. McIlraith will try for an all-party agreement later Tuesday or early Wednesday on the rules that will apply in this session. Meantime for the opening day there is an uneasy truce.

. . . THRONE SPEECH

Liberal government might adopt the idea.

Prime Minister Pearson's plan for a major shuffle of federal departments, announced in December with a list of cabinet changes, will be presented in legislative form.

New departments will be created to handle manpower policies, forestry and rural development, Indian affairs and national resources, business legislation and the combined field of energy, mines and resources.

An emphasis on new manpower programs, most of them already announced, was forecast.

There will be a "vigorous program" of job - training to raise the skills of the unemployed and those in low-skilled work. Training allowances will be increased.

Economic policies will be aimed at continuing the present upswing in national prosperity while battling against "excessive costs and prices which would endanger the stability of our economy."

The policy of delaying federal construction projects in areas where the construction industry is under heavy pressure from private building will be continued.

Tax incentives to encourage industrial research will be increased.

Legislation to modernize the railway industry has been modified since original introduction of the Railway Bill in late 1964 and will be introdu..l this year. Action in this area has been pending ever since the report of the MacPherson royal commission in 1961.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS IN FORE

In the field of foreign affairs, the government signalled its intention to increase its external aid programs and seek Canadian participation in the Asian development bank with an initial contribution of $25,000,000.

Only defence item was a proposal to amend the National Defence Act to legalize the further integration of the armed forces into a joint headquarters command.

There will be a new effort to work out an arrangement under which amendments to the British North America Act—the Canadian constitution — can be made in Canada, without going to the British Parliament.

Steps also will be taken to declare O Canada the national anthem and God Save the Queen the royal anthem, another thing the previous Parliament didn't get time to do.

The Canada assistance plan, bringing together all federal-provincial welfare programs and adding some new fields to it, will be introduced. This already has been worked out with the provinces.

Speed-Up Expected On School

Postponement of plans for a junior college in Greater Victoria will likely hasten establishment of an adult education centre here.

The postponement was announced Monday night by Lloyd Clarkson, chairman of the adult education committee of the school board.

He said the department of education has called a halt on construction of junior colleges until three existing ones in the province have been in operation for some time and their programs have ben evaluated.

The school board had hoped to establish a junior college that would include an adult education centre. At the same time the board did not want to duplicate any programs offered by the University of Victoria.

Mr. Clarkson said the education department insisted that a junior college must offer first and second-year university courses.

OVERLAP UVIC

He said this effectively killed the prospect of a college here because such an institution would offer day courses in high school subjects.

Superintendent John Gough said he has inquired about the cost of leasing a building on the university's Landsdowne campus for use for adult education.

The school board will move its offices to the Lansdowne campus when all university facilities are transferred to the Gordon Head campus in the fall of this year.

Aberhart Rites To Be Attended By Martin

Health Minister Eric Martin will represent his cabinet colleagues Wednesday when the body of Mrs. William Aberhart is buried in Vancouver beside that of the founder of Social Credit in Canada.

Mrs. Aberhart died Thursday in Calgary, where some 200 persons, including Alberta government officials and Social Credit League officials, attended the funeral service.

Her body was flown to Vancouver Monday night so it could be buried beside her husband's grave in Forest Lawn Cemetery where Mr. Aberhart was buried in 1943.

Mr. Martin, who helped organize Social Credit in British Columbia in 1945 and traces his connection with the Social Credit movement back to 1932 when it started in Alberta, will be an official representative of the party's elected members.

Heath Critic Resigns Tory Post

LONDON (Reuters) — Angus Maude resigned today as the Conservative opposition party's spokesman on colonial affairs after a row over two articles he wrote attacking Edward Heath's leadership.

His resignation was announced as demands grew within the party for Heath to sack him.

Maude, 53, brought into the open criticism of Heath's leadership and new Conservative policies hammered out under Heath's direction. His articles branded the party's role in opposition as ineffective and irrelevant.

They sparked off a series of counter-attacks from other top Conservatives and left the party open to an attack last weekend by Prime Minister Harold Wilson who called it a split opposition unable to provide a credible alternative government.

Heath returned from a Far East tour last week to find a storm developing over Maude's articles. He delivered a public rebuke during a television interview and urged Conservatives to attack the Labor government instead of their own party.

In a statement announcing his resignation, Maude indicated that he will continue his "revolt" as a backbencher after Parliament returns from its Christmas recess next week.

Maude was given his post as "shadow" colonial secretary by Heath last October.

Official Seized By Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong kidnapped an American civilian official Monday outside the village of Trung Lap, about 25 miles north of Saigon, and marched him into the jungle.

The missing man is Douglas Ramsey, 28, of Boulder City, Nev., a member of the U.S. mission for the area.

RECOMMENDATION SYSTEM EXTENDED

Up to 60 per cent of students in grades 8, 9 and 10 in Greater Victoria schools may be recommended for promotion to the next higher grade.

This was announced at a school board meeting Monday night by John Gough, schools superintendent.

Grades 11 and 12 now operate under the recommendation system and it is being extended to the lower grades. Mr. Gough said no more than 60 per cent of the students in a class may be recommended.

The recommendation will cover the entire work of a student over the school year. Secondary school students write exams on 21 out of the 190 days in a school year, and educators think this time can be put to better use.

Ban Ended

Catholic Priest Invited to Abbey

LONDON (Reuters)—A Roman Catholic priest will preach in Westminster Abbey for the first time since 1570 when the Pope excommunicated Britain's Queen Elizabeth I.

Jesuit Father Thomas Corbishley will speak Friday during Unity Octave Week, an annual event devoted to Christian unity.

Until about a year ago there was a ban on Roman Catholics participating in services with other Christians in Britain.

The Abbey, one of the greatest churches in Christendom, is the national shrine where the sovereign is crowned and undertakes by law to uphold the Protestant faith.

The sovereign became temporal head of the Anglican Church after its break with Rome.

The end of the tradition, following improved relations between the churches, comes in the Abbey's 900th anniversary year.

Father Corbishley has appeared in the pulpits of other Anglican churches but he says "The Abbey . . . there's something special about it."

House Looks the Same But Much Has Changed

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—There's an eerie feeling about the new Parliament, a feeling that time has stood still, that nothing has changed.

Waring

The same leaders in their same positions face one another across the same green carpeted floor, with practically the same backup support from MPs ranked behind them. On the surface, Nov. 8 might never have happened.

But of course time hasn't stood still. Instead, it has marched rapidly on for the two implacable political foes who dominate Parliament, Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative leader Diefenbaker. Both are in the ninth inning of their political careers; neither is likely to get—or take—another turn at bat.

Not unconnected with this fact is the presence of a few familiar new faces: Davie Fulton, George Hees, Robert Winters. They indicate a great undercurrent in this session, a rivalry for individual position and prestige as a jumping-off point for both Liberal and Conservative leadership races.

But because the election decided nothing, the main characteristic of the Commons is still the delicate balance of power. On paper the opposition has a four-vote edge, 134 to 130 —the 265th MP, the House Speaker, having no vote except in a tie. But the opposition edge is so small that, in any no-quarter confrontation between government and opposition, the normal incidence of absence and illness could tip the vote either way.

While the Liberals are sitting on a powder keg, the opposition would have to generate a tremendous amount of heat to light the fuse. The opposition speaks not with one voice, but with the voices of four separate opposition parties plus a couple of independent MPs, plus divergent opinions within these parties, especially the Tory party.

The government's strategy must be to keep the temperature low enough so that at no time will there be enough heat for the whole opposition to light that fuse. To this end the government will be receptive and pliant, within the limits of its philosophy, principles and finances, to proposals dear to the hearts of opposition MPs. The obvious recipients for such unwonted consideration are the New Democrats and the bifurcated Social Crediters.

In carefully picking its way over the muskeg of opposition support, the government will be emboldened by the fact that the politicians as well as the people have had a bellyful of elections. And among the Tories there are influential members—prominent examples: Messrs. Fulton and Hees—whose personal ambitions do not countenance another opportunity for Mr. Diefenbaker to spellbind his way back into power.

The Tory schism is thus likely to widen rather than heal with the return of the outcasts. Had Mr. Pearson won a majority and Mr. Diefenbaker been soundly defeated, the aging Tory leader's future would hold nothing but quick and, hopefully, graceful retirement. But the indecisiveness of the Nov. 8 results has left Mr. Diefenbaker a straw at which to grasp—and his grasping should, judging by past performance, be accompanied by a great quantity of political pyrotechnics.

That touch o' the Irish that makes people love a good fight should be well satisfied in the new Commons.

Famed Colombian Priest Joins Guerrilla Fighters

By CLYDE SANGER
The Manchester Guardian

The Castroite guerrilla movement in the troubled South American state of Colombia has a notable new recruit in a youthful Catholic priest, Camillo Torres, who was until recently chaplain and professor of sociology at the National University.

He disappeared from Bogota, the capital, two months ago, and now leaflets circulating there last weekend picture him in a uniform and carrying a rifle and announcing that he will fight Colombia's ruling class at the head of the "Army of National Liberation."

The leaflet with the slogan, "Liberation or Death," calls on the 14 million people of the country to rise against its oligarchy.

According to one source, he has joined a guerrilla band in the Santander district near the Venezuelan border.

In other rural areas, violence is often attributed to a hangover of the 10-year feud between the Liberals and Conservatives. But the Santander district has been a particular target for Communists in their recent strategy.

It includes important oilfields and the new railway line to the Atlantic.

A year ago one group boldly occupied the town of Simacota for some hours. Communist trade unionists laid the foundations for a guerrilla movement by organizing "peasant leagues" to invade big estates.

Senor Torres comes from one of the country's prominent families, but he and another 37-year-old priest, Father Martin Amaya Martinez, formed their political views during studies in Europe. Last year the two were the most revolutionary voices in Colombia. The Catholic hierarchy is notoriously conservative there and both men were stripped of their priestly duties after attacking the social and religious establishment.

The Colombian army of about 40,000 men has had only moderate success against the guerrillas so far. Whether the guerrilla threat, which is not yet large, will grow depends on how a new government under the Liberal leader Dr. Lleras Restrepo, tackles the problems of reform.

The eight-year-old pact which ended the Conservative-Liberal feud should ensure his becoming president in May, succeeding the ineffectual Conservative President Valencia.

Sino-Soviet Quarrel Grows More Violent

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

HONG KONG—The rift between Red China and the Soviet Union appears to be shifting from ideology to a bitter governmental dispute.

In a front page report Sunday morning, Peking's authoritative Peoples Daily accused Moscow of zestfully spreading rumors that the Chinese Communists had obstructed Soviet military aid en route to North Viet Nam.

On three occasions within the past month, the newspaper disclosed, the Soviet Union had rejected Chinese government memoranda demanding that the Russians "clear up the rumors publicly."

These repeated Russian rebuffs, said the Peoples Daily, "cannot but be regarded as a new step . . . along the road of worsening state relations between China and the Soviet Union."

Peking has charged that Soviet leaders are conniving with the United States to undermine the Vietnamese Communist cause.

Peking has also charged that most Soviet military aid to North Viet Nam consists of "obsolete equipment discarded by the Soviet armed forces or damaged weapons cleaned out of warehouses." This aid, Peking said recently, was far from commensurate with what the Soviet Union has given to the Indian reactionaries."

Times Dispatch

Attempting to tarnish Peking, the Soviet weekly Za Rubezhom (Life Abroad) last December reprinted a New York Times dispatch reporting that China required the Soviet Union to pay Peking in dollars for shipping its aid through China to North Viet Nam.

It was this Soviet manoeuvre that ostensibly aroused Chinese anger, leading to the report in the Peoples Daily.

The Peoples Daily attack seemed to be part of a pattern to discredit the Soviet Union in Hanoi's eyes while burnishing Red China's image as North Viet Nam's true friend.

According to Peking, the Soviet Union made its first request to ship aid through China to North Viet Nam Feb. 25, 1965, soon after Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin had visited Hanoi.

Without exception, stated the Peoples Daily, Soviet military supplies and technicians bound for Viet Nam were given rapid transit across China. "The Chinese railways did this free of charge," asserted the newspaper "receiving not a single kopek, let alone a U.S. cent from the Soviet."

Appreciation

The Peking journal quoted Col. A. A. Shaitin, a Soviet economic relations official in China, as expressing his appreciation of Chinese efforts.

The first Chinese protest against rumors of Peking's interference was raised on Jan. 4, when China's Deputy Foreign Minister Wang Ping Nan handed a memorandum on the subject to the Soviet ambassador in Peking, S. G. Lapin.

According to the Chinese account, Lapin originally denied that a New York Times dispatch had been published in a Soviet magazine. Then he allegedly said it had been "printed by mistake" and that the Soviet government was not responsible for reports in the Soviet press.

The Peoples Daily termed the Soviet Ambassador's defence "astonishing."

Ambassador Lapin finally refused to accept the Chinese memorandum. Chinese notes to the Soviet embassy in Peking on Jan. 9 and to the Soviet foreign ministry in Moscow on Jan. 11 were also rejected.

Concluding that it was "crystal clear" that Moscow had spread these rumors against Peking, the Peoples Daily declared that the Soviet aim is "to vilify China, sow discord in the relations between China and Viet Nam and serve U.S. imperialism."

Simultaneously, Peking has also criticized Moscow for initialling a civil aviation agreement with Japan on Saturday.

The agreement, said Peking's official New China News Agency was "made at U.S. bidding" in order to "follow the line of U.S.-U.S.S.R. co-operation (and) increase hostilityy towards China."

Who'd Want the Tropics? Yeah! and so Would I

By ART STOTT

ON SATURDAY morning a neighbor, whom we'd missed during the festive season, dropped in to tell Pat about the Christmas holiday she'd spent in Florida. On Saturday afternoon, the smoothly tanned member of the bridge club drapped around Pat's neck a fresh lei she had brought back from Honolulu.

Stott

Up to that point I'd been fairly cheerful about our Victoria weather at the beginning of the weekend. It had been so much better than the week before—when we ploughed through snow to look at the Shawnigan place—that I had dragged out the lawnmower and skidded in through the wet grass to gouge a little turf from the greasy

Kathleen's talk about Florida and Helen's souvenir from Waikiki took away a little of of my enthusiasm for the Victoria climate. As I emptied the grass-catcher down the lot, staring out over water that still looked, and was, cold, my fancy soared oft to sundrenched beaches in the mid-Pacific and on the Gulf of Mexico. I fall into these semi-trances occasionally. A shiver shook me out of it and I became acutely aware that the individual can't sun himself very effectively at this season in Canada's so-called evergreen playground.

★ ★ ★

So I returned to the lawnmower, slid around the greensward, catching flicks of worm moulds from the revolving blades and muttering to myself that I ought to be in Mexico City, Australia or on the Mediterranean. Such can be the winter of a man's discontent when his friends return from glorious sunshine.

If it was a bit nippy on the lawn above the water, it was several degrees colder in the shade of the wall which fronts on the street, where I clipped back some exuberant St. John's wort. Working in public view, this way, I earn good opinions in the minds of neighbors who think I like this sort of thing, or at least that I am the happy gardener. All the time I'm mumbling a litany I never learned in Sunday School.

But there are compensations. The young lady who came along with an approving smile lifted my spirits with her comment: "Wait until I write my friends in Calgary and tell them you mowed the lawn out here today."

When another guest dropped over to ask if I'd noticed the snowdrops blooming in my border and I pointed out the blossoming violets to him, I began to regain my confidence in what we call our equable climate.

★ ★ ★

By the next day my outlook had improved to the point when I began to think like a Chamber of Commerce booster. I went fishing with a friend in an open aluminum boat. The sun shone. The strait sparkled. A zephyr breathed down from the north east.

Anybody but a nut would have noticed that the wind cut through a coat, a thick woollen sweater, a sports shirt, an undershirt, and a fair layer of blubber to bite into the bone. But who notices that when larger-than-legal-sized grilse are taking a simple brass-and silver spoon avidly enough to give a man his limit?

There's a difference between this and lying on the beach at Bali-Bali, or reclining on a deck chair by the blue Mediterranean, or seeking a shady January pint in Sydney.

Relatively speaking, though, there's much to be said for our weather at this time of year — and not all of it in terms of profanity.

Of course a man fishing in an open boat in mid-January here grows gradually numb. The cold seeps up from his feet. So what? When there's no feeling from his knees down, he can always turn homeward, crawl ashore and stumble into his warm house. And what's better for a freezing fisherman than a good, hot cup of tea? You guessed it. We had that, too.

Japan's Zaibatsu Wield Enormous Economic Power

By SIMON BLACKALL

KYOTO — Japan has just come through a bad recession, caused by over-expanded production facilities at a time of declining markets at home. It was sparked by the Japanese government which, in order to slow down the accelerating boom of the early sixties, adopted a tighter money policy.

By last August, the number of bankruptcies among medium-size companies had climbed to upwards of 400 in a single month, and the government had stepped into support the Tokyo stock market by buying selective shares and guaranteeing the nation's second largest securities house.

The housewives, clerks and shopgirls, who had once been some of the most enthusiastic investors in Japanese business and indutry, and had helped force up share prices to 10 times what they were in the middle fifties, had retired from the lists. In their place were the banks and insurance companies, who demanded and received a much closer reckoning of accounts.

Today some sort of stock market stability has been achieved, and most shares have regained their pre-recession value. But as many of the smaller businesses foundered, or were swallowed up by the larger ones, it became more and more apparent that the companies least affected by the recession were the "zaibatsu." The term zaibatsu is used to describe the large and powerful cartels of interdependent companies which span Japanese industry and commerce from shipping and banking to pencils and razors.

Anti-Trust Law

In 1947, at the instigation of the U.S. occupation authorities, the Japanese government passed an anti-trust law which, although later amended, remains essentially the same in that it expressly forbids the combination of companies manufacturing dissimilar goods. Whereas in Germany the giant Krupp group has not been disbanded, despite Allied resolutions, the Japanese cartels at least went through the motions.

Bu, since the end of the U.S. occupation in 1952, there has been a steady regrouping of the companies within the old zaibatsu framework. Today there is no pretence of division, and the zaibatsu openly advertise as being this or that "group of companies."

The three largest zaibatsu, Mitsui, Mitsubishi and Sumitomi, together account for over one third of the entire industry and commerce of Japan. To give an idea of what this could, though in practice seldom does, lead to, there is the example of a hypothetical Mr. X, who works for the Mitsubishi Bank.

Each morning Mr. X shaves with his Mitsubishi electric razor, while watching television on his Mitsubishi set. He drives to the station in the family car, another Mitsubishi product, stopping on the way to fill up with Mitsubishi-brand petrol, before taking a train powered with a Mitsubishi electric motor.

All Mitsubishi

On arrival at the terminal, Mr. X takes a bus made by Mitsubishi, for the short journey to his bank. Once there he picks up his Mitsubishi-brand pencil and goes to work on the letters of credit of the Mitsubishi trading company, which go to pay for the iron ore imported in ships of the Mitsubishi shipping line to supply the Mitsubishi steel mills, which in turn provide steel for the Mitsubishi shipyards.

It sounds like the never-ending circle of G. B. Shaw's "The Applecart," where Breakages Ltd. have the ultimate monopoly. But, amazingly, all this, and more, is possible, for these large groups manufacture and trade in everything from timber and textiles to food and fertilizers.

Today, with the power of the old family groups reduced or removed, the zaibatsu are less inclined to meddle in politics. Their main field of influence appears to be a powerful government lobby in the interests of big business.

A cynical observer recently suggested that the zaibatsu should be encouraged to expand and include all Japanese industry and commerce before eventual government take-over; thus facilitating what he described as "the first economically-efficient socialist state." He is not entirely without a case.

De Gaulle Faces Hard Task

By WAVERLEY ROOT
The Washington Post

PARIS — The new French ministry looks like the most difficult team to drive that President Charles de Gaulle has accepted ever since his return to power in 1958.

It is replete with built-in rivalries and overlapping functions which lay it wide open to potential intra-government quarrels over jurisdiction.

In fact, it resembles a Fifth-Republic cabinet less than a Third-or-Fourth-Republic cabinet of the sort which resulted from the manoeuverings of the political parties which de Gaulle has so often excoriated.

A characteristic of those pre-de Gaulle cabinets was that the choice of ministers, and the richness of the plum which each was able to extort, depended on ability to bring votes to the governmental majority—and this is precisely what differentiates this government from previous Fifth Republic governments.

Votes Not Needed

So far, de Gaulle has not had to compose his ministries for their vote-pulling capacity. He himself guaranteed enough votes. It was a foregone conclusion that he would win all the elections — except senatorial elections, in which the public as a whole does not vote, but only the notables, who are still holdovers from the pre-de Gaulle establishment, and who still resent their replacement by de Gaulle's Union for the New Rrpublic. But since the Fifth Republic constitution has drawn the senate's teeth, this does not matter.

The present government is the first since 1958 to be constituted with a view to winning an election — the parliamentary election scheduled for spring, 1967. This has created a situation, familiar under the Third and Fourth Republics, which permits a man who can contribute votes to lay down terms for entering the government. Edgar Faure's acceptance of the ministry of agriculture on condition that he be granted a free hand in running it, and the government's acceptance of this condition because it believes Faure can deliver left votes which it does not now have, are reminiscent of the bargains struck during the composition of ministries under previous regimes. Up to now, potential ministers have not been in a position to bargain with de Gaulle. If he offered a portfolio to anyone, the choice was simple: take it or leave it.

If this has changed now, it may be partly because de Gaulle's advanced age makes everyone conscious of the possibility that it could be someone else who will have to lead this government into its next electoral battle. If it is still de Gaulle, it would hardly be necessary to scrape the bottom of the political pot for every last vote, or to offer special inducements to vote-getters to come into the cabinet, bringing their votes with them.

Counting Heads

But if someone other than de Gaulle presides over the next elections, then it may be necessary to count heads carefully and to court every possible vote. This is the government's point of view in trying to recruit new ministers who can deliver additional votes.

The new ministers' point of view may be that this provides an opportunity to get in line for a share of the de Gaulle heritage when the general disappears. Preoccupation with the succession of de Gaulle is now dictating the tactics of the ambitions, not only those who are promoting their own fortunes by accepting cabinet posts on the best possible terms, but also those who are promoting them by refusing portfolios.

Holds Balance

Thus Valery Giscard d'Estaing, ousted from the finance ministry to the profit of Michel Debre by the infighting that accompanied the former prime minister's return to the government, reject a lesser portfolio and is now on the outside — but with the 35 votes of his Republican Independent deputies to the National Assembly in his pocket, enough in a strongly contested vote to assure defeat or victory for the government.

The government which has emerged out of these jockeyings for position and this obsession with the 1967 elections is extraordinarily complicated, and might even be described as unworkable for a politician less skilled than de Gaulle. Its most obvious weakness is its double-headed character, with Pompidou remaining as prime minister, but with his predecessor, Mechel Debre, de Gaulle's only other prime minister, back in the government, with his own important reserved area inside it, and his own inner cabinet.

World Literacy Gains Are Slow

PARIS—The battle against illiteracy is slowly gaining momentum, according to figures published here, but nearly 45 per cent of the world's population is still unable to read or write.

In a majority of countries, less than half the population between the ages of five and 19 goes to school, the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization statistical year book published here shows.

This percentage dropped to 57 from 59 between 1957 and 1960. In the breakdown of world illiteracy, Northern and Western Europe had the lowest rate at one to two per cent. North America was pegged at three to four per cent and Southern Europe at 20 per cent.

North Africa had the highest rate—85 to 90 per cent.

One day last week, I made the mistake of saying several nice things about my car as it trotted me obediently on various errands.

Next morning, with a non-stop squall of its horn and a cloud of smoke from under its instrument panel, the ungrateful little brute proceeded to burn up a portion of its wiring.

As a result, I have been forced to rediscover one of life's pleasures which had slipped away from me by imperceptible degrees over the years.

This is walking, a form of locomotion that most of us employ only when, as is the case with me, they find themselves robbed of their wheels.

The first day afoot was a trifle rough, partly because it was raining and my shoes leaked. I didn't synchronize very well, either—just kind of flapped along with head down and arms swinging out of time.

Next morning, though, matters went much better. The rain had stopped and I'd got over being cross with the car for its betrayal. What with all the fresh air, birds uttering intimations of spring, and the sight of traffic slaves lane-hopping in typical Victoria fashion, I decided that foot-slogging had much to commend it.

All this will no doubt change when my car is restored. Meanwhile, I can tramp a country mile again without puffing, am eating as if food were about to be taxed at liquor rates, and sleep so hard that even the world's most fiendish alarm clock can't wake me.

There are times when television lives up to its potential, and viewers were blessed with one of these last Sunday evening.

The hour-long show, a CBS news special titled "The Search for Ulysses," offered those lucky enough to catch it, such a cruise as they will not soon forget.

Island by island, with superb photography, and narration which was a nice blending of fact enriched by imaginative reconstruction, viewers were taken by sailing vessel along the route presumably followed by the Greek hero Ulysses in his leisurely return from the war with Troy.

I used to think that Homer's wily seafarer could have made it back to Ithaca and wife Penelope's welcoming arms in a great deal less time than the 10 years his trip is supposed to have taken. However, after this armchair tour of the waters he reputedly braved, I'm surprised he got there at all!

If this film is repeated sometime, I hope English teachers will alert their classes: at the very least, it should make Tennyson's lovely but lengthy "The Lotus Eaters" go down more easily.

Among the items which I must return to its rightful owner one of these days is a Victoria newspaper of 1901, loaned by a chum with an eye for a bargain.

In that now-distant era, you could outfit a boy with a velvet-collared chinchilla topcoat for $2.25, and a navy serge suit for $2.90.

Victoria Gas Co. Ltd. was installing its lamps at no cost other than a nickel-a-month charge for mantle renewal.

"Lights that light," it advertised.

One apparent reason for this open-handed policy on the part of the gaslight people is contained in a much larger ad inserted by B.C. Electric.

"Light that is right," it proclaims. "When you have the electric light, you have the very best."

Basket on arm, you could shop for sugar at 18 pounds for a dollar, and tuck in a bottle of port, if so inclined, for an extra quarter.

Deafness was advertised as curable, also brain fag, bodily weakness and general debility, if one chose the right nostrum.

There's a lot to be said for the world that was. But the hours were long, the pay was, after all, geared to the prices, and the wonder-remedies somehow fell short of the miracles they promised.

I wouldn't want to go back, even though spuds sold at 90c a sack, and the one-way fare to Nanaimo by the Victoria and Sidney Railway and the steamer Iroquois was a buck and a half.

RESCUE ACTIVITY at Oak Bay Marina this morning was determined, but limited. Setting out to look for three youths missing in a small boat since Saturday midnight are Keith Hynds, left, and charter boat operator George Moore. Earlier, Herbert Hynds chartered a plane to look for his son and companions, and J. W. Squire, whose son also is among the missing, left in his own boat. Air-sea rescue is on the job, but there was some suggestion today that an auxiliary rescue fleet of small boats should be organized locally, but drawn from experienced boatmen only.

No Trace of Trio Missing in Boat

Air-Sea Search For Young Hunters

Air-sea rescue planes and ships are engaged in a desperate search today for three Victoria youths.

Missing since they went on a duck-hunting expedition Saturday night are Dennis Powell, 18, of 1240 Newport; Ronald Hynds, 18, 2428 Dalhousie, and Wade Squire, 17, of 2741 Dewdney.

The boys left Oak Bay Marina Saturday midnight in a 12-foot, turquoise clinker-built open boat. It was powered by a five-horsepower outboard engine.

NO FOOD

They took no food except for six oranges. They told their parents they intended to sleep in a shack on Chatham Island until dawn when they proposed to shoot brant. The island is within sight of the marina.

They were to have returned Sunday but there has been no trace of them since.

RCAF and coast guard searchers were called into action Monday. Air-Sea Rescue co-ordination centre at Sea Island said a helicopter was loaned to the search by the Department of Transport Monday.

Coast Guard ships Ready and Racer were used in the search this morning and a Dakota aircraft from RCAF station at Comox was also deployed.

ENGINE TROUBLE

The DOT helicopter developed engine trouble and although crews worked on it all night it was not yet in the air at noon.

The father of one of the youths, Jack W. Squire, was searching for the trio in his own boat.

The uncle of another, Keith Hynds, 131 Grange, went out this morning from Oak Bay Marina in a chartered boat operated by George Moore. His brother, Ronald's father, Herbert Hynds, chartered a plane to fly over the Gulf Islands area.

Also at noon, search officials were considering whether to appeal to small boat owners in the area to join in the search. An official said small boats operated by local people who know the waters would be better able to search beach areas.

CALLED AWAY

An RCAF helicopter had been standing by at Comox also, but just before noon it was called to the Prince George area to take part in another search. An RCAF sergeant, Robert Taylor, based in that area, has been missing in dense bush since Sunday, it was reported.

A report from the U.S. Coast Guard said an aircraft has been sent out to search waters between San Juan Channel and the U.S. mainland.

There has been a general broadcast to all fishboats and other ships in the south Vancouver Island-Gulf Islands area to watch for the missing boat.

The general search are aat noon extended from Chatham and Discovery Islands north east to the San Juans and southward, including portions of the Strait of Juan de Fuca south east of Vancouver Island and west to William Head.

Owner of the boat used by the youths, Ralph Wherry, 939 Esquimalt, said they were equipped with life jackets and emergency gear.

WATER CALM

Marina officials said the water has been generally calm since the boys departed. However there was some fog when they left and the boys' parents believe if the motor was disabled the trio may have drifted to some remote island cove.

"There was a flood tide at the time they left. If their motor conked out it would have carried them in a northerly direction," a marina official said.

Mrs. Hynds said she tried to talk the boys out of their expedition, "but they wouldn't hear of it."

The three youths are all good friends and are fond of hunting and boating.

"I can't understand how they would disappear without a trace like that," said Mrs. Powell.

Ronald Hynds and Wade Squires are Oak Bay High students. Dennis Powell is a taxidermist's apprentice.

Keith Hynds, the uncle of Ronald, said, "Their plight must be getting desperate by now."

He was hopeful that the youths may be safe on some island other than Chatham.

When he departed early today in a marina open runabout with George Moore, the pair had six tanks of gas aboard.

RESCUE SQUADRON PROPOSED

By PETER LOUDON

A volunteer small boat rescue squadron of qualified Victorians was proposed here today.

Department store manager Courtney Haddock, a past commodore of the Victoria Power Squadron, said he will propose the move to the power boat organization.

Mr. Haddock's decision followed reports today of a widespread search by Air-Sea Rescue for three Victoria youths who have been missing in a small open boat since midnight Saturday.

NO CO-ORDINATOR

Search officials at noon were considering asking small boat owners to volunteer to assist in the sea search by Coast Guard ships Ready and Racer.

A problem facing the Air-Sea Rescue service is that although small boats would be valuable in searching closer to shore than can the Coast Guard vessels, there is no qualified co-ordinator at present.

Any volunteer searchers must have a pattern laid down for them and communications must be maintained, Mr. Haddock said.

READY TO HELP

"We have the organization and if anything can be done in this line we would be willing to help," he added.

"We have a number of boats equipped with radio telephone."

He said fishboats, moored in quantity at Fishermen's Wharf at Victoria, would be invaluable in a search operation.

Mr. Haddock said some regulation is required to prevent youngsters from going out after dark in waters where weather conditions are so subject to rapid change.

He thought there would be no difficulty in finding a search-master who was thoroughly familiar with local waters and could maintain organization.

IDLE BOATS

The need for some such rescue service seemed apparent at Oak Bay waterfront. Scores of boats were lying idle at the marina floats.

Only two boats were in sight between here and Chatham Island where the missing boys had been headed.

BURGLARY CHARGE DROPPED

A charge of breaking and entering against murderer David Leonard Robinson was withdrawn in central court today.

Robinson is serving a life term in Oakalla Prison for the May 11 murder of 14-year-old Glendale, Calif., schoolgirl schoolgirl Susan Freschi.

Her body was found the next day by police near her View Royal home at 2637 Chilco Rd.

The charge alleged Robinson broke into a dwelling at 344A Old Island Highway May 3, 1965.

Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett said he wished to withdraw the charge following instructions from the attorney-general's department.

Officials Prepare United Front For Civic Unions

For the first time in civic history union employees of Vancouver Island municipalities will face a united front when contract negotiations start this month.

In the past each municipality has negotiated its own contract with its own employees.

This year, following a municipal summit meeting at Parksville on Nov. 26 last year, municipal leaders agreed that they should face union demands with closed ranks.

Preliminary studies of union demands started this week in Victoria but no formal discussions on contracts will start until all surrounding municipalities have received union demands.

Victoria city manager Dennis Young said this morning he expects formal discussions to start soon.

BROAD BASE

"We are waiting for other municipalities to receive their demands so that we can negotiate on a broader base than in the past," he said. "There has been a tendency to play one municipality against the other and we hope to overcome this."

Indications are that union demands this year will be heavy on fringe benefits and job protection clauses. It is also expected that though wage demands will be included they will play a relatively minor role in negotiations.

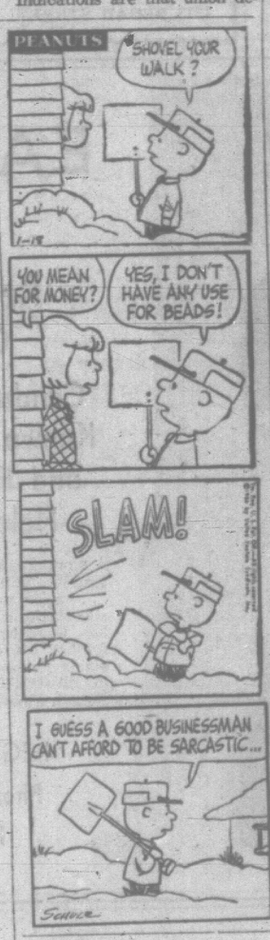
Municipalities deal with several unions during negotiations.

The major union is the Canadian Union of Public Employees covering inside and outside workers in most areas. Separate contracts are required for police, fire department workers, electricians, carpenters and registered nurses.

SEPARATE UNIT

At the time of the one-day Parksville conference, Mr. Young said the time had arrived when Vancouver Island should be treated as a separate economic unit.

Victoria police have already made their preliminary demands known. The major demand is for a 9 per cent wage increase plus various fringe benefits.



TOPICS of the DAY

City fire department was called when puffs of smoke were seen coming from an oil barge moored at Victoria's industrial reserve at noon today

The barge was moored alongside the B-A Oil plant at 51 Songhees Rd.

A company spokesman said the smoke was caused by a battery shorting out on board the barge and firemen were called as a precautionary measure.

The woman suffered shock and bruises, police said.

UFAW OFFICIAL:

Aggressive Fish Export Major Need

A bigger domestic population and more aggressive exports of fish would enable Canada to move into mother ship fleets similar to the Soviet Union, a Vancouver union official said today.

More kinds of fish must be caught to expand the salmon-halibut-herring field.

The Russians, with a population of 200 million, were able to keep fishing fleets roving the seas for six or seven months with mother ships taking the catches and freezer ships taking it home.

"Most countries of the world have populations that are short on animal protein, so the potential is there," he said.

"I am sure we could overcome currency problems."

DOGFISH APLENTY

Mr. Nichol said there is an abundance of dogfish, which lives off other fish, which could be caught in greater numbers.

In Europe, he said, dogfish have been used in fish and chips for years.

Tuna, now sold directly to the United States, uould be expanded and processed in B.C. first, benefitting shore workers.

Mr. Nichol is in Victoria to address a public meeting tonight at 8 in the Union Centre. He will show slides and movies of a recent trip to Poland, where he attended a meeting of the World Federation of Trade Unions.

$250,000 PROJECT

35 Suites Planned For Senior Citizens

A $250,000 low-cost housing project for senior citizens is planned on a site at the Saanich-city boundary.

The project would provide 35 one-bedroom apartments for the elderly. Rents would be $40 a month for single persons, slightly more for married couples.

An application to rezone two lots on the northwest corner of Tolmie and Linwood has been made to Saanich by Wade, Stockill and Armour (architects) on behalf of the Fairhaven Foundation.

The foundation is a non-profit society sponsored by the Plymouth Brethren, a religious group.

A director of the Fairhaven Foundation, William Hamilton, said the project is the first by the group in this area. Accommodation will not necessarily be restricted to members of the Plymouth Brethren.

He said accommodation would be restricted to those with a monthly income of less than $145 and those who are able to look after themselves.

The project was undertaken "because we became aware of the need for low-cost housing for the elderly," he said.

Letter-Perfect? Not Victorians They Even Mail Their Wallets

Would you believe anyone could be so preoccupied he'd put a letter in his hip pocket and mail his wallet?

Or so stupid he'd throw a broken bottle into the letter-box?

Or so malicious he'd toss in a burning match?

Or so cruel he'd mail a small animal?

As comic-philosopher Jimmy Durante says, "we've got a million of 'em" . . . right here in Victoria.

Post Office administrator-supervisor Leon Hall tells the tale. In his position he deals with all incidents involving the 458 letterboxes on Victoria's 13 mail routes.

Some of the incidents related to him by the route collectors are funny and some, not so funny.

CHICKEN IN THE BOX

There was the collector who opened a Colwood parcel-box last summer and was confronted by two hysterically clucking chickens. One escaped but he caught the other and dutifully turned it in with the rest of his "mail collection." It was subsequently returned to the area and released.

And another had the startling experience of having a snake rear its head from a jumble of letters he was collecting.

"The point in fact," says Mr. Hall, "is that these creatures couldn't possibly get into the boxes by themselves."

GASHED HAND

More unhappy was the fate of the collecter who gashed his hand on a jagged beer bottle as he scooped the mail from a box.

The list of non-mail items gathered in mail boxes grows each day and includes the usual collection of wallets (some with fat bankrolls), car and house keys, chocolate wrappers, old newspapers, dead birds, empty food cans, a bottle half-full of whisky, and rocks, loads of rocks dropped into the boxes by mailers trying to find out if they missed the collection (sound of the rock hitting the bottom of the box tells them).

And there's a mailbox near Vic High wherein on any school day enough food is dropped to feed a man for a whole month with sandwiches, apples and the like . . .

In 1964, more than $53,000 in loose cash found its way across the country to a central "Unidentified Mail Office".

"Johnny is sent to the store with a dollar bill, a note to pick up a loaf of bread and a letter to mail. He stops at the mailbox first and mails the letter, and the note, and the money."

RETURNED TO OWNER

Those items which can be identified are returned to their owner. The others are forwarded to a national auction.

To redeem a mailed article is out of the question.

"Once inside the box, the item belongs to the person to which it is addressed," Mr. Hall says.

Although there are a lot of so-called practical jokes played in the area, there is little vandalism.

The Criminal Code makes it a federal offence to tamper with the mail. Damage to a mail box is also an indictable offence.

In addition to the many strange items that get stuffed into them, local mail boxes handle more than 80 per cent of the 7.2 million pieces of mail that move out of Victoria every month.

THE OLD AND THE NEW in mail boxes — metal vs. plastic — are displayed here by post office maintenance man Ken Dicks. Plastic models will start appearing soon in Greater Victoria area.

Today's Opening of Parliament Preceded by Colorful Reception

OTTAWA (CP)—"Has anybody here seen Allan MacEachen?" cried the harried Government House aide, pushing his way through the laughing, heaving, chattering crowd.

"Her Excellency would like to speak to him."

The scene was the ballroom of Rideau Hall. The occasion was the governor-general's traditional reception for members of Parliament and the diplomatic corps on the eve of an opening of Parliament.

More than 300 guests, the largest crowd to attend the event in the memory of seasoned Government House hands, filed through the long drawing room to be presented to Gen. Vanier and his wife, and then lined up six and eight deep for food and drink.

"Usually only 70 per cent of those invited show up. Tonight everybody came," said one waiter.

Inside the ballroom the temperature climbed. Allan MacEachen was discovered and brought to Mme. Vanier's corner.

CHATS WITH DIEFENBAKER

Mr. MacEachen, newly-appointed health minister, chatted with Her Excellency, Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and his wife and Lieutenant-Governor W. J. Macdonald of Prince Edward Island and his wife.

Gen. Vanier met Defence Minister Hellyer, manpower minister-to-be Jean Marchand, and a score of other parliamentarians and diplomats.

Returning to the Commons after an absence of several years, Trade Minister Robert Winters looked very much at home at Government House as he and his wife greeted old friends.

Prime Minister Pearson and his wife talked for a long time with former Governor-General Vincent Massey, who is in Ottawa for the opening of Parliament today.

The cabinet ministers intermingled with religious leaders and top-echelon diplomats ate Gaspe salmon, and filet mignon with mushrooms, topped off with petite fours and champagne.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, wearing a navy blue gown, was the only woman present at the Governor-General's state dinner earlier. She sat at the huge horseshoe-shaped table next to Forestry Minister Sauve and across from Revenue Minister Benson.

The dinner and reception ended shortly after midnight with a massive traffic jam at the front door of Government House.

Slowly each car was driven around to the front door of the stately vice-regal residence. Guests were still departing after 1 a.m.

Show Held for Embryo Designers

NEW YORK — There are many embryo designers in the world and a good sewing machine, a simple course of instruction, and lots of enthusiasm can light the spark.

Damaske

Many of America's top designers run pattern pictures in newspapers across the country (Victoria Daily Times carries one regularly). For a few cents you may easily obtain a paper pattern which is a line-for-line copy of one of this season's top designers.

The Singer Company, our host at a recent luncheon let us know that spring is just around the corner by placing low bowls of delicate pastel daisies and snapdragons on each table.

Narrator for the show was Judith Crist, film critic of the New York Herald Tribune and drama reviewer for the "Today" show.

UNUSUAL BACKDROP

Designs by Oleg Cassini, Hannah Troy, Mr. Blackwell, Ben Reig and many others were shown on the runway with a backdrop staging of attractive sewing machines. These machines would add a great deal of chic to any smart home decor . . . desk-type sewing machines in French provincial styling . . . streamline featherweight portables in the modern manner . . . high fidelity stereo phonographs and portable television machines for the jet set . . . all an important part of this world-wide organization. Newest gimmick for the home sewer is an attachment which will sew fur . . . how about ripping up that worn fur coat and taking the good portions to trim a suit or coat?

One way to be an individual is to design your own . . . Singer will help you . . . . . who knows you might have that flair that brings fashion-hungry women running to your door!

LOOK OF YOUTH

One of the zingiest shows so far was presented by Junior Sophisticates. The present surge to a look of youngness is "right up the alley" of this wide-awake firm. The Charleston may be out, but the look of the 1920s and 30s is in. Pleats of all sizes are brought back to life on the short above-the-knee skirts. The trumpet flair skirt shows new grace and bounce. One persimmon two-piece dress with a long overblouse and skirt of black crepe . . . simple and sophisticated.

The 1966s dapper flapper will "do" the town in the long, slinky look shown in a dress in black with rhinestone straps coming to a V in front. Short short skirts often have feathers that hug the hemline. Brown turkey feathers bounce at the hemline of an ivory crepe coat that opens to reveal a matching slip of a dress.

If you think OP ART is confined to canvas, you just aren't with it these days. Fashion continues to take Op Art to its heart. Junior Sophisticates creates "Op Art" masterpieces in their little day dresses of navy and red jerseys.

This dapper little coat and skirt is one of the perky outfits viewed by Times' fashion editor Nona Damaske when she attended the Junior Sophisticates' spring showing in New York.

Five years ago THE place to go in New York was the Peppermint Lounge . . . internationally known as the original citadel of the twist. The Peppermint Lounge darkened its doors in December but there is always another "IN" place. At this moment it is "Arthurs" owned by Sybil Burton and the dances of course are The Frug . . . Swim . . . Watusi and The Jerk. Even if I knew how to dance any of these uninhibited dances there was not an inch on the floor. It was fun to see and it brought back memories of the crush and din of the Peppermint Lounge. Roddy McDowell was at the next table and I was told he has an interest in Arthurs. Everything is worn, from copper-rivet-studded blue denims, to the most sophisticated of long clinging evening gowns. Noisy . . . smoky . . . crowded but fun.

Second Debut For Mother

It's the moisturizing skin lotion that feeds dry wrinkled skin so much healthful moisture, the lines and wrinkles are pushed up and out. Once again skin is smooth and wrinkle free. If a dry old looking skin is your problem, why don't you ask your drug or department store for 2nd Debut . . . the only skin lotion with CEP 600 and CEP 1200 in double strength. It has the power to help lift your face out of lines and wrinkles fast.

DEAR ABBY . . .

What's Not Dignified?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I raised three fine children. Two sons are now happily married, and both had beautiful weddings to remember. Our youngest, a girl 23, has fallen in love with an assistant professor who doesn't have enough money even to buy her an engagement ring. They have known each other only five months and now they want to get married, but with "no muss, no fuss" (her words). They want just his parents, us and the preacher at the wedding. Should we allow our daughter, a fourth generation Canadian, to get married without dignity—like a hillbilly?

UNHAPPY PARENTS

DEAR UNHAPPY: Every bride is entitled to the kind of wedding she wants. Just be glad she wants YOU there. It sounds "dignified" enough to me.

DEAR ABBY: We live in one of the best neighborhoods in town. There is not one house on our block that is worth less than $75,000. Some new neighbors moved in next door to us and I understand they bought the house for the asking price and paid CASH.

They seem very nice, but they are strange. The first thing we noticed was that they didn't have a television antenna, so my little boy asked their little boy about it, and he said they didn't have a television set! They have only one automobile (and a two-car garage!) and the father drives the car to work every day and the children and mother all use the bus. They rarely go anywhere, except to church. The wife doesn't have any fancy clothes or jewelry or furs. The children do not have any toys dealing with war or violence. Could they belong to some offbeat religious cult? What do you make of them?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Maybe they've just got cash, conservative standards, high moral principles and pacifistic ideals.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is deeply troubled by his knowledge of an affair that is going on between his brother's wife and his sister's husband. (This is not just "hearsay"—he has all the facts.) Neither his brother nor his sister is aware of it, but it is slowly breaking my husband both physically and mentally. There are young children on both sides. My husband doesn't know what, if anything, he should do about it. He has asked for my help, but I don't know what to tell him. Do you think the innocent brother and sister should be told? It is really their problem. Please suggest something.

NO NAME

DEAR NO: Your husband should talk to the guilty parties privately and ask them to end the affair in the name of decency and out of respect for their respective families. Under no circumstances should the innocent brother and sister be told. If your husband's efforts fail, he will at least know that he tried.

CARRIES BIBLE

Dainty Appliques Accent Bride's White Satin Gown

Exquisite embroidered appliques were a highlight to the fitted bodice of the white satin gown worn by Leigh Evelyn Blakey, Saturday evening, when she became the bride of Daryl Edward Thom.

The fitted bodice also featured a round neckline, elbow-length sleeves and a full court train which swept back from two bows at the shoulders. Her bouffant veil misted to her shoulders from a headpiece of a single self-fabric rose and she carried a white Bible, topped with an arrangement of pink roses. Only jewelry was a pearl pendant, gift of the groom.

Setting the pink and white theme for the wedding were the arrangements of pink chrysanthemums and carnations which decorated St. Columba Church for the evening service. Rev. John Vickers officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Blakey of Victoria and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Earl Thom, 1092 Madrona Drive. Paul Blakey gave his sister in marriage.

Street-length dresses of fuchsia-pink velveteen, made by matron of honor Mrs. L. V. Thomas, were worn by the bride's attendants. Bridesmaids were the Misses Vicki Prette and Carol Thom.

Accenting their outfits were self-fabric bow headpieces, edged with net, and colonial bouquets of pink carnations, centred with roses en tone. The bridesmaids' only jewelry was silver lockets, gifts of the bride and groom.

Ronald Thom was best man for his brother. Ushering guests to their pews were L. V. Thomas and V. E. Gallop, Campbell River.

Miniature figures of a bride and groom, which had decorated the wedding cake of the bride's parents, topped the three-tier cake which centred the head table at the reception following in Holyrood House. R. A. B. Prette proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple will make their home at Campbell River following a honeymoon trip to the mainland. The new Mrs. Thom chose a three-piece walking suit of muted jade green, interwoven with black thread, for travelling. Complementing the ensemble were black accessories and an orchid corsage.

House Looks the Same But Much Has Changed

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—There's an eerie feeling about the new Parliament, a feeling that time has stood still, that nothing has changed.

Waring

The same leaders in their same positions face one another across the same green carpeted floor, with practically the same back-up support from MPs ranked behind them. On the surface, Nov. 8 might never have happened.

But of course time hasn't stood still. Instead, it has marched rapidly on for the two implacable political foes who dominate Parliament, Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative leader Diefenbaker. Both are in the ninth inning of their political careers; neither is likely to get—or take—another turn at bat.

Not unconnected with this fact is the presence of a few familiar new faces: Davie Fulton, George Hees, Robert Winters. They indicate a great undercurrent in this session, a rivalry for individual position and prestige as a jumping-off point for both Liberal and Conservative leadership races.

★ ★ ★

But because the election decided nothing, the main characteristic of the Commons is still the delicate balance of power. On paper the opposition has a four-vote edge, 134 to 130—the 265th MP, the House Speaker, having no vote except in a tie. But the opposition edge is so small that, in any no-quarter confrontation between government and opposition, the normal incidence of absence and illness could tip the vote either way.

While the Liberals are sitting on a powder keg, the opposition would have to generate a tremendous amount of heat to light the fuse. The opposition speaks not with one voice, but with the voices of four separate opposition parties plus a couple of independent MPs, plus divergent opinions within these parties, especially the Tory party.

The government's strategy must be to keep the temperature low enough so that at no time will there be enough heat for the whole opposition to light that fuse. To this end the government will be receptive and pliant, within the limits of its philosophy, principles and finances, to proposals dear to the hearts of opposition MPs. The obvious recipients for such unwonted consideration are the New Democrats and the bifurcated Social Crediters.

In carefully picking its way over the muskeg of opposition support, the government will be emboldened by the fact that the politicians as well as the people have had a bellyful of elections. And among the Tories there are influential members—prominent examples: Messrs. Fulton and Hees—whose personal ambitions do not countenance another opportunity for Mr. Diefenbaker to spellbind his way back into power.

The Tory schism is thus likely to widen rather than heal with the return of the outcasts. Had Mr. Pearson won a majority and Mr. Diefenbaker been soundly defeated, the aging Tory leader's future would hold nothing but quick and, hopefully, graceful retirement. But the indecisiveness of the Nov. 8 results has left Mr. Diefenbaker a straw at which to grasp—and his grasping should, judging by past performance, be accompanied by a great quantity of political pyrotechnics.

That touch o' the Irish that makes people love a good fight should be well satisfied in the new Commons.

Who'd Want the Tropics? Yeah! and so Would I

By ART STOTT

ON SATURDAY morning a neighbor, whom we'd missed during the festive season, dropped in to tell Pat about the Christmas holiday she'd spent in Florida. On Saturday afternoon, the smoothly tanned member of the bridge club draped around Pat's neck a fresh lei she had brought back from Honolulu.

Stott

Up to that point I'd been fairly cheerful about our Victoria weather at the beginning of the weekend. It had been so much better than the week before—when we ploughed through snow to look at the Shawnigan place—that I had dragged out the lawnmower and skidded in through the wet grass to gouge a little turf from the greasy surface.

Kathleen's talk about Florida and Helen's souvenir from Waikiki took away a little of of my enthusiasm for the Victoria climate. As I emptied the grass-catcher down the lot, staring out over water that still looked, and was, cold, my fancy soared off to sundrenched beaches in the mid-Pacific and on the Gulf of Mexico. I fall into these semi-trances occasionally. A shiver shook me out of it and I became acutely aware that the individual can't sun himself very effectively at this season in Canada's so-called evergreen playground.

★ ★ ★

So I returned to the lawnmower, slid around the greensward, catching flicks of worm moulds from the revolving blades and muttering to myself that I ought to be in Mexico City, Australia or on the Mediterranean. Such can be the winter of a man's discontent when his friends return from glorious sunshine.

If it was a bit nippy on the lawn above the water, it was several degrees colder in the shade of the wall which fronts on the street, where I clipped back some exuberant St. John's wort. Working in public view, this way, I earn good opinions in the minds of neighbors who think I like this sort of thing, or at least that I am the happy gardener. All the time I'm mumbling a litany I never learned in Sunday School.

But there are compensations. The young lady who came along with an approving smile lifted my spirits with her comment: "Wait until I write my friends in Calgary and tell them you mowed the lawn out here today."

When another guest dropped over to ask if I'd noticed the snowdrops blooming in my border and I pointed out the blossoming violets to him, I began to regain my confidence in what we call our equable climate.

★ ★ ★

By the next day my outlook had improved to the point when I began to think like a Chamber of Commerce booster. I went fishing with a friend in an open aluminum boat. The sun shone. The strait sparkled. A zephyr breathed down from the north east.

Anybody but a nut would have noticed that the wind cut through a coat, a thick woollen sweater, a sports shirt, an undershirt, and a fair layer of blubber to bite into the bone. But who notices that when larger-than-legal-sized grilse are taking a simple brass-and silver spoon avidly enough to give a man his limit?

There's a difference between this and lying on the beach at Bali-Bali, or reclining on a deck chair by the blue Mediterranean, or seeking a shady January pint in Sydney.

Relatively speaking, though, there's much to be said for our weather at this time of year — and not all of it in terms of profanity.

Of course a man fishing in an open boat in mid-January here grows gradually numb. The cold seeps up from his feet. So what? When there's no feeling from his knees down, he can always turn homeward, crawl ashore and stumble into his warm house. And what's better for a freezing fisherman than a good, hot cup of tea? You guessed it. We had that, too.

"If it was good enough for Nelson, it's quite good enough for me."

De Gaulle Faces Hard Task

By WAVERLEY ROOT
The Washington Post

PARIS — The new French ministry looks like the most difficult team to drive that President Charles de Gaulle has accepted ever since his return to power in 1958.

It is replete with built-in rivalries and overlapping functions which lay it wide open to potential intra-government quarrels over jurisdiction.

In fact, it resembles a Fifth-Republic cabinet less than a Third-or-Fourth-Republic cabinet of the sort which resulted from the manoeuverings of the political parties which de Gaulle has so often excoriated.

A characteristic of those pre-de Gaulle cabinets was that the choice of ministers, and the richness of the plum which each was able to extort, depended on ability to bring votes to the governmental majority—and this is precisely what differentiates this government from previous Fifth Republic governments.

Votes Not Needed

So far, de Gaulle has not had to compose his ministries for their vote-pulling capacity. He himself guaranteed enough votes. It was a foregone conclusion that he would win all the elections — except senatorial elections, in which the public as a whole does not vote, but only the notables, who are still holdovers from the pre-de Gaulle establishment, and who still resent their replacement by de Gaulle's Union for the New Rrpublic. But since the Fifth Republic constitution has drawn the senate's teeth, this does not matter.

The present government is the first since 1958 to be constituted with a view to winning an election — the parliamentary election scheduled for spring, 1967. This has created a situation, familiar under the Third and Fourth Republics, which permits a man who can contribute votes to lay down terms for entering the government. Edgar Faure's acceptance of the ministry of agriculture on condition that he be granted a free hand in running it, and the government's acceptance of this condition because it believes Faure can deliver left votes which it does not now have, are reminiscent of the bargains struck during the composition of ministries under previous regimes. Up to now, potential ministers have not been in a position to bargain with de Gaulle. If he offered a portfolio to anyone, the choice was simple: take it or leave it.

If this has changed now, it may be partly because de Gaulle's advanced age makes everyone conscious of the possibility that it could be someone else who will have to lead this government into its next electoral battle. If it is still de Gaulle, it would hardly be necessary to scrape the bottom of the political pot for every last vote, or to offer special inducements to vote-getters to come into the cabinet, bringing their votes with them.

Counting Heads

But if someone other than de Gaulle presides over the next elections, then it may be necessary to count heads carefully and to court every possible vote. This is the government's point of view in trying to recruit new ministers who can deliver additional votes.

The new ministers' point of view may be that this provides an opportunity to get in line for a share of the de Gaulle heritage when the general disappears. Preoccupation with the succession of de Gaulle is now dictating the tactics of the ambitions, not only those who are promoting their own fortunes by accepting cabinet posts on the best possible terms, but also those who are promoting them by refusing portfolios.

Holds Balance

Thus Valery Giscard d'Estaing, ousted from the finance ministry to the profit of Michel Debre by the infighting that accompanied the former prime minister's return to the government, reject a lesser portfolio and is now on the outside — but with the 35 votes of his Republican Independent deputies to the National Assembly in his pocket, enough in a strongly contested vote to assure defeat or victory for the government.

The government which has emerged out of these jockeyings for position and this obsession with the 1967 elections is extraordinarily complicated, and might even be described as unworkable for a politician less skilled than de Gaulle. Its most obvious weakness is its double-headed character, with Pompidou remaining as prime minister, but with his predecessor, Mechel Debre, de Gaulle's only other prime minister, back in the government, with his own important reserved area inside it, and his own inner cabinet.

Law and order in Colombia's vast back-country cattle plains is administerd by Rurales such as these shown galloping along a dusty road. The mostly-young policemen cover a territory of 140,000 square miles and, because uniforms are widely resented in the country, they dress much like other "llaneros" or Colombian cowboys.

Famed Colombian Priest Joins Guerrilla Fighters

By CLYDE SANGER
The Manchester Guardian

The Castroite guerrilla movement in the troubled South American state of Colombia has a notable new recruit in a youthful Catholic priest, Camillo Torres, who was until recently chaplain and professor of sociology at the National University.

He disappeared from Bogota, the capital, two months ago, and now leaflets circulating there last weekend picture him in a uniform and carrying a rifle and announcing that he will fight Colombia's ruling class at the head of the "Army of National Liberation."

The leaflet with the slogan, "Liberation or Death," calls on the 14 million people of the country to rise against its oligarchy.

According to one source, he has joined a guerrilla band in the Santander district near the Venezuelan border.

In other rural areas, violence is often attributed to a hangover of the 10-year feud between the Liberals and Conservatives. But the Santander district has been a particular target for Communists in their recent strategy.

It includes important oilfields and the new railway line to the Atlantic.

A year ago one group boldly occupied the town of Simacota for some hours. Communist trade unionists laid the foundations for a guerrilla movement by organizing "peasant leagues" to invade big estates.

Senor Torres comes from one of the country's prominent families, but he and another 37-year-old priest, Father Martin Amaya Martinez, formed their political views during studies in Europe. Last year the two were the most revolutionary voices in Colombia. The Catholic hierarchy is notoriously conservative there and both men were stripped of their priestly duties after attacking the social and religious establishment.

The Colombian army of about 40,000 men has had only moderate success against the guerrillas so far. Whether the guerrilla threat, which is not yet large, will grow depends on how a new government under the Liberal leader Dr. Lleras Restrepo, tackles the problems of reform.

The eight-year-old pact which ended the Conservative-Liberal feud should ensure his becoming president in May, succeeding the ineffectual Conservative President Valencia.

Japan's Zaibatsu Wield Enormous Economic Power

By SIMON BLACKALL

KYOTO — Japan has just come through a bad recession, caused by over-expanded production facilities at a time of declining markets at home. It was sparked by the Japanese government which, in order to slow down the accelerating boom of the early sixties, adopted a tighter money policy.

By last August, the number of bankruptcies among medium-size companies had climbed to upwards of 400 in a single month, and the government had stepped into support the Tokyo stock market by buying selective shares and guaranteeing the nation's second largest securities house.

The housewives, clerks and shopgirls, who had once been some of the most enthusiastic investors in Japanese business and indutry, and had helped force up share prices to 10 times what they were in the middle fifties, had retired from the lists. In their place were the banks and insurance companies, who demanded and received a much closer reckoning of accounts.

Today some sort of stock market stability has been achieved, and most shares have regained their pre-recession value. But as many of the smaller businesses foundered, or were swallowed up by the larger ones, it became more and more apparent that the companies least affected by the recession were the "zaibatsu." The term zaibatsu is used to describe the large and powerful cartels of interdependent companies which span Japanese industry and commerce from shipping and banking to pencils and razors.

Anti-Trust Law

In 1947, at the instigation of the U.S. occupation authorities, the Japanese government passed an ani-trust law which, although later amended, remains essentially the same in that it expressly forbids the combination of companies manufacturing dissimilar goods. Whereas in Germany the giant Krupp group has not been disbanded, despite Allied resolutions, the Japanese cartels at least went through the motions.

Bu, since the end of the U.S. occupation in 1952, there has been a steady regrouping of the companies within the old zaibatsu framework. Today there is no pretence of division, and the zaibatsu openly advertise as being this or that "group of companies."

The three largest zaibatsu, Mitsui, Mitsubishi and Sumitomi, together account for over one third of the entire industry and commerce of Japan. To give an idea of what this could, though in practice seldom does, lead to, there is the example of a hypothetical Mr. X, who works for the Mitsubishi Bank.

Each morning Mr. X shaves with his Mitsubishi electric razor, while watching television on his Mitsubishi set. He drives to the station in the family car, another Mitsubishi product, stopping on the way to fill up with Mitsubishi-brand petrol, before taking a train powered with a Mitsubishi electric motor.

All Mitsubishi

On arrival at the terminal, Mr. X takes a bus made by Mitsubishi, for the short journey to his bank. Once there he picks up his Mitsubishi-brand pencil and goes to work on the letters of credit of the Mitsubishi trading company, which go to pay for the iron ore imported in ships of the Mitsubishi shipping line to supply the Mitsubishi steel mills, which in turn provide steel for the Mitsubishi shipyards.

It sounds like the never-ending circle of G. B. Shaw's "The Applecart," where Breakages Ltd. have the ultimate monopoly. But, amazingly, all this, and more, is possible, for these large groups manufacture and trade in everything from timber and textiles to food and fertilizers.

Today, with the power of the old family groups reduced or removed, the zaibatsu are less inclined to meddle in politics. Their main field of influence appears to be a powerful government lobby in the interests of big business.

A cynical observer recently suggested that the zaibatsu should be encouraged to expand and include all Japanese industry and commerce before eventual government take-over; thus facilitating what he described as "the first economically - efficient socialist state." He is not entirely without a case.

World Literacy Gains Are Slow

PARIS—The battle against illiteracy is slowly gaining momentum, according to figures published here, but nearly 45 per cent of the world's population is still unable to read or write.

In a majority of countries, less than half the population between the ages of five and 19 goes to school, the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization statistical year book published here shows.

This percentage dropped to 57 from 59 between 1957 and 1960. In the breakdown of world illiteracy, Northern and Western Europe had the lowest rate at one to two per cent. North America was pegged at three to four per cent and Southern Europe at 20 per cent.

North Africa had the highest rate—85 to 90 per cent.

Sino-Soviet Quarrel Grows More Violent

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

HONG KONG—The rift between Red China and the Soviet Union appears to be shifting from ideology to a bitter governmental dispute.

In a front page report Sunday morning, Peking's authoritative Peoples Daily accused Moscow of zestfully spreading rumors that the Chinese Communists had obstructed Soviet military aid en route to North Viet Nam.

On three occasions within the past month, the newspaper disclosed, the Soviet Union had rejected Chinese government memoranda demanding that the Russians "clear up the rumors publicly."

These repeated Russian rebuffs, said the Peoples Daily, "cannot but be regarded as a new step . . . along the road of worsening state relations between China and the Soviet Union."

Peking has charged that Soviet leaders are conniving with the United States to undermine the Vietnamese Communist cause.

Peking has also charged that most Soviet military aid to North Viet Nam consists of "obsolete equipment discarded by the Soviet armed forces or damaged weapons cleaned out of warehouses." This aid, Peking said recently, was far from commensurate with what the Soviet Union has given to the Indian reactionaries."

Times Dispatch

Attempting to tarnish Peking, the Soviet weekly Za Rubezhom (Life Abroad) last December reprinted a New York Times dispatch reporting that China required the Soviet Union to pay Peking in dollars for shipping its aid through China to North Viet Nam.

It was this Soviet manoeuvre that ostensibly aroused Chinese anger, leading to the report in the Peoples Daily.

The Peoples Daily attack seemed to be part of a pattern to discredit the Soviet Union in Hanoi's eyes while burnishing Red China's image as North Viet Nam's true friend.

According to Peking, the Soviet Union made its first request to ship aid through China to North Viet Nam Feb. 25, 1965, soon after Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin had visited Hanoi.

Without exception, stated the Peoples Daily, Soviet military supplies and technicians bound for Viet Nam were given rapid transit across China. "The Chinese railways did this free of charge," asserted the newspaper "receiving not a single kopek, let alone a U.S. cent from the Soviet."

Appreciation

The Peking journal quoted Col. A. A. Shaitin, a Soviet economic relations official in China, as expressing his appreciation of Chinese efforts.

The first Chinese protest against rumors of Peking's interference was raised on Jan. 4, when China's Deputy Foreign Minister Wang Ping Nan handed a memorandum on the subject to the Soviet ambassador in Peking, S. G. Lapin.

According to the Chinese account, Lapin originally denied that a New York Times dispatch had been published in a Soviet magazine. Then he allegedly said it had been "printed by mistake" and that the Soviet government was not responsible for reports in the Soviet press.

The Peoples Daily termed the Soviet Ambassador's defence "astonishing."

Ambassador Lapin finally refused to accept the Chinese memorandum. Chinese notes to the Soviet embassy in Peking on Jan. 9 and to the Soviet foreign ministry in Moscow on Jan. 11 were also rejected.

Concluding that it was "crystal clear" that Moscow had spread these rumors against Peking, the Peoples Daily declared that the Soviet aim is "to vilify China, sow discord in the relations between China and Viet Nam and serve U.S. imperialism."

Simultaneously, Peking has also criticized Moscow for initialling a civil aviation agreement with Japan on Saturday.

The agreement, said Peking's official New China News Agency was "made at U.S. bidding" in order to "follow the line of U.S.-U.S.S.R. co-operation (and) increase hostility towards China."

IN SOUTH AMERICA, AFRICA

B.C. Mining Benefits From Political Unrest

The B.C. mining industry is reaping benefit from political upheavals in South American and African nations, a news report said today.

The report is titled The Mining Industry of B.C. and the Yukon, prepared for B.C. Hydro Industrial development department by economist John C. Dawson.

It states that mineral production of the past three years has been at record level each year, now at 64,000 tons per day ore concentrating capacity.

Within three years total milling capacity will be in excess of 100,000 tons per day and by 1970 the existing total should more than double to 130,000 tons, the report predicts.

COME OF AGE

Mining in B.C. and the Yukon has come of age, having outgrown a lengthy period of adjustment to uncertain market values and the economy in marginal industry, the report said.

"Also there is little doubt that the British Columbia-Yukon mining industy has been enhanced by investment uncertainties in other mineral rich nations.

"Political unrest, nationalistic pressures, variable laws and other problems have diverted capital investment from some South American and African nations to the relative security of Canada."

Today, market requirements are strong and are expected to continue so, said the report.

Large tonnage, low grade mines with ore in the tens of millions of tons in reserve are replacing the traditional small high grade tunnel mines of the past, giving greater long-term stability.

Greatest new tonnage will be in the two metals of the space-electronics age—copper and molybdenum, the report said.

The others of importance singled out by Mr. Dawson are silver, lead, zinc, iron and mercury.

$30 MILLION SPENT

It is estimated over $30 million has been spent in the last two years on exploration, compared with only $10 million for the 10-year period ending in 1961.

Claim staking and diamond drilling are at a high level, the former at its highest.

The prospects for expansion of industry and distribution facilities in B.C. are most favorable and sales opportunities are offered by the growth of new pulp and paper mills, hydro-electric roads and railways and general construction.

"British Columbia is on the threshold of spectacular industrial expansion," Mr. Dawson said.

"Consider this vast area — larger than California, Washington and Oregon combined — loaded with minerals, covered with almost two thirds of all Canada's soft wood reserves and with fewer people than metropolitan Toronto.

"British Columbia has a unique potential unmatched in most parts of the world."

He said this is recognized in London, New York and Tokyo and hoped that Canadian industrialists in Montreal and Toronto may soon do the same.

Specialized Mine Assay Service Set

Two Canadian testing laboratories are joining forces to provide specialized mineral assay services for the B.C. mining boom.

The co-operating arrangement is made between General Testing Laboratories, Vancouver, and TSL Laboratories Ltd., a subsidiary of the Toronto firm, Technical Service Leboratories. It will mean a greater analytical chemistry role for General Testing, and more assaying for TSL.

General Testing will hand over its mining assay work to TSL, which is geared to do quick, accurate instrumental testing that replaces many wet chemical tests.

TSL will hand on to General Testing its analytical work in edible oils, fertilizers, grain and other products.

"We entered the mineral testing field two to three years ago when numerous finds flooded the limited testing facilities here," General Testing managing director D. S. Brake said.

"Now modern instrumental tests will replace many wet chemical operations in assaying, thus enabling us to provide the mining industry with the service they need to keep pace more effiicently with today's demands."

TSL, besides being equipped to work with the new techniques recently expanded in geochemistry.

This additional service will be provided in B.C. under direction of Dr. A. H. Debnam.

Bank Chief Urges Cuts In Taxation

TORONTO (CP) — Canada should provide incentives through changes in inheritance and income taxes so people can accumulate capital and undertake new enterprises, Neil. J. McKinnon, chairman of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, said Monday.

He told the Canadian Club of Toronto taxation is undermining the development of self-reliance in Canada and encouraging able people and those with capital to emigrate to more favorable tax climates.

"If we wish to develop a nation whose citizens will own as individuals an increasing share of the industrial enterprises within the country, most certainly we shall not do so if income taxes and inheritance taxes are higher than those of other countries."

Although these taxes in Canada were "forbidding disincentives" to enterprise, they provided relatively little revenue for governments.

Sharks Close Beaches

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters) —Several bathing beaches here have been closed because of danger from packs of sharks. Sunday a shark caught and ate a dog, and David Landor, secretary of the Shark Research Society, warned sharks that eat dogs will eat anything—or anybody.

ATLANTIC ACCEPTANCE

Inquiry Opens, Could Last Year

C. POWELL MORGAN
. . . former president

TORONTO (UPI)—A royal commission inquiry began Monday with what was expected to be a year-long study of the causes behind the spectacular collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp.

The inquiry, led by Superior Court Judge Samuel Hughes, opened two or three days of hearings for the introduction and identification of documents.

Mr. Justice Hughes was expected to adjourn the hearings at mid-week and resume them toward the end of the month for examination of witnesses.

Atlantic, with assets valued at $150 million could not meet $5 million wroth of shrot term obligations last summer and went into receivership.

Atlantic's creditors lost an estimated $50 to $75 million after the bankruptcy. It was learned that the huge complex of companies had obtained some $105 million of its notes from some of the most respected names in Canadian and U.S. financial circles.

Ramifications of the Atlantic bankruptcy still are being felt. Several firms have closed their doors because of heavy investment in the Canadian company.

CONFIDENCE SHAKEN

Many U.S. investors lost confidence in Canada as a result of the Atlantic collapse and Canadian businessmen say this confidence is still shaken.

A list of those hurt in the Atlantic crash reads like a Who's Who in the financial communities of both countries. Included are the United States Steel pension fund, the First National City Bank of New York, the Ford Foundation, Princeton University, Kuhn Loeb and Co., The Equitable Securities Co., British Mortgage and Trust and many, many others.

Thirty accountants have been sifting through mountains of documents submitted to the royal commission inquiry. Financial experts here predict the commission will look into the activities of some 150 companies. It will delve into operations of 60 of these at some length.

The accountants' main concern is to find out exactly what happened to Atlantic's large capitalization. In many cases, it seems to have gone out in loans which were never repaid.

Montreal Trust, receiver of the financial empire, showed that the company had made, through subsidiaries several loans to companies and individuals with bad credit ratings.

'Labor's Bluff Should Have Been Called'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Government and business have called the bluff of labor leaders who threatened a general strike in British Columbia last year, the new president of the Vancouver Board of Trade said Monday.

"I cannot help wondering how long it will be before the promoters of the general strike will be back on our doorstep with a new cause to champion and laws to break," Sydney Welch said in his inaugural address.

"Let's hope that next time they are not so conveniently taken out of their dilemma."

Mr. Welch, 51, president of a plumbing company, said some labor leaders "demonstrated their complete disregard for law and irresponsibility to their membership" with the general strike threat.

The incident did prove, however, that "there are many responsible labor leaders and gave them a chance to stand up and be counted."

If the government and business had called the bluff of those calling for a general strike "it would have discredited the leaders who supported it and left the unions and their members vulnerable to damages through the courts," said Mr. Welch.

Assessment Fight By Mac-Powell

VANCOUVER (CP)—MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. launched an action Monday in B.C. Supreme Court here involving a multi-million-dollar government assessment procedure.

The company asks the court to declare illegal the assessor's 25 per cent severance tax assessment on a portion of land the company bought from the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Co. on Vancouver Island.

A spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel said assessment of the timber on the 220,000 acres would be higher under the government scheme, to assess the land in parts rather than as a whole.

The company contends there should be one tax notice at one time for the entire tract.

He was past president of the now defunct Veterans of France Association.

Exchange Seats Sold For Big Sums

NEW YORK (AP) — The greatest number of New York Stock Exchange seats traded in 18 years was sold Monday for a record dollar volume.

Five seats—actually memberships in the closely held exchange—were sold. Two were sold for $245,000 each, two at $250,000 each and one at $240,000.

The $250,000 price equalled the 1965 high. Names of buyers and sellers of the seats will not be known until the transactions are ratified by the exchange.

In April, 1948, five seats were sold at prices ranging from $59,000 to $62,000 each.

A stock exchange seat entitles its owner to trade on the floor of the exchange, which saves the individual brokerage charges. He must, however, pay dues to the exchange and expenses.

Up, Up And Away We Go

LONDON (Reuters) — A British engineer believes he has the answer to the problem of sprawling cities—housing 500,000 people in a single tower block, two miles high.

Engineer Wilem Frischmann, of a London consulting engineering firm, says an 850-storey building for 500,000 people would cost less than housing the same number of people by conventional methods.

It would save a great deal of land which could then be used for food production and, Frischmann believes, might prove popular in Britain by making it possible to live above the weather.

Frischmann outlined his plan in the monthly Science Journal here.

Gathering Staff First Big Job For New Planner

Victoria's new town planner J. G. Greenhalgh commenced his duties at city hall Monday.

He comes to Victoria from Calgary where he held the job of assistant town planner.

Mr. Greenhalgh had originally intended to arrive in the city several days ago but snowslides in the Rogers Pass and dangerous driving conditions generally through the mountains delayed his arrival.

He will spend the next few weeks orienting himself with city projects and gathering together a new staff.

The old city planning staff resigned en masse folowing administrative disputes within city hall.

Council to Tour New Projects For Saanich

Sannich council will make its annual tour of proposed new projects Saturday.

Councillors will see first-hand plans suggested by themselves, by municipal staff and by private groups.

Among the dozens of small items to be looked at are various sidewalk, drainage and road plans.

One proposal is to make the Gorge Road four lanes between Tillicum Bridge and the city boundary.

Councillors will be accompanied by several senior members of the inspection and engineering departments including municipal engineer Neville Life.

Growth Plan Proposed For Bay Area

A community plan for the Cadboro Bay-university district of Saanich was proposed Monday night.

Behind the move are applications and re-applications by persons seeking apartment buildings in the area.

The community plan proposal was put forward by Coun. Leslie Passmore after a realtor applied for rezoning only a few months after having the same application rejected by Saanich.

Jack L. P. Mears applied to rezone 3861 Cadboro Bay Road for low density apartments—that is, a three-storey building.

Coun. Passmore said the time is past for the district to have a community plan and put an end to re-applications when there is a change in council membership following municipal elections.

The community plan proposal was forwarded to council's lands and planning committee for further consideration.

ORDERLY GROWTH

Municipal planner Tom Loney said later the object of a community plan is to provide for orderly growth and development.

The plan would be restrictive in some aspects and permissive in others. But such a plan is much more difficult to change than an area without one.

HEARING JAN. 31

In another development, a public hearing will be held Jan. 31 in the council chamber into an application to rezone land off Haro Road near the university for high-rise apartments, which could mean as high as 12 storeys.

A similar application two years ago was narrowly defeated by council.

The Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association sought to have the venue changed to a church hall where accommodation would be greater than the council chamber.

But council agreed to a separate public hearing for this application only because of the large number of persons expected to attend.

It was planned to hear this application with others at a hearing next Monday night.

Navy Will Light Up Ship But Ceremony in Doubt

Royal Canadian Navy has a ship but not the manpower to spare for Victoria spring flower festival.

Tourist industry group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Monday that HMCS Saskatchewan would be illuminated and stationed in the Inner Harbor for visitors during four days of the festival.

The assurance was given by A. G. Coning, who reported the navy could give no commitment at this time on the request to stage a sunset ceremony on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

He said the navy has a "manpower problem."

It is planned to have open house on the destroyer April 7-10. The committee hoped to have a sunset ceremony April 2 as part of the flower festival opening.

NINE DAYS

Events are planned to cover nine days and will include marine events in the harbor, crowning of a festival queen, a 100-mile bike race, driving roadeo, art show, fashion shows, kids' parade, variety show, a formal ball, boatmen's ball, Easter sunrise service on Mount Tolmie, a beat music youth dance and competitions for decorations.

Mr. Coning said he is arranging the youth dance because younger people will not attend the other dances which they "view with contempt."

He said the dance he is arranging would be "with all the long-haired bands I can lay my hands on," tentatively for April 7.

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will go up the Fraser Valley presenting mayors with symbolic lamp post flower baskets to promote the festival.

Meanwhile, the Chamber's annual goodwill tour into Washington and Oregon is being planned for March 13-20, in which some 30 members will promote Victoria from a red double-deck bus, stopping at shopping centres in the major cities to show film slides and to hand out pamphlets.

Convention Centre Plan Wins Support

A Chamber of Commerce study of convention centre requirements has the blessing of city council, Norman Loomer told a chamber committee Monday.

Mr. Loomer, chairman of a convention centre study group, said council plans a convention centre as part of the arena-curling rink complex.

He said the city hopes to use funds from the estate of T. S. McPherson but the money will not become available until the end of 1967.

"The time to plan for these things is now, and perhaps by the time the money is available we will have made a start on the building through advance financing," he said.

He made it clear the city would be in charge with the chamber merely offering advice on facilities.

MANAGER

Empress Hotel manager Leslie Parkinson said the time has come for a full-time convention manager as part of the paid Chamber of Commerce staff.

Tourist industry group chairman Bill Clark agreed but said a convention information centre is conceived as part of the ultimate arrangements for establishment of a firmer convention industry here.

The papers have been bulging lately with pieces about the best this and the outstanding that of 1965. Now it's time for a positive guide into the future.

There are some who may feel that a glimpse into 1966 should be delayed until next Christmas on the grounds that a retrospective look would improve the accuracy of so imperishable a document.

Crothers Will Tackle Kenya Flash in Mile

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., rated by many the world's best half-miler currently in competition, will step up to the mile and challenge Kenya's Keino Kipchoge in the Millrose Games here Jan. 27.

Meet director Howie Schmertz said Monday that Crothers' coach, Fred Foot of Toronto, had entered the lean athlete in the mile and had written: "We hope you can get Keino."

Keino has broken the world two-mile record, beaten Ron Clarke at 5,000 metres and has run the third fastest mile of all time in 3:54.2.

Crothers was Olympic runner-up to New Zealand's Peter Snell at 800 metres.

DOUG FLETCHER

DOUG FLETCHER NAMED . . . . . PRESIDENT OF SHAMROCKS

This May be Greatest Challenge

The troubled ship Shamrock picked up a new skipper today, immediately buoying up the crew's hopes for a successful voyage through the 1966 Inter-City Lacrosse League.

Douglas Fletcher, president of the Greater Victoria Lacrosse Association for 23 out of the last 24 years, former B.C. Association prime minister, lifetime member of the Canadian body, manned the pilot house of the Victoria Shamrocks, the ICLL's bust of '65.

"I didn't want the job, I didn't seek it," Fletcher said today. "But I was promised full co-operation and, well, you know how I feel about the game."

Fletcher's feelings, dedication and perspiration have accounted for countless championships in the vast minor boxla complex he has directed.

The Shamrocks, however, could be his greatest challenge.

Mooted as a team that could go all the way last year, they went all the way—through the schedule. But they never made the playoffs and never seriously appeared in danger of fulfilling their promise.

This year they could lose five players and they still must buck disproportionate (to mainland teams) travelling costs.

The lost members could be Ted Liebich, Bill Russell, Larry Clarkson, Alf Shuker and Larry Biggs. Nanaimo residents, they failed or were unable to attend practices last year. The resident Victorians on the team feel such an arrangement was unfair to coach Jim McNeill, to themselves and to the outsiders. They have recommended to the directors that no player be signed or used who does not live or work in Victoria.

Offsetting this, in Fletcher's view, is the coming of age of juniors Ranjit Dillon and John Lauvaas, Ron Zilkie and Brent Atkins and Doug Thompson. The latter, a goalkeeper, has been outstanding in a career stretching from diaper league through junior play.

Additionally, reinstatement applications by Ray Beech, John Allen and Al McLean, participants in a Quebec outlaw league last season, are considered a formality for approval.

Fletcher has taken a "let's wait and see" attitude towards the high cost of travelling, insists that mainland teams "want Victoria in the league."

Assisting him in all phases of the operation will be a directorate consisting of Buss Morgan, his predecessor of three years; Keith Dorman, Al Rhodes, Mason Sheldrick, Hal Jordan, Roy Wolsey, Jack Morgan, Tom Jennings and Len Ingraham.

Hec McNeill will be at his old post as manager, and his son, Jimmy, appears to have no serious opposition, as incumbent coach.

It could be an interesting season.

FRANK MARIO . . . waiting is worrisome

Frank Has the Jitters Waiting for Explosion

By DOUG PEDEN

Although Frank Mario has the Victoria Maple Leafs sitting on top of the Western Hockey League world he feels just like a guy who is sitting on top of a barrel of dynamite.

And today coach Frank is worried that somebody may have started the fuse smoking.

The fuse he is thinking about is attached to the sometimes explosive package called the Vancouver Canucks, who will make another attempt to blow the Leafs apart Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Thus far this season the men of coach Bert Olmstead have only been able to touch off minor fireworks against Victoria. In fact, from a Maple Leaf viewpoint, the relationship with the Canucks has been a joy and a delight. It is perhaps the main reason why the Mariomen are running out in front of the WHL pack.

In six games between the two clubs this winter, the Canucks have yet to collect a point, losing three times in Vancouver Forum and three times in Memorial Arena.

GOODWILL GESTURE

And the Canucks, who almost knocked Victoria out of the playoffs last season by winning 10 of 16 games, added another gesture of goodwill Sunday. They exploded in the third period for an upset 2-1 win over Portland to keep the runner-up Buckaroos four points behind the Leafs.

All this is mighty pleasant for the stocky Victoria coach. But in it he also finds cause for concern. Frank knows the law of hockey averages say the Canucks are going to blast his boys before the season ends and he's getting jittery waiting for the eruption.

"We have done well against Vancouver so far," Mario said between mouthfuls at lunch Tuesday. "But I feel like I'm sitting on a powder keg.

REACHING PEAK

"The Canucks have shown their power against other clubs but they haven't had one of their big games against us. I know they are going to explode against us sooner or later and I just hope we are ready when they do.

"To make the waiting worse," added Mario, "is the fact that I think the Canucks are just reaching their peak. Since young Bryan Hextall has returned to the lineup (from an early-season injury) they have been a very good club."

Easing Mario's fretting somewhat was the attitude of the Leafs in Monday morning's workout.

RUGGED WORKOUT

Throughout the season the Victorians have played some of their finest games after tackling regular workout chores with unexpected energy and hostility.

Perhaps sharing Mario's concern over the threat posed by the Canucks, or perhaps because half of them had crawled out of bed on the wrong side, the Leafs made Monday's session one of the best.

They were eager to skate and acted as if everybody was an enemy. The results was blistering practice, punctuated with the thuds of bodychecks, and a coach that felt a bit better at having to meet the Canucks with three regulars still on the sidelines.

REGAINING STRENGTH

Winger Dick Lamoureux, nursing torn knee ligaments, and defenceman Sandy Hucul, recovering from a minor operation, are certain to be on the sidelines. Centre Milan Marcetta, regaining his skating strength after rupturing a vein in a leg, is a very doubtful starter. If Millie is skating Wednesday he will almost certainly be used sparingly.

Fussing over injuries and trying to figure the best way to combine his available players should be enough to keep any coach's mind occupied.

But Mario can't help wondering if that overdue Canuck explosion is going to take place Wednesday night.

Hull and Howe, Naturally, Top All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, this season's goal-scoring leader, and Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, the career pacesetter, were named Monday to The Associated Press' National Hockey League all-star team for the first half of the 1965-66 season.

Hull, 27-year-old left winger, paces the NHL with 36 goals, including the four he scored on Sunday against New York Rangers. Howe, 37-year-old right winger, has 16 goals this year for a career high of 611. Howe is in his 20th NHL season.

Others named to the first team were Norm Ullman of Detroit, defenceman Jacques Laperriere of Montreal Canadiens and netminder Glenn Hall and defenceman Pierre Pilote of the Black Hawks.

EACH PLACED TWO

The Red Wings and New York Rangers each placed two men on the second team. Goaltender Roger Crozier and defenceman Doug Barkley represented Detroit, while the Rangers chosen were defenceman Harry Howell and left wing Don Marshall.

Stan Mikita of the Hawks, a centre, and Bobby Rousseau of the Canadiens, a right winger, were the others selected for the second team.

Named to the third team were centre Bob Pulford, left winger Frank Mahovlich and defenceman Allan Stanley of Toronto Maple Leafs; right winger Bob Nevin of the Rangers; goaltender Gump Worsley of Montreal, and defenceman Matt Pavlich of Chicago.

The first half of the 70-game NHL season ended Saturday.

SIGHTS ON THIRD

Montreal Canadiens centre Jean Beliveau has set his sights on the third spot in the league's all-time scoring race and, barring serious injury, appears to be a shoo-in before the end of the current season.

Beliveau scored his 371st goal Sunday night and helped the Canadiens to a 3-1 victory over Boston Bruins.

That tied him for fourth place in career scoring with former Montreal ace Bernie Geoffrion. He needs just eight more goals to catch the third man in the career scoring race, Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings.

After that, Beliveau would need to have scored well over 500 goals to approach the all-time No. 2 scorer, Maurice Richard of Montreal.

Beliveau, 34, has averaged more than 28 goals a year in his 12 full NHL campaigns. He has scored 48 goals the last two years, reaching the 20-goal mark for the ninth time last season.

He now has 13 for the current campaign with half the season left to play.

Hull, of course, is the leader with 59 points, 11 more than Detroit's Ullman. Another Chicagoan, Stan Mikita, is third with 44, two more than Montreal's Bob Rousseau.

The leaders:

Surgery Out For Namath

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Namath's right knee is not quite right but the New York Jets' $400,000 rookie quarterback was assured Monday he would not have to undergo further surgery.

Namath was examined by Dr. James Nicholas, the surgeon who operated on the knee last year, after complaining his knee was giving him trouble.

"The doctor said I had an inflammation and strain on the medial ligament and gave me some pills to take," Namath said. "He told me that other than the inflammation, the knee is stronger than it ever was."

LEWISTON, Me. (AP)—Boxing promoter Samuel Michael says he has filed two suits totalling $30,000 in connection with the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston heavyweight championship bout held in Lewiston last May 25.

Michael said he filed the suits in Suffolk County superior court at Boston against Intercontinental Promotions of Philadelphia Sportvision Inc., Boston promoter Sam Silverman and the Boston Garden.

Michael, the local promoter for the Clay-Liston fight, said he is owed $25,000 on the promotion itself, plus interest and other expenses, bringing the total to $30,000.

BABE RUTH OFFICIALS WANT ANOTHER LOOK

Possible site of Babe Ruth baseball's World Series for Canada's centennial year, Victoria is getting more than the official once-over.

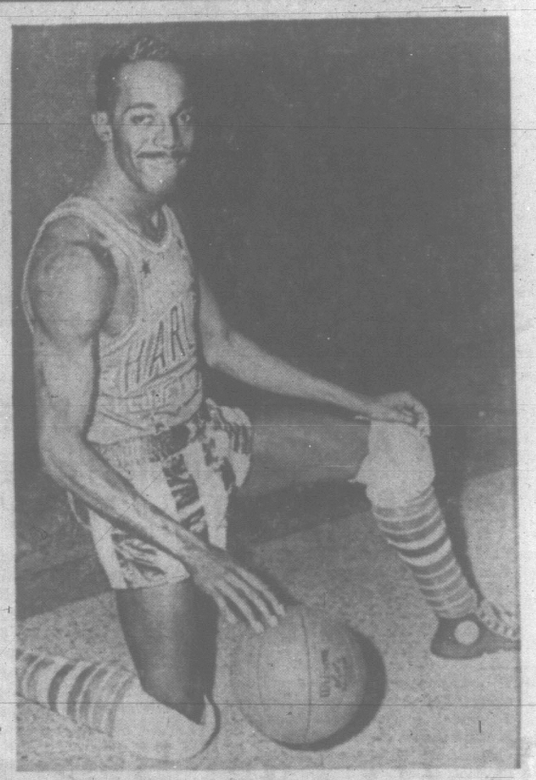
Executives from the Babe Ruth League headquarters in Trenton, N.J., are returning to the city Thursday to further evaluate Victoria as a series host.

Babe Ruth League officials were in Victoria in September for a preliminary on-the-site inspection.

City service clubs, spurred by the Optimist Club's Wilf Sadler, have been promoting Victoria as host city for the '67 finals.

Fairbanks, Alaska, is also under consideration for next year's series.

Douglas, Arizona, will host the 1966 Babe Ruth World Series.



SPECTACULAR DRIBBLING skill of Murphy Summons (above) is expected to be one of highlights when famed Harlem Globetrotters make annual basketball appearance at Memorial Arena Wednesday, Jan. 26. Murphy and his touring Trotter playmates will toss their ballhandling skill, shooting accuracy and comic capers at New York Nationals. Action will also include half-time vaudeville show.

LEADS SCORING RACE

Dick Gamble Scorns 'Year of Youngster'

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Gamble, striving for his first American Hockey League scoring title at age 37, isn't impressed by the AHL's Year of the Youngster.

Gamble, in his 10th AHL season, has opened a six-point lead in the scoring race according to league statistics released today. Gamble has 25 goals and 27 assists for 52 points, with teammate Gerry Ehman second at 21-25—46. Both play for Rochester Americans.

Ehman at 33, gives Gamble company in the senior citizens division of the AHL. Behind them are three of the league's classier youngsters, Gordon Labossiere of Quebec Aces, Murray Hall of Pittsburgh Hornets and Jim Pappin of Rochester.

Labossiere, 25, has 45 points after missing four games last week because of an injured knee. Hall, 25, has 44 points and Pappin, 26, has 43, including 20 goals in only 29 games.

Rookies George Gardner of Pittsburgh and Gary Smith of Rochester are staging a hectic battle for top goalie honors. Gardner, who leads the league with six shutouts, has a 2.57 goals against average to Smith's 2.58.

Canadian Tracks Seek Tax Relief

TORONTO (CP) — The National Association of Canadian Race Tracks is preparing a brief to the federal government seeking tax relief for all horse owners.

John Mooney, managing director of the Jockey Club, told the Ontario Harness Horsemen's Association: "I think we have a fairly decent prospect of getting this relief within the year."

Mooney made his remarks after Dr. Glen Brown of Brampton, Ont., a vice-president of the horsemen's association, said it is time the government "realized horse racing is big business and can no longer be classed as a hobby."

GEORGE KERNEK EXPECTED . . . . . TO TAKE OVER FIRST BASE

Card Rookie in 'Heck of a Spot'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — George Kernek himself put it best. "Man," he said, "I'm in a heck of a spot."

Kernek, just turned 26, is in one of the toughest spots in the major leagues as St. Louis Cardinals prepare for spring training.

He is being counted upon to take over first base, vacated when the Cardinals traded veteran Bill White to Philadelphia Phillies.

Kernek has an Oklahoma drawl a friendly manner and fresh coat of confidence.

But a few questions bring out the fact that he is about as green a rookie as the Cardinals have placed big money on in some time:

"How many major league games have you started, George?"

"Eight, if you count one that was rained out."

"When you led the league in R.B.I. at Jacksonville last year, where were you playing?"

"In the outfield."

"The outfield? How did you get to first base?"

"I used to play first base, and we had too many first basemen. I cover the bag pretty well."

The truth is that the rangy youngster covers first base territory like a spider. It was his hitting that Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst was worried about, and George says he made great strides in the Redbirds' winter instructional camp in Florida.

Kernek was on a basketball scholarship at Oklahoma University when the Cardinals signed him in his junior year. He played for Tulsa, then bounced down to Winnipeg Goldeyes of the Northern League, then to Billings, Mont., where he learned to hit and came up with a .330 average.

Then he went back to Tulsa, to Jacksonville, to Tulsa, back to Jacksonville, where he hit .295 last season, and finally up to the Cardinals at the end of the year.

Two American Cities Bid for 1972 Games

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—The International Olympic Committee announced today it has received the application of two American cities to stage the 1972 Olympic games.

The IOC said it received a cable from Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh applying for the summer games, while American IOC member Douglas F. Roby personally submitted the application of Salt Lake City for the winter games.

On the other hand, the committee received a cable from the national olympic body of the Netherlands withdrawing the provisional application of Amsterdam for the 1972 summer games. The cable said the withdrawal was caused by the Dutch government's refusal to provide the necessary funds.

No word has been received so far from Vienna, which also applied for the summer games provisionally but has so far failed to obtain the financial backing from the Austrian government, or from Montreal another summer games contender.

So far, only Madrid and Munich have definitely applied for the summer games, and Calgary, Sapporo, Japan, and Lahti, Finland, for the winter games.

The deadline for applications, previously set for the end of 1965 but then extended, officially runs out Thursday.

30-miles-an-hour over six-inch grass . . .

13 INCHES LONG

'Snowless Skis' Born

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP)—Dr. David Storey, 37, and Clarke Wallace, 30, have been skiing without snow this winter, testing special skis on a private slope. If the skis prove practical, a Canadian company is considering manufacture of the "snowless skis."

Made in West Germany, each ski is 13 inches long and the surface is a nylon tread one inch wide with studs to grip the bare ground. The skier slips his foot into straps which hold the ski to the boot.

"They're just about the size of roller skates," said Dr. Storey. "The smoother the surface — grass or frozen ground—the better."

He has raced through grass up to six inches high and has reached speeds of 30 miles an hour on the skis. "The rolling action of the tread will handle the ruts but won't make the deep cuts. All rocks have to be cleared from the run."

Wallace feels that the skis can be used to get into shape before there is enough snow for conventional skiing.

World Class Skiers Must Use 'Hara-Kiri'

By ERIC WAHA

BAD GASTEIN, Austria (AP)—To be successful in an international slalom nowadays, skiers must be ready to commit hara-kiri.

That is the colorful description Austrian experts use for a new slalom style practised by French, Canadian and American ski aces.

The Austrians, Germans, Swiss and Italians have so far failed to adopt it.

"Hara-kiri slalom" artists include Jean-Claude Killy and the famed Goitschel sisters, Marielle and Christine of France.

The Goitschel sisters and Canada's Nancy Green, of Rossland, B.C., are the favorites for the Silver Jug races opening here Wednesday.

TAKE RISKS

The new style means to take every risk in the wild ride down a slalom course. If you stand up, you have a good chance to win.

But the new style requires more than dare-devil courage.

It is a marked change from the wedeln (wagging the tail) technique of the Austrians, which has assured them of a domineering position in alpine skiing for many years. This position has been challenged by the French, Americans, Canadians and Swiss.

A wedler uses a smooth heel-push to make a turn. A "hara-kiri" skier tries to make the turn by shifting his weight from one ski to the other without reducing speed.

The heel - push curbs speed and gives the skier a little breathing spell for the turn.

USES 'UPWEIGHTING'

Technically, the new style requires what the experts call upweighting."

A top Austrian expert, Franz Hoppichler, said:

"If the new generation of Austrian skiers want to win again, they must copy the hara - kiri slalom."

"They must learn to go all out. The Austrian youngsters have lost this ability. They want to 'play it safe.' That is why they have failed to break into the world elite."

Austrian head coach Sepp Sulzberger had made films of the top French slalom skier, 22-year-old Killy, to find out what makes him run. But whatever Sulzberger learned from the film has not yet been applied by the skiers.

The sequence of pictures showed Killy and one of the best Austrians, Gerhard Nenning, using a clearly different style. Killy was the winner of that race.

'Time Joe With Winner' So Cassius Employs Him

NEW YORK — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, unbeaten in his 22 pro fights, has hired Joe Louis to work with him "because it's time Joe was with a winner."

The former heavyweight king will have plenty of chances to be with a winner, said Clay in announcing that he hopes to have four fights this year. He said No. 1 may be announced tonight.

"I want the first one within 10 weeks to three months," said Clay, who celebrated his 24th birthday today.

Clay named Doug Jones of New York, Ernie Terrell of Chicago, George Chuvalo of Toronto and Brian London of England as the four possible opponents for this year, adding that Jones "is the most likely at this time."

The champion announced the hiring of Louis "for training and advising" and his fight plans in accepting the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque as Fighter of the Year. Louis sat next to him at the Boxing Writers Association's annual dinner Sunday night.

'THINKS HE'S CHAMP'

Clay said Jones, who dropped a controversial 10-round decision to Cassius in 1963, had moved ahead of Terrell on his list because "Terrell thinks he's the champion and wants all the money.

The champ said the site for his next fight would be picked from among New York, Chicago and Miami Beach.

"Man, how I want that fight," said Jones, winner of his last four fights by knockouts. "I beat him two years ago and he knows it. I'm confident I can whip him good if I get the chance. Then maybe he'll get a chance to see me get the Fighter of the Year trophy."

In announcing the addition of Louis to his camp, Clay said: "When I was a kid I never believed I'd ever meet Joe Louis. I hoped to be just half as good as he was. Now he's gonna be with me and show me that old-time stuff and help me get in shape. I'm gonna get him with a winner for a change."

Louis worked with a string of losers. His last one was Sonny Liston for the return fight with Clay. Liston went out in the first round.

CHAMP FAILS TO SHOW FOR BATTLE IN COURT

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay failed to appear in traffic court Monday to face a disorderly conduct charge. The case was postponed until Feb. 21.

Clay was arrested Dec. 14 while riding with two other men in an auto that police stopped because it had no licence plates or city sticker.

Police said Clay challenged them to hit him "so he could sue the city."

Mantle is Ready To Try First Base

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—Mickey Mantle could wind up his baseball career playing first base for New York Yankees, depending upon what Mayo Clinic doctors learn is wrong with his ailing right shoulder.

Mantle arrived Monday for three days of examination and possible treatment of his shoulder and legs, which hampered his outfield play in 1965.

The shoulder is Mantle's biggest worry. He has played on painful legs much of his 15-year American League career.

"It doesn't pain me but I can hardly lift it. I can't put anything on a throw."

The Mayo examination apparently will determine whether surgery can alleviate the shoulder trouble, or if it is a symptom of age. Mantle was 34 last Oct. 20.

Because of the shoulder, the Yankees may try to convert the great outfielder into a first baseman.

"I've never tried first base," he said, "but if I can't throw and they want me to try it, I'll give it a try."

Such a move would send Joe Pepitone to the outfield, a position he has played before.

MARITIME INTERCOLLEGIATE

Dalhousie 3, Acadia 4.

HOUSTON (AP) — Commissioner Joe Foss Monday withheld approval of the disputed trade involving Ernie Ladd and Earl Faison of San Diego Chargers while he investigates tampering charges — and at the same time has pointedly squashed rumors of his removal as head of the American Football League.

Foss, in holding up the transaction that sent the two mammoth defensive linemen to Houston Oilers in a five-player trade, climaxed a day in which he reaffirmed his position verbally and then backed it by employing his powers as commissioner.

Asked Monday about the rumors that the owners plan to buy up his contract, Foss said:

"I am still on duty and will be tomorrow and the next day and the next day."

Some eight hours later, at the conclusion of two lengthy meetings, Foss announced his decision to hold up the deal that sent Ladd and Faison to Houston for linebacker Johnny Baker, defensive end Gary Cutsinger and defensive back Pete Jaquess.

The five - player trade, announced Saturday by the Oilers, was immediately greeted by a verbal blast from Sid Gillman, the San Diego coach and general manager. Gillman criticized Houston owner Bud Adams for issuing inflammatory monetary statements and thus "weakening the Chargers' bargaining position."

Monte Carlo Champ Leads '66 Running

MONTE CARLO (Reuters) —Timo Makinen of Finland, 1965 winner of the Monte Carlo rally, was the first to finish the gruelling 862-mile second section of the 1966 contest today, after a 24-hour Alpine drive which knocked out all but about 90 of the original 192 entrants.

Makinen arrived at the finish line precisely on time and said he had a trouble-free run through the Alps to Chambery and back.

But 70 or more of the 159 who attempted the second stage of the rally dropped out because of mechanical failures, bad road conditions or the tough schedule on the 24-hour run which featured six hidden time checks.

Saanich Anglers Card Their Annual Meeting

The most successful members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will receive their rewards Thursday night.

That's the date of the association's annual general meeting, scheduled to start at 8 p.m. in Newstead Hall, Fort St.

During the session, trophies will be presented to winners of VSIAA competitions last year. Members will also hear officers' reports, elect officers for the coming year and discuss club plans for the new fishing season. Club officials urge all members to attend the meeting.

Anglers and their friends will be somewhat less serious when they convene again Saturday night. This time they'll be enjoying the annual VSIAA dinner and dance at the Ingraham Hotel. Tickets are available from directors, sporting goods stores and Saanich Inlet boathouses.

McLeod Blasts Pestering NHL

CALGARY (CP) — Jack McLeod, coach of Canada's national hockey team, has criticized NHL interference with the national team and says the situation is becoming "utterly ridiculous."

McLeod said in an interview that 16 of the national team's players are attending the University of Manitoba, but "I seriously don't think some of these (NHL) scouts want these boys to get an education."

He said Fran Huck of the Nationals earlier turned down "a respectable offer" to join an NHL team but NHL scouts still come to Winnipeg to try to get Huck to change his mind.

McLeod said the scouts did not deal either with him or with Rev. David Bauer, special adviser to the team, but went straight to Huck.

McLeod said the National team "bends over backwards" to cooperate with the NHL, but the latter does not return the cooperation.

He said the only way Canada can build a better team for world hockey championships is to have better competition.

He said if Canadians ever hope to beat the Russians they will have to play American Hockey League teams, even on a part-time basis. He suggested an interlocking schedule with the AHL.

The world hockey championships are being held in Yugoslavia in March.

Vikettes Prep For Tournament

University of Victoria Vikettes readied themselves for the weekend's Vancouver Thunderette basketball tournament with a 48-20 victory over First United junior women Monday at Gordon Head.

Other competing squads are Mt. Pleasant, Molsons, University of Alberta, Vancouver Orphans and junior teams from Nanaimo and UBC.

BAD MANNERS PROVE COSTLY TO QUARTET

DETROIT (CP) — Jack Adams, president of the Central Professional Hockey League levied fines Monday totalling $250 on playing-coach Harry Sinden of Oklahoma City Blazers and three members of the team.

Sinden was assessed $100 and players Jean Paul Parise, Bill Goldworthy and Murray Davison were each fined $50 for the use of abusive language and conduct detrimental to hockey in a game Saturday at Tulsa. Oklahoma City defeated Tulsa Oilers 1-0 in the game.

Why Are You Ignored When You Talk?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in social and business advancement and works like magic to give you poise, self confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances there are ways to make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Conversation," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your request to: Conversation, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 4991, Chicago, Ill., 60614. A postcard will do.

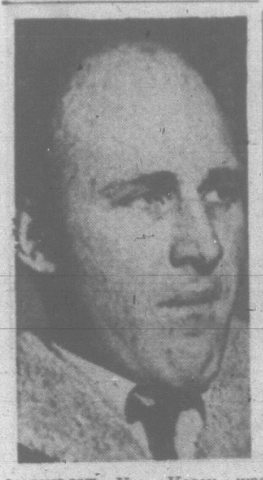
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—With the scenery full of Hermits, Beatles, Rolling Stones and the like, it isn't easy for a new musical group to find a distinctive name.

A North Central High School six-piece band, with a girl vocalist, did it, though.

They call it: Six and the Single Girl.

Man Runs Amok After LSD Dose



NOVELIST Ken Kesey was sentenced in Redwood City, Calif. Monday to six months in jail for possession of narcotics. Kesey and 13 guests were arrested in April in a raid on his hilltop home.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Ross McLean, medical director of a private hospital, warned today that use of the mind-expanding drug LSD could lead to untold harm if taken without proper supervision.

Dr. McLean, whose hospital uses LSD in the treatment of alcoholics, said the drug is still experimental and could be dangerous for a person taking it alone.

He was commenting on the case of a 36-year-old man who, apparently under the influence of the drug, was taken to hospital after running amok Monday. His wife told police that after wrecking their apartment the man fled to the street and ran up and down shouting that he was God.

His wife said her husband is not a drug user but had been given some LSD by a friend.

Dr. McLean said there is no doubt that the drug is dangerous if taken without supervision and he had known of people committing suicide after experimenting with it. It was difficult to prove, however, just what part the drug played in the suicides.

JFK MEMORIAL SIDELINED BY IRELAND

DUBLIN (AP)—The Irish government has shelved indefinitely its plans for a $7,500,000 concert hall as Ireland's memorial to U.S. President Kennedy, a government spokesman said Monday.

Political sources said the postponement decision was taken by Prime Minister Sean Lemass in the face of some opposition from members of his cabinet.

Ireland is in the middle of a credit squeeze. The government has postponed or abandoned several smaller capital projects and Lemass apparently thinks the expense of the memorial currently cannot be justified.

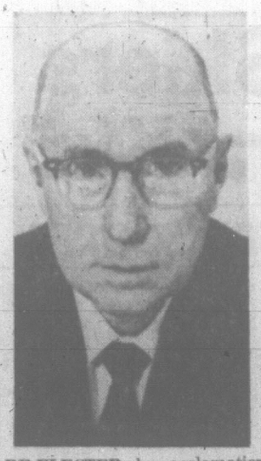
Campus Paper 'Released' By Printer

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—The Acadian University student newspaper Athenaeum has been released by the printer and copies distribtued to campus subscribers.

A spokesman for the weekly publication said Saturday distribution of the issue had been held up only about an hour until the printer, Kentville Publishing Company, was satisfied of legal position concerning one photo in the issue.

The issue contains photos, an editorial and a banner story about annual calendars reported impounded by Dr. E. S. Hanson, the university provost.

Dr. Hansen said the calendars were "in poor taste" and resembled tear-outs from girlie magazines.



RE-ELECTED by acclamation as chancellor of Simon Fraser University is Dr. Gordon Shrum, co-chairman of B.C. Hyrdo. His new term lasts for three years.

Two Cruises Planned On Oriole

The same sailing times will be observed for the second cruise leaving Jan. 29 and returning Jan. 30 when the Oriole will sail alone carrying five officers and 14 cadets from the Canadian Services College at Royal Roads.

En route the naval personnel will get training in seamanship, chartwork and navigation. Lieut.-Cmdr. J. Butterfield, commanding officer of HMCS Oriole, will be in charge of both trips.

Halifax RCN Ships Arrive in Caribbean

By DAL WARRINGTON

ABOARD HMCS BONAVENTURE (CP)—A six-ship Canadian Navy task group from Halifax reached a point 100 miles northeast of Puerto Rico Sunday to begin three days of gunnery and anti-submarine practice in warm tropical waters. Air temperature was 80 degrees, the sea 77.

The ships headed by the aircraft carrier Bonaventure left home Wednesday for a 74-day cruise that will take them to Argentina and Uruguay. Also in the group are four destroyers and the supply ship Provider.

Departure temperature in snow-covered Halifax was 11 degrees, the water 30.

Commodore John C O'Brien, commander of the group a senior Canadian officer afloat, flew ashore to San Juan, Puerto Rican capital, Sunday afternoon. Today he will pay a call on the United States navy commander in the Caribbean, Rear-Admiral Richard S. Craighill.

For the next three days Bonaventure, commanded by Capt. Harry Porter, will work its helicopters and two-engine tracker planes in anti-submarine exercises with the British sub Acheron, also based at Halifax.

The sub came south earlier.

Destroyers Kootenay and Restigouche headed for a surface to - air firing range north of Puerto Rico. Destroyers Skeena and Saguenay will work on bombardment training off Culebra, a small island east of Puerto Rico.

During the 1,600-mile trip the ships and planes worked out in Bermuda waters and again as they neared Puerto Rico.

GAGLARDI 'DRAFTED'

Pothole Minister Tells His Story

By SUSAN PELLAND
Times Uvic Correspondent

Some 100 University of Victoria students were entertained for more than an hour Monday while Highways Minister Phil Gaglardi covered ground from Quebec provincialism to alcohol on the roads.

Gaglardi drew guffaws and cheers from the students gathered in the Elliott Building on the Gordon Head campus.

"I think I make the poorest politician in the world," he announced.

"Idespise the politician and I never had anything to do with politics until two months before they drafted me into politics. Now I'm minister of highways looking after your potholes," he said.

Launching off on provincial-federal relations, he said: "I don't think at the moment the federal government is doing too good a job. They're falling apart at the seams over the Quebec scene.

"Those Frenchmen are just as good as everyone else — not any worse and certainly not any better," he said.

Gaglardi told students he had been left "holding the bridge in mid-stream," referring to the Oak Street bridge in Vancouver.

He said because of lack of political know-how, he was not receiving either federal or provincial money to pay for the bridge.

NAIVE FELLOW

"You may think I'm a naive little fellow and like bragging, but I really don't," he added.

Gaglardi raised laughter with comments on the press and personal anecdotes.

"I think those guys in the press just make them (statements) up and write them up," he said. Gaglardi claimed that the press had misquoted him many times and had attributed statements to him that he hadn't made.

Asked "Is it true that Premier Bennett turned down your idea for the Burrard Inlet bridge and tunnel?" Gaglardi replied, "That's all it is — just an idea."

He said: "The premier has never turned down any recommendations of mine. The plan was given to me and I gave it to the press."

NATIONAL FEELING

Gaglardi told students that B.C. is a Canada-first and-B.C.-second government when asked what makes Quebec's attitude to federal politics different from B.C.'s.

"We are men of national feeling and always have been," he said. Then he added: "Anyone who things he can come out here and steal our natural resources has me to reckon with."

He said, "They're descriminating against B.C. . . . and you have never seen such a generous government's as B.C.'s."

If Quebec people were treated as equal, he said, they would respond that way.

Questioned about the Duncan-Lake Cowichan highway Gaglardi said that he had "travelled every inch of it" and nothing was wrong with it "that a little curve-straightening wouldn't fix."

"Bless my soul," he said, "I look after more highways in this province than any other man in the free world. They don't call me Flying Phil for nothing."

BLAMES ALCOHOL

Gaglardi said B.C. was spending hundreds of millions on highways that account for only 2 per cent of traffic fatalities. He told students that alcohol is the largest single killer on the roads.

"I am in favor of putting in a breathalizer test as compulsory," he said.

"And the federal government should pass legislation saying that a penalty will be enforced. It would eliminate 50 per cent of accidents," he told students.

"I'm dangerous enough sober," he said. "Do you think I'd take a drink and turn myself loose on the highways?"

Referring to a non-profit, government-controlled insurance programn Gaglardi said: "The government should keep its hands off free enterprise.

"I'm against any government-controlled enterprise," he said. "This is a democracy. I hate socialism. I hate anybody breathing down my neck."

KOROLEV
. . . Red Square funeral

Space Genius 'Honored In Death'

MOSCOW (AP)—The genius whose designs put Soviet cosmonauts in space first but whose identity was hidden until death by Kremlin secrecy was honored today by Soviet leaders with a big funeral in Red Square.

The ceremony contained a strong hint that the late Sergei Powlovich Korolev may have ben the anonymous "chief designer" who headed the Soviet space program and gave the instructions from the ground control centre during space flights.

The announcement Saturday of Korolev's death revealed that he had designed the space ships that carried Yuri Gagarin, the first man to orbit the earth, and Alexei Leonov, the first man to walk in space.

Korolev died Friday at the age of 59. He had been operated on for removal of a cancer but death was officially attributed to heart failure.

ROBARTS CHARGES

Communication Poor In Medicare Project

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier John Robarts of Ontario said Monday techniques of federal-provincial communication have not kept pace with the growth of Canada.

An example was federal proposals for medicare, which he said went to the provinces with insufficient prior consultation.

Speaking to the Canadian Club of Montreal, he said the Canadian constitution gives the provinces broad responsibility for social services, but limited sources of tax revenue to carry them out.

"The federal government is proposing that the provinces each establish a medicare program to which it will contribute 50 per cent of the actual national per capita cost.

"On the pasis of present data this will mean a contribution of $14 per person and will represent a contribution of some $98,000,000 to the province of Ontario from the federal government.

"However, in order to take advantage of this opportunity, we shall be automatically committed to an expenditure that will exceed that amount by $182,000,000 per annum if we are to meet the requirements stipulated by the federal government."

WANT COMPULSION

These requirements are that the plan be compulsory for all, be government-operated, offer physicians' and specialists' services and be portable between provinces.

He compared the federal government's declared $328,000,000 surplus on a national accounts basis in 1964 with the combined deficit of $348,000,000 of the provinces and municipalities for the same period.

This situation, he said, makes it "relatively easy for the federal government to make such a contribution but would "incur certain hardships" on the provinces.

It was time for a new federal-provincial tax arrangement, where "we collect and we spend."

Asked whether Ontario has yet made a decision on the federal medicare proposals, Mr. Robarts said: "Our decision is not yet made but the costs of administrating such a scheme are bound to be higher for Ontario than other provinces.

"If the plan is to be carried through in its present form, Ontario's share of assistance must be re-assessed."

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1966—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

One day last week, I made the mistake of saying several nice things about my car as it trotted me obediently on various errands.

Next morning, with a non-stop squall of its horn and a cloud of smoke from under its instrument panel, the ungrateful little brute proceeded to burn up a portion of its wiring.

As a result, I have been forced to rediscover one of life's pleasures which had slipped away from me by imperceptible degrees over the years.

This is walking, a form of locomotion that most of us employ only when, as is the case with me, they find themselves robbed of their wheels.

The first day afoot was a trifle rough, partly because it was raining and my shoes leaked. I didn't synchronize very well, either—just kind of flapped along with head down and arms swinging out of time.

Next morning, though, matters went much better. The rain had stopped and I'd got over being cross with the car for its betrayal. What with all the fresh air, birds uttering intimations of spring, and the sight of traffic slaves lane-hopping in typical Victoria fashion, I decided that foot-slogging had much to commend it.

All this will no doubt change when my car is restored. Meanwhile, I can tramp a country mile again without puffing, am eating as if food were about to be taxed at liquor rates, and sleep so hard that even the world's most fiendish alarm clock can't wake me.

There are times when television lives up to its potential, and viewers were blessed with one of these last Sunday evening.

The hour-long show, a CBS news special titled "The Search for Ulysses," offered those lucky enough to catch it, such a cruise as they will not soon forget.

Island by island, with superb photography, and narration which was a nice blending of fact enriched by imaginative reconstruction, viewers were taken by sailing vessel along the route presumably followed by the Greek hero Ulysses in his leisurely return from the war with Troy.

I used to think that Homer's wily seafarer could have made it back to Ithaca and wife Penelope's welcoming arms in a great deal less time than the 10 years his trip is supposed to have taken. However, after this armchair tour of the waters he reputedly braved, I'm surprised he got there at all!

If this film is repeated sometime, I hope English teachers will alert their classes: at the very least, it should make Tennyson's lovely but lengthy "The Lotus Eaters" go down more easily.

Among the items which I must return to its rightful owner one of these days is a Victoria newspaper of 1901, loaned by a chum with an eye for a bargain.

In that now-distant era, you could outfit a boy with a velvet-collared chinchilla topcoat for $2.25, and a navy serge suit for $2.90.

Victoria Gas Co. Ltd. was installing its lamps at no cost other than a nickel-a-month charge for mantle renewal.

"Lights that light," it advertised.

One apparent reason for this open-handed policy on the part of the gaslight people is contained in a much larger ad inserted by B.C. Electric.

"Light that is right," it proclaims. "When you have the electric light, you have the very best."

Basket on arm, you could shop for sugar at 18 pounds for a dollar, and tuck in a bottle of port, if so inclined, for an extra quarter.

Deafness was advertised as curable, also brain fag, bodily weakness and general debility, if one chose the right nostrum.

There's a lot to be said for the world that was. But the hours were long, the pay was, after all, geared to the prices, and the wonder-remedies somehow fell short of the miracles they promised.

I wouldn't want to go back, even though spuds sold at 90c a sack, and the one-way fare to Nanaimo by the Victoria and Sidney Railway and the steamer Iroquois was a buck and a half.

RESCUE ACTIVITY at Oak Bay Marina this morning was determined, but limited. Setting out to look for three youths missing in a small boat since Saturday midnight are Keith Hynds, left, and charter boat operator George Moore. Earlier, Herbert Hynds chartered a plane to look for his son and companions, and J. W. Squire, whose son also is among the missing, left in his own boat. Air-sea rescue is on the job, but there was some suggestion today that an auxiliary rescue fleet of small boats should be organized locally, but drawn from experienced boatmen only.

Officials Prepare United Front For Civic Unions

For the first time in civic history union employees of Vancouver Island municipalities will face a united front when contract negotiations start this month.

In the past each municipality has negotiated its own contract with its own employees.

This year, following a municipal summit meeting at Parksville on Nov. 26 last year, municipal leaders agreed that they should face union demands with closed ranks.

Preliminary studies of union demands started this week in Victoria but no formal discussions on contracts will start until all surrounding municipalities have received union demands.

Victoria city manager Dennis Young said this morning he expects formal discussions to start soon.

BROAD BASE

"We are waiting for other municipalities to receive their demands so that we can negotiate on a broader base than in the past," he said. "There has been a tendency to play one municipality against the other and we hope to overcome this."

Indications are that union demands this year will be heavy on fringe benefits and job protection clauses. It is also expected that though wage demands will be included they will play a relatively minor role in negotiations.

Municipalities deal with several unions during negotiations.

The major union is the Canadian Union of Public Employees covering inside and outside workers in most areas. Separate contracts are required for police, fire department workers, electricians, carpenters and registered nurses.

SEPARATE UNIT

At the time of the one-day Parksville conference, Mr. Young said the time had arrived when Vancouver Island should be treated as a separate economic unit.

Victoria police have already made their preliminary demands known. The major demand is for a 9 per cent wage increase plus various fringe benefits.

TOPICS of the DAY

City fire department was called when puffs of smoke were seen coming from an oil barge moored at Victoria's industrial reserve at noon today

The barge was moored alongside the B-A Oil plant at 51 Songhees Rd.

A company spokesman said the smoke was caused by a battery shorting out on board the barge and firemen were called as a precautionary measure.

UFAW OFFICIAL:

Aggressive Fish Export Major Need

A bigger domestic population and more aggressive exports of fish would enable Canada to move into mother ship fleets similar to the Soviet Union's, a Vancouver union official said today.

Jack Nicol, business agent for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said Canada must use foresight to keep its place as a major fishing nation.

More kinds of fish must be caught to expand the salmon-halibut-herring field.

The Russians, with a population of 200 million, were able to keep fishing fleets roving the seas for six or seven months with mother ships taking the catches and freezer ships taking it home.

"Most countries of the world have populations that are short on animal protein, so the potential is there," he said.

"I am sure we could overcome currency problems."

Mr. Nichol said there is an abundance of dogfish, which lives off other fish, which could be caught in greater numbers.

In Europe, he said, dogfish have been used in fish and chips for years.

Tuna now are sold directly to the United States. The industry should be expanded and the fish processed first in B.C., benefitting shore workers here.

Mr. Nichol is in Victoria to address a public meeting tonight at 8 in the Union Centre.

$250,000 PROJECT

35 Suites Planned For Senior Citizens

A $250,000 low-cost housing project for senior citizens, is planned on a site at the Saanich-city boundary.

The project would provide 35 one-bedroom apartments for the elderly. Rents would be $40 a month for single persons, slightly more for married couples.

An application to rezone two lots on the northwest corner of Tolmie and Linwood has been made to Saanich by Wade, Stockill and Armour (architects) on behalf of the Fairhaven Foundation.

The foundation is a non-profit society sponsored by the Plymouth Brethren, a religious group.

A director of the Fairhaven Foundation, William Hamilton, said the project is the first by the group in this area. Accommodation will not necessarily be restricted to members of the Plymouth Brethren.

He said accommodation would be restricted to those with a monthly income of less than $145 and those who are able to look after themselves.

The project was undertaken "because we became aware of the need for low-cost housing for the elderly," he said.

No Trace of Trio Missing in Boat

Air-Sea Search For Young Hunters

Air-Sea Rescue officials said at 1 p.m. the RCMP motor launch Victoria and two 16-foot boats have entered the search. No new developments were reported.

Air-sea rescue planes and ships are engaged in a desperate search today for three Victoria youths.

Missing since they went on a duck-hunting expedition Saturday night are Dennis Powell, 18, of 1240 Newport; Ronald Hynds, 18, 2428 Dalhousie, and Wade Squire, 17, of 2741 Dewdney.

The boys left Oak Bay Marina Saturday midnight in a 12-foot, turquoise clinker-built open boat. It was powered by a five-horsepower outboard engine.

NO FOOD

They took no food except for six oranges. They told their parents they intended to sleep in a shack on Chatham Island until dawn when they proposed to shoot brant. The island is within sight of the marina.

They were to have returned Sunday but there has been no trace of them since.

RCAF and coast guard searchers were called into action Monday. Air-Sea Rescue co-ordination centre at Sea Island said a helicopter was loaned to the search by the Department of Transport Monday.

Coast Guard ships Ready and Racer were used in the search this morning and a Dakota aircraft from RCAF station at Comox was also deployed.

ENGINE TROUBLE

The DOT helicopter developed engine trouble and although crews worked on it all night it was not yet in the air at noon.

The father of one of the youths, Jack W. Squire, was searching for the trio in his own boat.

The uncle of another, Keith Hynds, 131 Grange, went out this morning from Oak Bay Marina in a chartered boat operated by George Moore. His brother, Ronald's father, Herbert Hynds, chartered a plane to fly over the Gulf Islands area.

Also at noon, search officials were considering whether to appeal to small boat owners in the area to join in the search. An official said small boats operated by local people who know the waters would be better able to search beach areas.

CALLED AWAY

An RCAF helicopter had been standing by at Comox also, but just before noon it was called to the Prince George area to take part in another search. An RCAF sergeant, Robert Taylor, based in that area, has been missing in dense bush since Sunday, it was reported.

A report from the U.S. Coast Guard said an aircraft has been sent out to search waters between San Juan Channel and the U.S. mainland.

There has been a general broadcast to all fishboats and other ships in the south Vancouver Island-Gulf Islands area to watch for the missing boat.

The general search area at noon extended from Chatham and Discovery Islands north east to the San Juans and southward, including portions of the Stralt of Juan de Fuca southeast of Vancouver Island and west to William Head.

Owner of the boat used by the youths, Ralph Wherry, 939 Esquimalt, said they were equipped with life jackets and emergency gear.

WATER CALM

Marina officials said the water has been generally calm since the boys departed. However there was some fog when they left and the boys' parents believe if the motor was disabled the trio may have drifted to some remote island cove.

"There was a flood tide at the time they left. If their motor conked out it would have carried them in a northerly direction," a marina official said.

Mrs. Hynds said she tried to talk the boys out of their expedition, "but they wouldn't hear of it."

The three youths are all good friends and are fond of hunting and boating.

"I can't understand how they would disappear without a trace like that," said Mrs. Powell.

Ronald Hynds and Wade Squires are Oak Bay High students. Dennis Powell is a taxidermist's apprentice.

Keith Hynds, the uncle of Ronald, said, "Their plight must be getting desperate by now."

BURGLARY CHARGE DROPPED

A charge of breaking and entering against murderer David Leonard Robinson was withdrawn in central court today.

Robinson is serving a life term in Oakalla Prison for the May 11 murder of 14-year-old Glendale, Calif., schoolgirl schoolgirl Susan Freschi.

Her body was found the next day by police near her View Royal home at 2637 Chilco Rd.

The charge alleged Robinson broke into a dwelling at 344A Old Island Highway May 3, 1965.

Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett said he wished to withdraw the charge following instructions from the attorney-general's department.

RESCUE SQUADRON PROPOSED

By PETER LOUDON

A volunteer small boat rescue squadron of qualified Victorians was proposed here today.

Department store manager Courtney Haddock, a past commodore of the Victoria Power Squadron, said he will propose the move to the power boat organization.

Mr. Haddock's decision followed reports today of a widespread search by Air-Sea Rescue for three Victoria youths who have been missing in a small open boat since midnight Saturday.

NO CO-ORDINATOR

Search officials at noon were considering asking small boat owners to volunteer to assist in the sea search by Coast Guard ships Ready and Racer.

A problem facing the Air-Sea Rescue service is that although small boats would be valuable in searching closer to shore than can the Coast Guard vessels, there is no qualified co-ordinator at present.

Any volunteer searchers must have a pattern laid down for them and communications must be maintained, Mr. Haddock said.

READY TO HELP

"We have the organization and if anything can be done in this line we would be willing to help," he added.

"We have a number of boats equipped with radio telephone."

He said fishboats, moored in quantity at Fishermen's Wharf at Victoria, would be invaluable in a search operation.

Mr. Haddock said some regulation is required to prevent youngsters from going out after dark in waters where weather conditions are so subject to rapid change.

He thought there would be no difficulty in finding a searchmaster who was thoroughly familiar with local waters and could maintain organization.

IDLE BOATS

The need for some such rescue service seemed apparent at Oak Bay waterfront. Scores of boats were lying idle at the marina floats.

Only two boats were in sight between here and Chatham Island where the missing boys had been headed.

Letter-Perfect? Not Victorians They Even Mail Their Wallets

Would you believe anyone could be so preoccupied he'd put a letter in his hip pocket and mail his wallet?

Or so stupid he'd throw a broken bottle into the letterbox?

Or so malicious he'd toss in a burning match?

Or so cruel he'd mail a small animal?

As comic-philosopher Jimmy Durante says, "we've got a million of 'em" . . . right here in Victoria.

Post Office administrator-supervisor Leon Hall tells the tale. In his position he deals with all incidents involving the 458 letterboxes on Victoria's 13 mail routes.

Some of the incidents related to him by the route collectors are funny and some, not so funny.

CHICKEN IN THE BOX

There was the collector who opened a Colwood parcel-box last summer and was confronted by two hysterically clucking chickens. One escaped but he caught the other and dutifully turned it in with the rest of his "mail collection." It was subsequently returned to the area and released.

And another had the startling experience of having a snake rear its head from a jumble of letters he was collecting.

"The point in fact," says Mr. Hall, "is that these creatures couldn't possibly get into the boxes by themselves."

GASHED HAND

More unhappy was the fate of the collecter who gashed his hand on a jagged beer bottle as he scooped the mail from a box.

The list of non-mail items gathered in mail boxes grows each day and includes the usual collection of wallets (some with fat bankrolls), car and house keys, chocolate wrappers, old newspapers, dead birds, empty food cans, a bottle half-full of whisky, and rocks, loads of rocks dropped into the boxes by mailers trying to find out if they missed the collection (sound of the rock hitting the bottom of the box tells them).

And there's a mailbox near Vic High wherein on any school day enough food is dropped to feed a man for a whole month with sandwiches, apples and the like . . .

In 1964, more than $53,000 in loose cash found its way across the country to a central "Unidentified Mail Office".

"Johnny is sent to the store with a dollar bill, a note to pick up a loaf of bread and a letter to mail. He stops at the mailbox first and mails the letter, and the note, and the money."

RETURNED TO OWNER

Those items which can be identified are returned to their owner. The others are forwarded to a national auction.

To redeem a mailed article is out of the question.

"Once inside the box, the item belongs to the person to which it is addressed," Mr. Hall says.

Although there are a lot of so-called practical jokes played in the area, there is little vandalism.

The Criminal Code makes it a federal offence to tamper with the mail. Damage to a mail box is also an indictable offence.

In addition to the many strange items that get stuffed into them, local mail boxes handle more than 80 per cent of the 7.2 million pieces of mail that move out of Victoria every month.

THE OLD AND THE NEW in mail boxes — metal vs. plastic — are displayed here by post office maintenance man Ken Dicks. Plastic models will start appearing soon in Greater Victoria area.

OTTAWA (CP)—"Has anybody here seen Allan MacEachen?" cried the harried Government House aide, pushing his way through the laughing, heaving, chattering crowd.

"Her Excellency would like to speak to him."

The scene was the ballroom of Rideau Hall. The occasion was the governor-general's traditional reception for members of Parliament and the diplomatic corps on the eve of an opening of Parliament.

More than 300 guests, the largest crowd to attend the event in the memory of seasoned Government House hands, filed through the long drawing room to be presented to Gen. Vanier and his wife, and then lined up six and eight deep for food and drink.

"Usually only 70 per cent of those invited show up. Tonight everybody came," said one waiter.

Inside the ballroom the temperature climbed. Allan MacEachen was discovered and brought to Mme. Vanier's corner.

CHATS WITH DIEFENBAKER

Mr. MacEachen, newly-appointed health minister, chatted with Her Excellency, Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and his wife and Lieutenant-Governor W. J. Macdonald of Prince Edward Island and his wife.

Gen. Vanier met Defence Minister Hellyer, manpower minister-to-be Jean Marchand, and a score of other parliamentarians and diplomats.

Returning to the Commons after an absence of several years, Trade Minister Robert Winters looked very much at home at Government House as he and his wife greeted old friends.

Prime Minister Pearson and his wife talked for a long time with former Governor-General Vincent Massey, who is in Ottawa for the opening of Parliament today.

The cabinet ministers intermingled with religious leaders and top-echelon diplomats ate Gaspe salmon, and filet mignon with mushrooms, topped off with petite fours and champagne.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, wearing a navy blue gown, was the only woman present at the Governor-General's state dinner earlier. She sat at the huge horseshoe-shaped table next to Forestry Minister Sauve and across from Revenue Minister Benson.

The dinner and reception ended shortly after midnight with a massive traffic jam at the front door of Government House.

Slowly each car was driven around to the front door of the stately vice-regal residence. Guests were still departing after 1 a.m.

Show Held for Embryo Designers

Damaske

NEW YORK — There are many embryo designers in the world and a good sewing machine, a simple course of instruction, and lots of enthusiasm can light the spark.

Many of America's top designers run pattern pictures in newspapers across the country (Victoria' Daily Times carries one regularly). For a few cents you may easily obtain a paper pattern which is a line-for-line copy of one of this season's top designers.

The Singer Company, our host at a recent luncheon let us know that spring is just around the corner by placing low bowls of delicate pastel daisies and snapdragons on each table.

Narrator for the show was Judith Crist, film critic of the New York Herald Tribune and drama reviewer for the "Today" show.

UNUSUAL BACKDROP

Designs by Oleg Cassini, Hannah Troy, Mr. Blackwell, Ben Reig and many others were shown on the runway with a backdrop staging of attractive sewing machines. These machines would add a great deal of chic to any smart home decor . . . desk-type sewing machines in French provincial styling . . . streamline featherweight portables in the modern manner . . . high fidelity stereo phonographs and portable television machines for the jet set . . . all an important part of this world-wide organization. Newest gimmick for the home sewer is an attachment which will sew fur . . . how about ripping up that worn fur coat and taking the good portions to trim a suit or coat?

One way to be an individual is to design your own . . . Singer will help you . . . . . who knows you might have that flair that brings fashion-hungry women running to your door!

LOOK OF YOUTH

One of the zingiest shows so far was presented by Junior Sophisticates. The present surge to a look of youngness is "right up the alley" of this wide-awake firm. The Charleston may be out, but the look of the 1920s and 30s is in. Pleats of all sizes are brought back to life on the short above-the-knee skirts. The trumpet flair skirt shows new grace and bounce. One persimmon two-piece dress with a long overblouse and skirt of black crepe . . . simple and sophisticated.

The 1966s dapper flapper will "do" the town in the long, slinky look shown in a dress in black with rhinestone straps coming to a V in front. Short short skirts often have feathers that hug the hemline. Brown turkey feathers bounce at the hemline of an ivory crepe coat that opens to reveal a matching slip of a dress.

If you think OP ART is confined to canvas, you just aren't with it these days. Fashion continues to take Op Art to its heart. Junior Sophisticates creates "Op Art" masterpieces in their little day dresses of navy and red jerseys.

Five years ago THE place to go in New York was the Peppermint Lounge . . . internationally known as the original citadel of the twist. The Peppermint Lounge darkened its doors in December but there is always another "IN" place. At this moment it is "Arthurs" owned by Sybil Burton and the dances of course are The Frug . . . Swim . . . Watusi and The Jerk. Even if I knew how to dance any of these uninhibited dances there was not an inch on the floor. It was fun to see and it brought back memories of the crush and din of the Peppermint Lounge. Roddy McDowell was at the next table and I was told he has an interest in Arthurs. Everything is worn, from copper-rivet-studded blue denims, to the most sophisticated of long clinging evening gowns. Noisy . . . smoky . . . crowded but fun.

This dapper little coat and skirt is one of the perky outfits viewed by Times' fashion editor Nona Damaske when she attended the Junior Sophisticates' spring showing in New York.

DEAR ABBY . . .

What's Not Dignified?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I raised three fine children. Two sons are now happily married, and both had beautiful weddings to remember. Our youngest, a girl 23, has fallen in love with an assistant professor who doesn't have enough money even to buy her an engagement ring. They have known each other only five months and now they want to get married, but with "no muss, no fuss" (her words). They want just his parents, us and the preacher at the wedding. Should we allow our daughter, a fourth generation Canadian, to get married without dignity—like a hillbilly?

UNHAPPY PARENTS

DEAR UNHAPPY: Every bride is entitled to the kind of wedding she wants. Just be glad she wants YOU there. It sounds "dignified" enough to me.

DEAR ABBY: We live in one of the best neighborhoods in town. There is not one house on our block that is worth less than $75,000. Some new neighbors moved in next door to us and I understand they bought the house for the asking price and paid CASH.

They seem very nice, but they are strange. The first thing we noticed was that they didn't have a television antenna, so my little boy asked their little boy about it, and he said they didn't have a television set! They have only one automobile (and a two-car garage!) and the father drives the car to work every day and the children and mother all use the bus. They rarely go anywhere, except to church. The wife doesn't have any fancy clothes or jewelry or furs. The children do not have any toys dealing with war or violence. Could they belong to some offbeat religious cult? What do you make of them?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Maybe they've just got cash, conservative standards, high moral principles and pacifistic ideals.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is deeply troubled by his knowledge of an affair that is going on between his brother's wife and his sister's husband. (This is not just "hearsay"—he has all the facts.) Neither his brother nor his sister is aware of it, but it is slowly breaking my husband both physically and mentally. There are young children on both sides. My husband doesn't know what, if anything, he should do about it. He has asked for my help, but I don't know what to tell him. Do you think the innocent brother and sister should be told? It is really their problem. Please suggest something.

NO NAME

DEAR NO: Your husband should talk to the guilty parties privately and ask them to end the affair in the name of decency and out of respect for their respective families. Under no circumstances should the innocent brother and sister be told. If your husband's efforts fail, he will at least know that he tried.

CARRIES BIBLE

Dainty Appliques Accent Bride's White Satin Gown

Exquisite embroidered appliques were a highlight to the fitted bodice of the white satin gown worn by Leigh Evelyn Blakey, Saturday evening, when she became the bride of Daryl Edward Thom.

The fitted bodice also featured a round neckline, elbow-length sleeves and a full court train which swept back from two bows at the shoulders. Her bouffant veil misted to her shoulders from a headpiece of a single self-fabric rose and she carried a white Bible, topped with an arrangement of pink roses. Only jewelry was a pearl pendant, gift of the groom.

Setting the pink and white theme for the wedding were the arrangements of pink chrysanthemums and carnations which decorated St. Columba Church for the evening service. Rev. John Vickers officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Blakey of Victoria and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Earl Thom, 1092 Madrona Drive. Paul Blakey gave his sister in marriage.

Street-length dresses of fuchsia-pink velveteen, made by matron of honor Mrs. L. V. Thomas, were worn by the bride's attendants. Bridesmaids were the Misses Vicki Prette and Carol Thom.

Accenting their outfits were self-fabric bow headpieces, edged with net, and colonial bouquets of pink carnations, centred with roses en tone. The bridesmaids' only jewelry was silver lockets, gifts of the bride and groom.

Ronald Thom was best man for his brother. Ushering guests to their pews were L. V. Thomas and V. E. Gallop, Campbell River.

Miniature figures of a bride and groom, which had decorated the wedding cake of the bride's parents, topped the three-tier cake which centred the head table at the reception following in Holyrood House. R. A. B. Prette proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple will make their home at Campbell River following a honeymoon trip to the mainland. The new Mrs. Thom chose a three-piece walking suit of muted jade green, interwoven with black thread, for travelling. Complementing the ensemble were black accessories and an orchid corsage.

FINAL BULLETINS

Coffee Break Saves Many in Blast

FRANKFURT (AP)—A mid-morning coffee break was credited by police with saving many lives from an explosion which ripped through the U.S.-owned Caltex oil refinery today, killing at least one man.

The huge complex on the outskirts of this West German city was rocked by the blast about 10 a.m., at a time the bulk of the employees from the main plant building were on their mid-morning break.

Ron Clarke Sets New 5,000 Mark

MELBOURNE (AP)—Ron Clarke broke the Australian 5,000-metre record today with a clocking of 13 minutes, 31.2 seconds. The Aussie's time was 8.4 seconds faster than the record set by Vladimir Kuts of Russia in the 1956 Olympics in Australia.

Four Missing on Plane Found Safe

QUEBEC (UPI)—Four men, missing in a light aircraft since Saturday afternoon, were found alive and well today about 115 miles west of Bagotville, Que.

The pilot of a searching plane who spotted the men and their downed Cessna reported they appeared "fit and well" despite three days without food in sub-zero conditions.

Injured Goyette Rejoins Rangers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Centre Phil Goyette rejoined the New York Rangers in Toronto today after a three-week absence.

Killer Granted Stay to Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP)—Roger Allan Fulton, 24, sentenced to hang Feb. 8 for a holdup-murder last May, was granted a stay of execution here today.

Mr. Justice T. W. Brown postponed the execution date to April 12 to allow time for Fulton to appeal to the B.C. Appeal Court. Fulton was convicted of murder in the shooting death of Jan Kelderman, loan manager of a branch of the Commonwealth Trust Co. in Vancouver.

YOUTHS ROB SUBWAY RIDERS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO (UPI) — Four gun toting youths entered a subway train today, herded 18 passengers into the rear car, robbed them and left the train at its next stop about three minutes later.

Police, called to the site just minutes after the holdup, picked up the four bandits hiding in a service station.

Few Surprises In Throne Speech

OTTAWA (CP) — An outline of a massive legislative program that contained no major surprises was presented today at the opening of the 27th Parliament.

The traditional speech from the throne, read to the glittering ceremonial opening by Governor-General Vanier, ranged through a wide assortment of items either left over from the last Parliament or outlined in advance by the government.

Among them were proposals for a Canada Development Corp., originally announced two years ago but still not acted on, the Company of Young Canadians, forecast in last year's throne speech, and legislation for a national medical insurance plan.

The development corporation would amass public savings to finance Canadian-owned industries and the Company of Young Canadians is to be patterned after the U.S. Peace Corps.

The government also renewed its pledge to introduce a program of university scholarships and make a "substantial increase" in federal aid to universities in the 1966-67 academic year.

One intriguing sentence in the 2,500-word throne speech served notice that the government intends to deal firmly with any provincial attempts to move into federal fields.

"While respecting fully the responsibilities of the provinces, the government is equally resolved to maintain the constitutional responsibilities of the federal authority," it said.

As expected, there was a forecast of a federal-provincial conference this year to work out new arrangements with the provinces for the division of tax fields. This would be followed by federal legislation respecting tax-splitting in 1967.

Vanier Making Last Appearance?

The 77-year-old governor-general, making what may be his final appearance in that role at a parliamentary opening, alternated his reading between English and French. This followed a practice begun in 1963.

Gen. Vanier's term of office, now on an extension, is to run out next fall.

A host of items for farmers and fishermen were listed in the speech, written by the cabinet as an introduction to the program intended for this year's parliamentary session.

These items include:

1. Creation of a fund for financing major rural development projects.
2. A program for the purchase, redevelopment and resale of uneconomic farms.
3. Improved crop insurance legislation to cover all farmers.
4. Cash advances for unthreshed grain in years when bad weather prevents full harvesting.
5. A government agency to market livestock feed grain in eastern Canada and British Columbia.
6. Increased capital for the Farm Credit Corp., a lending agency.
7. A development program for commercial fishing.
8. Income support for inshore fishermen in years of catch failure.

Some of them were discussed in the last Parliament and others emerged as government proposals during the 1965 election campaign.

There was no reference anywhere to old age pensions, a prime election issue of the opposition parties. The Conservative and New Democratic parties had pledged a pension increase to $100 monthly from the present $75 and there has been speculation the minority

ECM Compromise Studied by France

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — Belgium today proposed a compromise to help end the split between French President Charles de Gaulle and his five European Common Market partners. Gaullist delegates quickly telephoned Paris for advice.

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak suggested to the Common Market ministerial council they go part of the way to meet a de Gaulle demand that France have continued veto power over market decisions.

De Gaulle wants sole veto powers as the price for ending his six-month boycott of the market. He also would strip the organization's executive body of much of its power.

The other members — West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg — have shown little inclination in the present meeting ending today of defying the French leader.

Spaak proposed a three-point plan:

Requiring unanimous consent on all proposals now being considered by the economic community.

Requiring a unanimous vote to overturn past decisions made by ananimous decree.

Requiring that in the future on all issues of "vital interest," the ministerial council must meet and consider a matter four times before approving it on a less than unanimous vote.

U.K. ENVOY MAKES GOOF, KICKED OUT

LUSAKA (AP) — The Zambian government said Monday it ordered Britain's deputy high commissioner out of Zambia because his continued presence was considered harmful to British-Zambian relations.

A Zambian source said the diplomat — John Anthony Molyneux—had written a letter to the Commonwealth office in London but it mistakenly was placed into an envelope addressed to the Zambian government. The informant said Zambian officials disliked what they called Molyneux's high-handed manner. Contents of the letter were not disclosed.

VIET WAR

7,000 Troops Added by U.S.

SAIGON (AP) — Seven thousand U.S. troops poured into South Viet Nam today to strengthen Saigon's defences against guerrilla attack and to put more muscle in the marine beachhead at Chu Lai, on the central coast.

Although the Viet Cong forces avoided major action in advance of the lunar new year celebrations later this week, guerrilla bands harassed government positions, exploded mines, tossed grenades and ambushed militia platoons. An orphanage was hit in one attack, apparently by mistake.

Political infighting among South Viet Nam's military leaders again raised fears of trouble for the seven-month-old government of Premier Nguyen Cago Ky. He was reported to have told a battalion of army troops at Saigon Airport Monday that "five to 50" generals were seeking to overthrow his regime.

The new arrivals were 4,000 infantrymen from Hawaii and 3,000 marines from Okinawa. They brought total American troop strength in South Viet Nam to 191,000 men.

The Viet Cong before dawn fired mortars at a U.S. military compound in Quang Ngai city 325 miles northeast of Saigon. But the shells fell into a nearby orphanage and a South Vietnamese regimental headquarters. Five children and three civilian caretakers at the orphanage were wounded.

None of the 200 Americans was hurt, but an unofficial report said two South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 14 were wounded.

Other mortars caused light casualties at the government outpost of An Lo, near the northern frontier.

U.S. B-52s bombed suspected Viet Cong camps in Tay Ninh province four miles from the Cambodian border. Other U.S. planes flew 404 combat sorties in the south, hitting Viet Cong hideouts and river craft.

'Tough Line' With Provinces Hinted By PM

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A tougher line with the provinces is going to be taken by Prime Minister Pearson and members of his cabinet during this session of Parliament.

Close associates of the prime minister have alerted members of Parliament to watch for a transformation in the prime minister.

They say he is becoming impatient with representatives of the provinces taking potshots at his administration and this impatience will show up in the discussions in the House.

Indications of his new hardening attitude were heard during speeches the prime minister made in the general election. He voiced his sentiments again Monday on a television broadcast.

MAKE REQUESTS

He said the provinces travel to Ottawa for federal-provincial conferences making requests. The federal government is on the receiving end of the requests and "that puts us on the defensive," he said.

He added, "We want to do everything we can to meet the legitimate requests of the provinces but not at the expense of weakening the federal power within the Constitution."

With a touch of annoyance in his voice, Mr. Pearson told his TV interviewer, "when the provincial representatives overstep the line, and one or two of them have in recent weeks, we tell them to look after their own affairs and not interfere in federal affairs . . . Dynamism is fine, but dynamism turns into dynamite. We can blow up this confederation—I don't want that."

S. Africans Praying For Rain

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—A serious drought brought thousands of South African citizens to their knees today in prayers for rain.

As livestock died by the hundreds of thousands and rich grazing lands were turning into dustbowls, temperatures soared to 110 degrees in the blistering heat wave that has continued since the start of the year.

A government-sponsored national day of prayer brought a nation-wide response. People of all faiths crowded into churches, temples, mosques and office and factory canteens to offer prayers for rain to break the searing drought.

The government imposed severe water restrictions in major centres as reports came in that some towns had only eight weeks supply of water left.

TWO FREEZE TO DEATH IN NORTHERN INTERIOR

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — An unidentified woman was frozen to death after the car in which she was riding bogged down in snow 15 miles north of Dawson Creek.

The woman's husband left his wife in the car while he went in search of help after getting stuck in a snowdrift. When he returned, his wife had gone, and her body was found later near their home.

The temperature at Dawson Creek plunged to 25 degrees below zero Monday night with winds of 40 miles an hour.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP)—Robert Wokeley, 25, a resident of the Half-Way Indian reserve 30 miles north of here, was found frozen to death near his home.

Police said today that Wokeley apparently fell over a 50-foot embankment during the weekend and died of exposure.

Dogs Lose Appetite After Watching TV

PORTLAND (AP) — Television is rough on dogs and parakeets.

The Oregon state board of health Monday warned owners about been too lenient in permitting their dogs to watch television more than an hour a day.

Poodles who watched television three or four hours daily suffered loss of appetite and became highly nervous and snappish.

Quoting a West German study no the television addiction of pets, the board said dogs are the most rabid TV fans.

Birds are a close second. Four or more hours a day of television will give parakeets a high fever, said the board.

FANCY MEETING YOU HERE . . .

Glad-Handers Have Ball

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—For a half-hour today, the Commons actually looked like a friendship society.

There was Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, the man who blasted Conservative Leader Diefenbaker in the last session, as "the biggest separatist in Canada," pumping the hand of a grinning Mr. Diefenbaker. They chatted as though they had suddenly met in a Tokyo railroad station.

Finance Minister Sharp, dubbed by Mr. Diefenbaker at another time as a "bureaucrat" in less-than-complimentary terms, was at the desk of the opposition leader with a magnificent smile. Mr. Diefenbaker jumped to his feet to eagerly greet the visitor from across the green-carpeted aisle.

E. Davie Fulton, the former Conservative justice minister had a grand time making his rounds.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, who normally carries on first-class feuds with his opponents, scarcely missed a hand as he wandered deep in the opposition benches.

"That was the worst game of cribbage I've ever played," he shouted to one Conservative.

Social Credit Leader Thompson moved freely over the floor with his greetings.

New Democratic leader Douglas stayed close to his front-row desk as one member after another came along to see him.

Former Finance Minister Gordon, now a private member, moved from seat to seat in the back rows to greet fellow members before he moved up to his front seat, alongside the elite Cabinet circle.

While everyone was gathered in hand-grasping knots, in strode George Hees, the flashy former Conservative Trade Minister. He made a grand entrance through the main doorway, nattily dressed in a dark blue suit and blue shirt. But he didn't have time to work through his first dozen handshakes before the Commons was called to order.

Prescription fer th' new Parliament seems t' be—th' mixture as b'fore.

Out-of-work Victoria salesman Robert Westover was desperate for a job.

So the 23-year-old father of two wrote the Rhodesian government and offered his services as a mercenary soldier. On Saturday he got his reply:

"I am happy to be able to tell you that we are confident that we shall be able to maintain law and order and meet any threat to our security from our own resources, namely, our police and regular and territorial army.

"However, your kind offer of assistance will be borne in mind if circumstances beyond our control cause us to review this attitude."

The letter, signed by a government secretary, said newspaper reports that a mercenary army had been set up were untrue.

Both the letterhead and envelope bore the letters OHMS (On Her Majesty's Service).

Even funnier, at the bottom of the envelope was written: "For a happy holiday . . . Tour Rhodesia and Nyasaland."

Since writing away for the job, Mr. Westover, of 114 Ontario, has landed a safer job as a wolesale bread salesman.

Memories of 44 years ago came back Monday to William Walker, 4060 Glanford, when he saw a picture in the Times of a Derby policeman.

The English bobby was wearing a flashing blue light on his traditional helmet. The light was introduced after one policeman was struck and killed directing traffic a few months ago.

Mr. Walker was a policeman in Derby for two years before coming to Canada after the First World War, and sends his picture to prove it.

Mr. Walker, who served with the Royal Canadian Artillery here for 25 years, now is in charge of the Corps of Commissionaires at historic Fort Rodd Hill and familiar to visitors for his conducted tours.

Modern youngsters see most of their sports on television. They're quite accustomed to seeing a scoring play repeated by a second delayed-action tape procedure.

When one young sports addict went to a "live" game at Memorial Arena for the first time, he told his dad:

"That was a neat goal, Dad—but why didn't they do a replay?"

A pressing problem has been ironed out at HMCS Naden. A coin-operated iron has been installed in a barracks block and for 50 cents it operates for one hour, provided there's a sailor to push it.

The operator must move fast however. The iron takes four minutes to heat and shuts off eight minutes later.

We wonder if there's a business opportunity for a presser at Naden. A steam press would make a uniform tiddley in less than five minutes and so easily there couldn't be much more expense involved.

Fireman Dreamed Of Glory

GLASGOW, Scotland (CP) — Factory fireman Mike Rodger, driven by boredom and dreams of glory to set his own fires, was jailed for a year here after his last blaze got out of hand and caused £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) damage.

Rodger, 24, a member of the fire-fighting unit at the Rolls-Royce aero-engine plant here, pleaded guilty in sheriff's court to "wilful fire-raising"—arson in the shape of two small fires that Rodger quickly doused and a third that got out of control.

"He had thought he was in a job which had glamor," lawyer A. Munro Armit told the court. "Instead, he found himself dressed up to fight fires that never happened.

"So he had the idea of starting fires and putting them out by himself. This not only gave him something to do but made him look efficient and slightly heroic."

ALL FAMILY WATCHING AS SON AXES FATHER

WUPPERTAL, Germany (UPI)—A Greek family sentenced their father to death and then watched while a son carried out the execution with an axe, city prosecutors said Monday.

The prosecutors said the grandmother, wife, two young daughters and the son of 41-year-old Salonika-born Milikiadis Vlachos decided Sunday night he should die for allegedly seducing the son's wife.

Then, the prosecutors said, the whole family stood in the doorway of the bedroom where Vlachos lay sleeping and watched while the son killed him with an axe.

The son, 22-year-old Jahannis Vlachos, gave himself up to police after the killing, saying, "I had to revenge my wife," the prosecutors said.

One-Day Truce Called On House Rule Hassle

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Agreement has been reached among the political parties to avoid a rumpus in the Commons on the opening day today of the first session of the 27th Parliament.

Government House leader George McIlraith held a series of meetings with representatives of the other parties. He did not have one general meeting but met the various house leaders separately Monday to try to reach agreement to avoid a hassle in the house.

The best he could come up with was an undertaking from the Progressive Conservatives that they would not cause chaos on opening day. But Wednesday comes the question of how long a period is to be devoted to asking questions. Under the new rules that the government wants made applicable to this Parliament there would be only a 30-minute period for questions.

Mr. McIlraith will try for an all-party agreement later Tuesday or early Wednesday on the rules that will apply in this session. Meantime for the opening day there is an uneasy truce.

. . . THRONE SPEECH

Liberal government might adopt the idea.

Prime Minister Pearson's plan for a major shuffle of federal departments, announced in December with a list of cabinet changes, will be presented in legislative form.

New departments will be created to handle manpower policies, forestry and rural development, Indian affairs and national resources, business legislation and the combined field of energy, mines and resources.

An emphasis on new manpower programs, most of them already announced, was forecast.

There will be a "vigorous program" of job - training to raise the skills of the unemployed and those in low-skilled work. Training allowances will be increased.

Economic policies will be aimed at continuing the present upswing in national prosperity while battling against "excessive costs and prices which would endanger the stability of our economy."

The policy of delaying federal construction projects in areas where the construction industry is under heavy pressure from private building will be continued.

Tax incentives to encourage industrial research will be increased.

Legislation to modernize the railway industry has been modified since original introduction of the Railway Bill in late 1964 and will be introduced this year. Action in this area has been pending ever since the report of the MacPherson royal commission in 1961.

FOREIGN AFFARIS IN FORE

In the field of foreign affairs, the government signalled its intention to increase its external aid programs and seek Canadian participation in the Asian development bank with an initial contribution of $25,000,000.

Only defence item was a proposal to amend the National Defence Act to legalize the further integration of the armed forces into a joint headquarters command.

There will be a new effort to work out an arrangement under which amendments to the British North America Act—the Canadian constitution — can be made in Canada, without going to the British Parliament.

Steps also will be taken to declare O Canada the national anthem and God Save the Queen the royal anthem, another thing the previous Parliament didn't get time to do.

The Canada assistance plan, bringing together all federal-provincial welfare programs and adding some new fields to it, will be introduced. This already has been worked out with the provinces.

Aberhart Rites To Be Attended By Martin

Health Minister Eric Martin will represent his cabinet colleagues Wednesday when the body of Mrs. William Aberhart is buried in Vancouver beside that of the founder of Social Credit in Canada.

Mrs. Aberhart died Thursday in Calgary, where some 200 persons, including Alberta government officials and Social Credit League officials, attended the funeral service.

Her body was flown to Vancouver Monday night so it could be buried beside her husband's grave in Forest Lawn Cemetery where Mr. Aberhart was buried in 1943.

Mr. Martin, who helped organize Social Credit in British Columbia in 1945 and traces his connection with the Social Credit movement back to 1932 when it started in Alberta, will be an official representative of the party's elected members.

Speed-Up Expected On School

Postponement of plans for a junior college in Greater Victoria will likely hasten establishment of an adult education centre here.

The postponement was announced Monday night by Lloyd Clarkson, chairman of the adult education committee of the school board.

He said the department of education has called a halt on construction of junior colleges until three existing ones in the province have been in operation for some time and their programs have ben evaluated.

The school board had hoped to establish a junior college that would include an adult education centre. At the same time the board did not want to duplicate any programs offered by the University of Victoria.

Mr. Clarkson said the education department insisted that a junior college must offer first and second-year university courses.

OVERLAP UVIC

He said this effectively killed the prospect of a college here because such an institution would offer day courses in high school subjects.

Superintendent John Gough said he has inquired about the cost of leasing a building on the university's Landsdowne campus for use for adult education.

The school board will move its offices to the Lansdowne campus when all university facilities are transferred to the Gordon Head campus in the fall of this year.

Heath Critic Resigns Tory Post

LONDON (Reuters) — Angus Maude resigned today as the Conservative opposition party's spokesman on colonial affairs after a row over two articles he wrote attacking Edward Heath's leadership.

His resignation was announced as demands grew within the party for Heath to sack him.

Maude, 53, brought into the open criticism of Heath's leadership and new Conservative policies hammered out under Heath's direction. His articles branded the party's role in opposition as ineffective and irrelevant.

They sparked off a series of counter-attacks from other top Conservatives and left the party open to an attack last weekend by Prime Minister Harold Wilson who called it a split opposition unable to provide a credible alternative government.

Heath returned from a Far East tour last week to find a storm developing over Maude's articles. He delivered a public rebuke during a television interview and urged Conservatives to attack the Labor government instead of their own party.

In a statement announcing his resignation, Maude indicated that he will continue his "revolt" as a backbencher after Parliament returns from its Christmas recess next week.

Maude was given his post as "shadow" colonial secretary by Heath last October.

The missing man is Douglas Ramsey, 28, of Boulder City, Nev., a member of the U.S. mission for the area.

RECOMMENDATION SYSTEM EXTENDED

Up to 60 per cent of students in grades 8, 9 and 10 in Greater Victoria schools may be recommended for promotion to the next higher grade.

This was announced at a school board meeting Monday night by John Gough, schools superintendent.

Grades 11 and 12 now operate under the recommendation system and it is being extended to the lower grades. Mr. Gough said no more than 60 per cent of the students in a class may be recommended.

The recommendation will cover the entire work of a student over the school year. Secondary school students write exams on 21 out of the 190 days in a school year, and educators think this time can be put to better use.

Catholic Priest Invited to Abbey

LONDON (Reuters)—A Roman Catholic priest will preach in Westminster Abbey for the first time since 1570 when the Pope excommunicated Britain's Queen Elizabeth I.

Jesuit Father Thomas Corbishley will speak Friday during Unity Octave Week, an annual event devoted to Christian unity.

Until about a year ago there was a ban on Roman Catholics participating in services with other Christians in Britain.

The Abbey, one of the greatest churches in Christendom, is the national shrine where the sovereign is crowned and undertakes by law to uphold the Protestant faith.

The sovereign became temporal head of the Anglican Church after its break with Rome.

The end of the tradition, following improved relations between the churches, comes in the Abbey's 900th anniversary year.

Father Corbishley has appeared in the pulpits of other Anglican churches but he says "The Abbey . . . there's something special about it."
